KELLY OUT FOR MAYOR AGAIN

VAST U. S. ARMS PROGRAM TO BE GIVEN CONGRESS

President May Ask 2 Billion 200 Million.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—On the eve of the opening of the Seventy-sixth congress, it is apparent that the major item of legislation for consideration at the first session will be a vast rearmament program.

In his annual message on the state of the Union at the opening of congress, which President Roosevelt will deliver in person, and in his budget message, which he will send up a few days later, the chief executive is expected to call for almost a doubling of the peace time record 1 billion, 100 million dollars voted the army and navy last spring.

To Ask 9,000 Army Planes.

Mr. Roosevelt will call for increasing the army air force to 9,000 planes and the navy air force to 3,000 planes. He will seek at least one and perhaps two 45,000 ton battleships; he will recommend construction of new air bases in the Atlantic and Pacific; and he will ask about 500 million dollars for strengthening and modernizing the army and building up material reserves for a possible war.

These are the major items in the program the administration will offer congress and which will lead to a complete analysis of defense needs. The presidential program is expected to promote a battle as it has been under fire front and rear as a promotion of war scare propagandists and as an adoption of the dictator scheme of spending on armaments for recovery.

Spend 5½ Billions in 6 Years.

The program which finally emerges from congress, whatever it may be, will climax the greatest armament effort this nation ever has made in peace time. In the last six years expenditures for the military establishments have totaled almost 5½ billion dollars. Construction of 146 new men of war has been undertaken and 240 vessels have been authorized. The army has advanced its strength from 116,000 to 165,000 men and has made progress in modernization. The nation's air strength has been pushed ahead by 1,000 planes.

These tremendous outlays will be recalled in the halls of congress and will raise the question "Is America prepared?" The answer of the army and navy high command can be given today. It is unqualifiedly "No." The question will be followed in congress by another, "Will the United States be prepared if the administration's program is adopted?" The answer given to this is "Probably not."

Far Ahead of 1914—But—

Strength of armaments is relative, military experts point out. While it is true that the United States is far ahead of where it stood in 1914 and far ahead of what it was five years ago, in a relative sense the nation is weaker. For the armament efforts of Germany, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Russia, and other powers have far surpassed those of the United States in speed and intensity.

Considering the navy, the American fleet is inferior to none in efficiency, training, and general fighting strength. Yet it has not achieved the equality with the British fleet that was contemplated under the limitation treaties. Under the expansion program it is expected to be the equal of any afloat, although Russian, German, and Japanese construction are closely guarded secrets. It has reports that Japan is building four 43,000 ton superbattleships that set the navy planning for 45,000 ton vessels.

Navy Lacks Adequate Bases.

The navy still is woefully lacking in adequate bases, a naval reserve, auxiliary ships and other necessities. It is even having difficulty in getting enlistments up to the present authorized strength and is seeking pay increases to make the service more attractive.

Beside the army, the navy picture is rosy. The American army in strength is inferior to that of third and fourth rate powers. Not only is it virtually the world's smallest,

ARGENTINE PLAN FOR SOLIDARITY WINS LIMA FIGHT

U.S. Defense Scheme Shelved by Parley.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 22.—The twenty-one delegations of the eighth pan-American conference tonight agreed to a continental solidarity plan. The plan was framed to overcome Argentina's objections to three previous draft declarations which Argentina branded as "military alliances."

The American republics agree "to maintain and to defend" continental solidarity "against all foreign intervention or activities."

But, if any American nation is threatened, the other nations will "make effective their solidarity" by means of consultation, rather than springing to arms, as the United States had wished.

Preserve States' Rights.

The American foreign ministers will base their consultation on existing pan-American pacts and in doing so the states will retain their individual rights.

The conference engineers said the "Lima declaration" was a conference project and not the proposal of any one delegation. But United States delegates admitted it was the project of Argentina, based on Argentina's "take it or leave it" solidarity plan proposed last night.

Argentina held out against previous drafts which would have obliged the American nations to make a common defense stand against a foreign aggressor. Argentina objected that it did not want to anger its foreign customers and pointed out that an American nation might be the aggressor of another, or that the Latin Americans might be called on to fight the United States' battles.

Preamble Lauds Unity.

The declaration begins with a preamble lauding pan-American unity and contains five articles, the text of which follows:

"The American republics declare:

"FIRST—That they reaffirm their continental solidarity and their purpose to collaborate in the maintenance of the principles upon which said solidarity is based.

"SECOND—That, faithful to the above mentioned principle and to their absolute sovereignty, they reaffirm their decision to maintain and to defend them against all foreign intervention or activities that may threaten them.

"THIRD—And in case the peace, security, or territorial integrity of any American republic is thus threatened by acts of any nature that may imperil them they proclaim their common concern and their determination to make effective their solidarity, coördinating their respective sovereign wills by means of procedure of consultation established by conventions in force and by declarations of inter-American conferences, using measures which in each case circumstances may make advisable.

Foreign Ministers to Act.

"It is understood the governments of the American republics will act independently in their individual capacities, recognizing fully their juridical equality as sovereign states.

"FOURTH—That in order to facilitate consultations established in this and other American peace instruments, the ministers of foreign affairs of the American republics, when deemed advisable and at the initiative of any one of them, will meet in their several capitals by rotation and without protocolary [preliminary] character.

"Each government may, under special circumstances or for special reasons, designate a representative as a substitute for its minister of foreign affairs.

"FIFTH — That this declaration shall be known as the declaration of Lima."

Vote on Court of Justice.

The organization of peace committee voted 20 to 1 for a declaration expressing the future need of an inter-American court of justice. Argentina voted against it because there already exists the international court of justice at The Hague.

Hope Gaining for Potter Boy on 18th Day

Raymond Potter Jr., 14 years old, ill of a disease that is usually fatal, smiled and talked directly with his mother yesterday for the first time in ten days. He said he felt much better. And he wondered if she had bought him the wrist watch he wants for Christmas.

Physicians said this was the most encouraging sign of the boy's recovery since he was taken to the Municipal Contagious Disease hospital on Dec. 13. For eighteen days Raymond has been afflicted with staphylococcus meningitis. The disease was not diagnosed until he reached the hospital.

Has Tenth Blood Transfusion.

Yesterday he received his tenth transfusion from volunteer blood donors who have recovered from some form of staphylococcus, a bacteria which attacks the blood stream. Scores have volunteered, many of them from distant states.

Raymond's mother, Mrs. Anna Potter, 11347 Church street, wife of a chain grocery manager, talked with her son through the open door of his room yesterday. Although his type of meningitis is not contagious, no visitors are allowed for fear they might carry germs.

The door was ajar when Mrs. Potter looked in. Raymond's eyes lighted up. He smiled and said: "Oh, mother, I knew it was you. I heard your footsteps and recognized them."

Christmas Gift Is Ready.

Later they conversed through a nurse, when the door was closed. Mrs. Potter assured her son she had the watch, the Christmas gift he said he wanted when she visited him Wednesday.

"He seemed so much more alert," Mrs. Potter said. "Previously he seemed indifferent to my presence. He wouldn't even eat his ice cream. But today when I brought him some he ate almost all of it."

"Raymond looks pretty well," said Dr. Archibald Hoyne, superintendent of the hospital. "Of course that doesn't mean he is out of danger, but he is better. His temperature is up to about 104 degrees but his general condition is improved."

"We are all encouraged," said Raymond's nurse. "This morning he slept from 3 to 6 a. m. It was the longest consecutive sleep he has had."

MARY AND HER DOLL START QUICK ROUND TRIP TO HOLLYWOOD

Mary Jane Uhl, 9 years old, upset some Christmas decorations yesterday. "You're a naughty girl, Mary Jane," scolded her mother, Mrs. Jeanette Uhl. So naughty Mary Jane was put to bed earlier than usual. But she couldn't sleep.

A few hours later, when the house was quiet and nobody was looking, Mary Jane tiptoed out of the house at 751 West 65th street. She left a note to her mother stating: "I'm going to Hollywood. Will be back Friday morning."

Last night, just before midnight, Lieut. Fred Kelly of the Central station, saw Mary Jane at Madison and Market streets, trying bravely to carry two suitcases. He took her to the station. She admitted she was running away. In her suitcases police found a doll, a flashlight, two dresses, opera glasses, and a pair of salt and pepper shakers. She didn't quite know what she intended to do with the assortment or even why she wanted to go to Hollywood. "I've just been a bad girl, I guess," she said. She told of the note she had written.

Lieut. Kelly told Mary Jane that as long as she had promised to be home Friday morning he'd help her. It was 1 a. m. "It's Friday morning now," he said. And he sent her home.

THIEVES TRY IT THE HARD WAY; GET ONLY $1.50

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 22.— (AP) — Thieves who broke into a building here found that crime doesn't pay.

As detectives reconstructed the crime, the thieves cut through a rear door, but were blocked by steel bars. They smashed a window and found more steel bars. They broke a skylight on the roof, only to be balked by a heavy wire netting. They broke into a nearby display shop, stole a pair of shears, and returned to work on the netting. The netting was too tough. They returned to the display shop and tried to cut through the floor into a lether store, but failed.

Finally they returned to the roof, smashed through another skylight, and climbed down a rope into a coffee shop.

The loot—$1.50 in pennies.

Gang Gunners Slay Daiches Killing Suspect

Assassins last night shot and fatally wounded John Minogue, alias Menard, a suspect in the slaying of Eli Daiches, wealthy advertising official, in 1934, and a minor gambler regarded by police as a tough hoodlum. He was shot five times a few steps from his home on 7145 South Claremont avenue.

John Minogue.

Neighbors heard five quick shots. None saw the shooting. One, Miss Kathleen Mann, 65 years old, 7123 South Claremont avenue, said that after the shooting she saw a man jump into a large black sedan parked at the curb and speed north. She did not know how many men were in the car.

Shot Five Times.

Minogue fell almost in front of her home, shot in the chest, back, stomach, left side, and behind the left ear. As the gang car sped away his sister, Veronica, 18, homeward bound from work, came upon a crowd gathered about her brother.

She and another brother, Thomas, helped carry Minogue into the house. Later he was taken to the Holy Cross hospital. Last rites of the Catholic church were administered when physicians said there was little chance of his survival. His brother gave blood for a transfusion during the evening. The wounded man died at 3 o'clock this morning.

Asks Police to Remain.

While he remained conscious Minogue begged police to stay with him, fearing the gunmen might invade the hospital to complete their job. Minogue refused to disclose their identity or their motive, although Capt. William Collins of the Chicago Lawn station said he was convinced Minogue knew.

Minogue, according to his brother, worked in a south side handbook. Unable to account for the slaying in any other manner, police theorized that his connections with the gambling industry may have been responsible.

Gimp Facing 20 Year Term for Shooting

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Martin [The Gimp] Snyder, former husband of Ruth Etting, was convicted today of attempting to murder Myrl Alderman, the blues singer's new husband. Snyder, who faces a maximum term of twenty years in prison, will be sentenced Tuesday.

Ruth Etting.

The verdict was returned by a jury which had deliberated two days. Snyder was acquitted of attempting to murder Miss Etting and Edith Snyder, his daughter by a previous marriage, and of possessing a gun on which the numbers had been defaced.

Disagree on Kidnap Charge.

The jury disagreed on the charge that Snyder kidnaped Alderman at a radio studio the night of Oct. 16 and at gun point forced him to drive to his Hollywood home. The shooting occurred soon after they reached Alderman's home. Alderman recovered from the wound.

"All I can say is that I wish the little lady [Miss Etting] a merry Christmas," said Snyder after the verdict was returned. "It could have been worse."

Evidence was presented that during the alleged kidnaping Snyder accused Alderman of breaking up his home. Snyder and Miss Etting were divorced in Chicago in 1937, after being married seventeen years. The singer and Alderman, a pianist and her former accompanist, eloped to Las Vegas, Nev., during Snyder's trial.

Pleads Self-Defense.

Snyder, who guided Miss Etting to theatrical fame, testified that he shot in self-defense after Alderman started to draw a gun during a quarrel over whether Miss Etting was living in the same house as Alderman.

Miss Snyder, who is 21 years old, and Miss Etting said Alderman was not armed. The singer said she struggled with Snyder for his gun after the shooting, fearing that he intended to carry out threats to kill her and Miss Snyder.

Defense Attorney Jerry Giesler said Miss Etting used Snyder until she could gain nothing more from his ability as a manager and then turned to Alderman because he was younger. Snyder is 44 years old and Alderman is 30.

Snyder met Miss Etting while she was singing at the Marigold Gardens in Chicago and divorced his wife to marry the singer. He had a reputation for shrewd dealings for Miss Etting's services and boasted that his ability had made a "mere chorus girl" into a star.

TELLS VOTERS PLANS TO SPUR CITY'S GROWTH

Cites Record in Move for New Term.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Mayor Kelly last night announced his candidacy for renomination in the mayoralty primaries Feb. 28. In a radio address he said "yes" to the pleas of forty and more civic, labor, and business groups and of the Democratic organization that he run for another four year term.

Chicago's specific goals for future growth were stressed by the mayor. He dwelt on accomplishments of his administration and upon projects such as the outer drive, the lake shore development, and others with which he was connected before he became mayor. He spoke then of the future.

"I feel," said Mayor Kelly, "as would any other individual, whether he be in business or public life. Once he starts a job he likes to see it finished.

Still Work to Be Done.

"There is still much work to be done for Chicago—much unfinished business—vital to the well-ordered city that grows about us. So tonight I say to you, the people of Chicago, that I am a candidate for reëlection to the office of mayor."

The mayor in part of his address tore into some of his critics. He termed them "whining civic Scrooges," "gallery gentlemen," and "barnums of ballyhoo."

He said he hoped the coming campaign would be dignified, but that if his opponents defamed Chicago's government they would get plenty of fight.

"Chicago's welfare," he said, "is greater than the personal ambition of any man, greater than any single group, greater than partisan politics. There is an All-Chicago welfare. And again I offer my hands and my heart to sustain that welfare. Let's go, Chicago!"

Ward Committeemen Turn Out.

Some 250 guests crowded the broadcasting studio of station WENR and overflowed into another room. They represented labor, women's organizations, civic bodies, nationality groups, the American Legion. Most of the aldermen were present along with 43 of the fifty Democratic ward committeemen. A fortnight ago the committeemen besought Kelly to run for reelection.

Preparations have been made to start the campaign forthwith. An independent citizens' committee known as the All-Chicago Committee for the Reëlection of Mayor Kelly has arranged to open headquarters in the Conway building across from the city hall. Col. A. A. Sprague heads this body. The chairman of the women's division is Mrs. Bertha Van Wakeman, president of the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs. A formal opening will come after Christmas. Speechmaking will start actively after the holidays.

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney remained silent yesterday. He is expected to announce shortly whether or not he will run for mayor.

Tells Six Years' Progress.

The mayor struck a balance sheet of Chicago of today and of six years ago when he took office.

"Chicago," he said, "once the crime capital, now the safest city in the world. Chicago, with lowered insurance rates because of our supremacy in fire prevention methods. Chicago, the most healthful city in the world with the lowest infant mortality rate and freedom from epidemics. In the past five years Chicago has paved more streets than in any previous twenty-five years. Our sanitation system has been developed to the finest in the world. All this has been done without special assessments or additional local taxes.

"Chicago's improvements point to a real upsurge in commercial and residential development after a long period of delayed building. Last, but not least, there is the sound financial record of your government. Only last week our bonds sold at the lowest interest rate of any time in the history of Chicago."

Stresses Council Record.

Mayor Kelly took up the cry of "Bossism," a familiar accompaniment of political campaigns.

"While I have been a Democrat all my life," he said, "party politics has never influenced me in any decision as mayor.

"This is particularly evidenced by my work in the city council where I have presided for almost six years without missing a single meeting. No member of the council has ever accused me of an unfair ruling.

"No meritorious comment is ever made by the critics of the splendid work done by the many departments in the city hall. Can they find no stronger accusation than the old bogey man cry of 'The Boss'? The question for the people to decide is this: Should the mayor be the chief executive of the city hall? Or should some one, other than the people, be the boss of the mayor and the city council?"

Points to Work at Capital.

The mayor spoke of his efforts at Springfield which brought a bond issue to get money for unpaid teachers; the home rule bill on traction; the automobile certificate of title and anti-theft act, which was followed by a slash in insurance rates; the expansion of the tuberculosis sanitarium, and the consolidation of Chicago's 7,000 acres of parks.

"But what of the future?" said the mayor, "the future of the well-ordered city?

"For Chicago my ambition is to see: The passage of a unified traction ordinance with as low a rate of fare as possible, with the public's approval, first, last and always.

"The completion of the present initial system of subways, which at the beginning was scoffed at by the critics as impossible.

"The construction of a filtration plant, without additional taxes or special assessments.

"Enlargement of our present airport, making Chicago the greatest air terminal in the nation as well as the greatest railroad terminal.

"Grade separations, and every possible protection for human life.

"Enforcement of the new building code to stimulate more building and more employment.

"New bridges, elevated highways, carrying out of the school construction program, development of small parks, a comprehensive program of street development, and highways to the great west side.

Would Aid Children.

"More bathing beaches and recreational centers and also additional welfare and breast milk stations to give our children every opportunity.

"And the continuation of my policy to make every effort to bring about the location of new industries in Chicago, that we may return more people to gainful employment and create a level between our economic expansion and social fulfillments."

HOPKINS CHOSEN FOR CABINET JOB OVER PROTESTS

Head of WPA to Become Commerce Secretary.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Harry L. Hopkins, who has spent almost 12 billion dollars of the Federal Emergency Relief administration, the Civil Works administration, and the Works Progress administration, tomorrow is to be named secretary of commerce.

Nomination papers for the Iowa boy, who spent his way to fame, were made out today at the state department and probably will be issued tomorrow when the resignation of Daniel Calhoun Roper becomes effective.

No hitch in plans is expected. Hopkins already had moved some of his papers from his office at WPA headquarters over to the commerce building. Roper began to move out when he submitted his resignation ten days ago.

Harrington Moving Up.

Col. F. C. Harrington, assistant WPA administrator, is expected to move into Hopkins' old quarters. Col. Harrington, a United States army engineer and close friend of Hopkins, leaped over the head of Aubrey Williams, deputy WPA administrator, in presidential favor. Williams will continue as head of the National Youth administration.

The Harrington appointment was looked upon as a natural outcome of President Roosevelt's desire to take the heat of investigation off the easy money spending administration during the coming congress. From all quarters within and without the administration there has been a persistent demand for an investigation of WPA spending from the points of extravagance and politics.

When the demands for investigation of WPA extravagance and vote buying reached their peak, Hopkins was revealed as the President's choice to succeed Roper as secretary of commerce. The plan almost fell through when Roper refused at first to resign.

The conservative wing of the administration flared up with the objection that Hopkins would not win the approval of organized business because he had never been a business man. Mr. Roosevelt was urged to turn to the right and woo the confidence of business by a more conservative appointment.

Pleas of Business Ignored.

Hopkins has spent his entire life in social service work since his graduation from Grinnell college in Iowa in 1912. He was first with the Christodora House in New York City, later in New Orleans with the Gulf division of the Red Cross, and, until his federal appointment in 1933, with the New York Tuberculosis association.

Mr. Roosevelt ignored pleas for a responsible business leader in the commerce post, according to administration insiders, because he had no wish to have the administration squirm on the hot spot over relief expenditures through a grilling of Hopkins.

The President was motivated not alone by concern for his administration, but by a warm personal regard for Hopkins. The lanky, sarcastic Iowan is the President's warmest friend and closest adviser in the administration. He had Hopkins slated for a cabinet post under his scheme to reorganize the government and create the cabinet post of secretary of public welfare.

During the early days of the recent gubernatorial campaign in New York Mr. Roosevelt suggested Hopkins as the Democratic candidate for the post. The effort was considered part of a plan to build up Hopkins to presidential stature in 1940. It has been said that Hopkins is the President's current favorite for a successor.

TWO WOMEN ACT FAST; PREVENT A TRAIN WRECK

Quick action by a woman driver and a Glenview telephone operator last night prevented a crash between a North Shore electric train and a stalled automobile that might have wrecked the train.

Miss Gladys Fraser was driving to her home in Glenview when her car skidded at the Glenayre road crossing onto the south bound tracks. She jumped from the car and telephoned Miss Ethel Zobus, the telephone operator. In turn Miss Zobus through a special arrangement with the police department broadcast directly to a police squad and sent them to the scene.

Policemen Irwin Meyerhoff and William Gutzler arrived at the crossing a few seconds before a southbound train was due. They ran up the tracks with flashlights and waved the approaching train to a stop.

Then Miss Fraser's car was given a push and she went on her way.

SABATH SLATED TO BE CHAIRMAN OF RULES GROUP

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22—[Special.]—Speaker William B. Bankhead today conferred with President Roosevelt on the administration's legislative plans. He said that relief appropriations would be held to a minimum "with complete regard for all human needs."

Bankhead said "by all the rules of the game and seniority of service, the chairmanship of the house rules committee," should go to Representative Adolph Sabath [D. Ill.]. He predicted Sabath's selection. The administration would prefer to have a stronger man in the post, according to reports, but virtually was forced to take Sabath. Next in line for the chairmanship left vacant by the defeat of Rep. John J. O'Connor, [D. N. Y.,] was Rep. Arthur H. Greenwood, [D. Ind.] an administration supporter. Sabath might have been passed by for Greenwood, but the latter was defeated for reëlection.

GREEN PLEDGES HE'D BE MAYOR OF ALL CHICAGO

Outlying Districts Given Promise of Aid.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

If Dwight H. Green is elected mayor of Chicago he will give special help to outlying communities. The Republican candidate made this pledge yesterday in response to inquiries from neighborhood improvement groups.

Green, former district attorney and prosecutor of gangsters, declared that his pledge was given with full realization of the difficulties involved. He recalled that many city administrations had forgotten their promises to aid outlying districts.

"Just as I said a few days ago, let's take the bunk, ballyhoo, and political stalling out of our scheme of affairs," Green said. "If I'm to be mayor I want to represent every section of this great metropolitan center.

Must Help Every Section.

"Rehabilitation there must be. And we've got to build from the bottom up. It's a fallacy to say that any city is only as strong as its weakest section. But it is a fact that a city can progress only as rapidly as every section is included in the plans."

The young [41 years old] standard bearer for the regular G. O. P. organization in the city said that the neglected communities will be given first attention if he is elected.

"Health problems, trafic problems, school problems, safety problems—they all can and will be worked out in these communities," he said.

"In some areas, those commonly known as 'blighted,' the work will be harder and will take longer. But those, too, must be built into progressive, equal, forward looking units before the best can be accomplished by the city as a whole.

Would Rule Out Politics.

"Some of these communities have serious trafic problems which will be worked out when the stalling is ended. Those essentially community problems will be worked out by giving constructive aid, not by political interference."

Politics should not taint communities and complicate their efforts for self-improvement, Green declared. The word "politics," he said, should no longer be heard in connection with matters vitally affecting the health and safety of children.

DUNCAN PAROLE HEARING GUIDED BY LA FOLLETTE

Madison, Wis., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Gov. Phil F. La Follette today presided over an extraordinary session of the state pardon board which heard a plea for clemency in behalf of Thomas M. Duncan, one of his closest political and personal friends. It was the first time in the history of the board a governor had acted in such a situation.

Duncan, former executive secretary and chief political strategist for La Follette, now is serving a one to two year jail term for manslaughter in connection with the hit and run death of Henry F. Schuette, an aged Milwaukeean, last March 9. Witnesses testified at Duncan's trial that when he was arrested shortly after the accident he was so drunk he couldn't recall what had happened.

Mrs. Catherine Duncan, the prisoner's wife, pleaded that he would not be given fair consideration by the incoming Republican administration, and that no justice would be served by continuing his confinement. District Attorney Herbert J. Steffes vigorously opposed a pardon.

3 YOUNG BANDITS CONFESS HOLDUP KILLING OF GUARD

Bind, Beat Him to Death to Foil Detection.

Zuave Polin, a watchman, was beaten to death by burglars early yesterday in the plant of the Liberty Bottling company, 4413 Cermak road. Last night, less than twenty hours later, the crime was marked solved by the police. Three young colored men were in custody as the slayers. All confessed, the police said.

Zuave Polin.

The three are Robert Walton, 4321 Evans avenue; Robert Shannon, 636 East 43d street, and McClein Royster, 4532 Evans avenue. Each is 17 years old. Police said Walton was employed at the plant and engineered the crime. Polin knew him, recognized him, and was slain for that reason, they theorized.

Crime Solved Speedily.

The speedy solution of the murder was credited to Capt. Frank Malone, of the Lawndale station, Detectives William Fenn, James Kojzar, and Edward Hartnett, and Assistant State's Attorney David Leeds. Polin was killed at 12:30 a. m. Walton was arrested at work at 10 a. m. Shannon was seized at 2:30 p. m. and Royster a few hours later. At 7 p. m. the third and last confession was made.

According to Capt. Malone, the three prisoners intended to steal receipts from the safes that are built in the delivery trucks of the bottling concern. At quitting time Wednesday evening Walton unlocked a window in the plant. After the last employé had left, Walton, Royster, and Shannon climbed through the window.

The three hid until after 11 p. m., when the last delivery truck was driven in. Then, about midnight, they emerged and shortly afterward overpowered Polin. Fearful that Polin would identify Walton and eventually the others, the three decided to kill him, Capt. Malone said.

As Polin lay dying from their beating, according to all three confessions, the thieves tied him hand and foot and dragged him from one section of the plant to another as they looked for money. He was still alive when they left.

The Negroes stole keys from the plant office to unlock safes in two trucks and took $92. They then drove out a truck with a safe containing $450. They drove this to the alley in the rear of 4924 South Dearborn street. Shannon called on a friend to borrow a drill to open the safe, but the friend didn't have one and the money was not taken.

Polin was 38 years old and lived with his wife, Eva, and their small daughter at 3451 Douglas boulevard.

O'Connor to Fight Communist Rule Over Democratic Party

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Representative John O'Connor of New York, the only victim of the Roosevelt purge in the November elections, announced today that he will devote the next two years to an attempt to save the Democratic party from communistic influences.

Rep. O'Connor.

"If the radicals are not cleaned out of the party, the Republicans are sure to win in 1940," said the red-headed congressman, who was defeated for reëlection after fifteen years of service in the house. O'Connor was chairman of the rules committee, which shapes the legislative program in the chamber, for the last four years.

Lamneck to Join Fight.

Representative Arthur P. Lamneck of Ohio, another Democratic foe of the New Deal who was defeated in the election, declared he will join O'Connor in an effort to reform the Democratic party.

"I am going to devote my time to speeches and broadcasts in an attempt to convince the Democratic party that it must depart from the radical policies it has been following," Lamneck said. "It must also elect a safe President two years from now. Otherwise the Democratic party is doomed."

O'Connor will remain in Washington. He has set up law offices, but most of his time will be devoted to writing and radio broadcasting.

Leads Fight on Dictator Bill.

O'Connor led the successful fight in the house against the President's reorganization bill. Not long afterward President Roosevelt called O'Connor a betrayer and selected James P. Fay to run against him.

Fay won the Democratic nomination over O'Connor by 500 votes. O'Connor then ran as a Republican candidate, but lost the election by 2,400 votes.

"I am going to perform what I think is my duty to my party and my country," said O'Connor. "I am going to try to awaken the Democratic party of which I always have been and still am a member, to the peril of its domination by radicals.

"By radicals I mean such men as Harry L. Hopkins and his collaborators. They are running the party and they must be removed if the Democratic party is not to go out of existence."

42 DELINQUENT PROPERTIES SUED FOR BACK TAXES

Courtney Opens Drive; Asks Foreclosures.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.

As the beginning of a drive against tax delinquency the state's attorney's office has filed foreclosure suits against forty-two parcels of real estate on which more than a million dollars in back taxes is unpaid.

The suits, seeking foreclosure sales, have been entered in the Superior and Circuit courts by State's Attorney Courtney. Assistant State's Attorneys Marshall V. Kearney and John T. Fitzgerald are handling the suits. Additional bills are being prepared and will be filed next week, Kearney said.

Owe Four to Nine Years' Taxes.

The suits are directed against receivership properties, most of them large and owing from four to nine years' taxes. Most of the properties are under Skarta act receiverships, in which the county treasurer acts as receiver.

Success of the move, Kearney explained, will depend on how readily buyers are attracted to the sales. If tax buying money does appear, he added, the campaign will be greatly enlarged.

The foreclosure procedure, he said, is different from the ordinary tax sale in that the buyer can get a clear title. Under the usual tax sale the buyer obtains only a tax lien, which does not give him title to the property.

Two Forfeitures Required.

The law under which the foreclosure is asked requires that there be two forfeitures—that is, that the property has been forfeited on two previous tax sales. The law has not been used in recent years because of the scarcity of tax buyers.

The owners named in the first group of suits will be required to answer the complaints in February. The courts will then be asked to order the properties sold for the tax claims.

The largest tax claim named in the bills is against the property at 119-123 West Madison street. Delinquent taxes from 1928 to 1936 total $175,266, exclusive of interest, penalties, and other costs.

A claim of $34,935 is listed against the 3150 West 63d Street Building corporation. In each of twenty other cases the claims for unpaid general taxes alone range from $10,000 to $35,000.

List of Properties.

Other properties named in the suits with the amount of unpaid taxes for the years 1928 to 1936:

She denied that she plans to use any of her considerable wealth to trace down her fiance's claim to the title of Marquis Frederick Alexander Dumas.

RADIO BLOCKADE BRINGS CAPTURE OF 2 EX-CONVICTS

The police radio blockade in Du Page county brought the quick capture of two robbers yesterday. A motorist telephoned Sherif Elmer Hoffman at Wheaton that two men had run into the fields after their truck overturned at 22d street and route 54.

The call was flashed by radio to six squads headed by Arthur Bennett, chief investigator for the sherif, and Chief Deputy John Horstman, who sped to the scene. The fugitives were seized. They said they are Edward Kasmedor, 23 years old, 1427 Lill avenue, and Rudolph Fiege, 22, of 736 North Racine avenue. Kasmedor has served six years in Pontiac reformatory for burglary. Fiege said he had served three terms in the Bridewell.

They admitted they stole the truck earlier in the day from the Indiana Harbor Belt railroad at Broadview. A few hours before they had stolen an automobile at Wells and Division streets. They said the automobile struck a man and they left him lying in the street.

GERMAN DEMAND FOR U. S. APOLOGY IS TURNED DOWN

Attack Represents Public Feeling, Says Welles.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—The United States today rejected Germany's demand for an apology for Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes' blast at dictators.

The attack, which was aimed in particular at Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, was made last Sunday in a speech in Cleveland.

Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles in icy diplomatic language this afternoon told Dr. Hans Thomsen, German charge d'affaires, that the Nazi request came with singular ill grace and impropriety from a government which persistently had permitted its leaders and its press to attack the United States and its officials.

Public's Stand Told.

Mr. Welles informed Dr. Thomsen that the remarks of Ickes represented the feeling of an overwhelming majority of the American people concerning recent developments in Germany. By indirection he let the German diplomat know that President Roosevelt had reflected that sentiment in recalling Hugh Wilson, American ambassador to Germany, in protest against the Nazi government's latest Jewish persecutions.

The statement of Welles was unusual in American diplomacy for its bald lack of compromise. Old time employés of the state department were unable to recall the use of such language to a representative of a friendly power.

Mr. Welles told Dr. Thomsen that the Nazi government must certainly know by now that the recent policy of the Hitler government has deeply shocked and alienated American public opinion.

Calls Persecutions Bestial.

The secretary branded Nazi treatment of Jews as "bestial" and said that the German policy carried "civilization back to the days when man was unlettered and benighted."

The vigor of Welles' statement brought further tension in the already heavily strained German-American relations. Germany recalled its ambassador after President Roosevelt recalled Ambassador Wilson.

In the interview with Mr. Welles Dr. Thomsen insisted that criticism of the United States and its leaders in the German press was not on a par with criticism of Germany by a member of the American cabinet. Mr. Welles pointed out, however, that the German press is the official voice of the German government.

SNOW ARRIVES TO BE WITH US FOR CHRISTMAS

Chicago's streets were covered with snow last night, and the weather forecast assured a white Christmas. Snow started falling shortly before 7 p. m., and within an hour a thin layer of white covered the city.

Forecaster J. R. Lloyd predicted a snowfall of three inches, to be followed by sleet or freezing rain this morning. Temperatures of freezing or slightly below should keep the snow for Christmas, Mr. Lloyd said.

Several airplane flights were canceled as a result of the snow and a few others were delayed. The Chicago and Southern Air Line flight from Chicago to St. Louis was canceled, as were two United Air Line flights from Cleveland to Chicago.

LETTERS REVEAL PATMAN'S RATES FOR PROPAGANDA

Reduces Fees for Talks Against Price Cutting.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Congressman Wright Patman [D., Tex.] charges all that the trafic will bear in propagandizing legislation for the price fixing and anti-chain store lobby, according to information that came to light in two letters today.

His regular fee for a speech to an organization of merchants on legislation to circumvent price cutting is $300. But just as the income tax is tempered in accord with ability to pay, the Patman honorarium can be scaled down to meet the pocketbooks of less affluent tradesmen.

Then there is the wholesale rate of $100 per speech which was paid Mr. Patman for forty-eight addresses on the Robinson-Patman and Tydings-Miller price maintenance acts under the auspices of McKesson & Robbins, the gigantic wholesale drug firm now involved in sensational disclosures of the crimes of its president, F. Donald Coster, alias Philip Musica, former convict. Coster, who committed suicide last Friday, was a leading figure in the price fixing lobby.

Patman to Face Test.

The Texas congressman will return to Washington next week to stage the next move on the price fixing lobby's program—the passage of the Patman bill to tax chain stores out of existence. His prestige is due for a test at the opening of the first session of the 76th congress on Jan. 3, when he will seek election to the most powerful committee of the house, the ways and means committee. If he wins this place he will have obtained the seal of approval of the house on his connection with the price fixing lobby.

Retail and wholesale druggists and grocers' associations constitute the backbone of the far flung lobby to check price cutting, modify the anti-trust laws, and put a crimp in the chain stores. Patman speeches at an honorarium fixed in advance are arranged either directly through the organizations of the lobby or indirectly through the Thomas Brady Speakers' bureau, 236 West 44th street, New York City.

Here is a letter Mr. Brady wrote last July 6 to an applicant for a Patman speech in West Philadelphia:

"Your letter of June 28 was brought to my attention upon my return to the office this morning.

"At this writing I can arrange for Congressman Patman to address a meeting of the Independent Retailers of West Philadelphia, in the fall, for a fee of $300, and hotel in Philadelphia, setting aside $100 for special expenses.

"Please be good enough to advise me, as soon as possible, the date you desire, so that I can confirm same with Congressman Patman."

In quest of further details THE TRIBUNE correspondent called Mr. Brady's office on the telephone this afternoon. The person who responded said that Mr. Brady was away and that it was not known when he would return.

Willing to Cut Rates.

A letter from R. H. Rowe, executive vice president of the United States' Wholesale Grocers' association, Washington, D. C., a leading member of the lobby, to E. J. Malloy of the Wisconsin Wholesale Food Distributors' association, Milwaukee, gave assurance that the new Patman bill is aimed solely at big chain stores.

This was the letter in which the foes of price cutting also were given to understand that Mr. Patman is not above cutting his lecture price to the needy.

"Congressman Patman," said the Rowe letter, "has spoken before our convention at Dallas in May, and the National Association of Retail Grocers' convention in Cincinnati in June, and later spoke to the meeting of Independent Grocers at St. Louis.

Purpose of Bill Told.

"We inclose you an additional copy of his address at our Dallas convention. We do not have copies of his addresses at the other places mentioned, but they were all along the same line, except at the convention of the National Association of Retail Grocers he assured the meeting that the bill would specifically exempt independent retail grocers who are members of voluntaries or of retailer owned wholesale grocers' organizations.

"Congressman Patman charges an honorarium, plus his traveling expenses, for his addresses. If you desire to communicate with him in connection with addressing the meeting of your association I would suggest that you lay before him all the facts, namely, that your association is comparatively small in numbers and something of its resources, and in that way it may be possible to get from him quotations at a lower figure than he ordinarily makes."

PATMAN SENDS PROTEST.

The following telegram from Representative Patman, sent from Texarkana, Tex., was received last night by THE TRIBUNE:

"Your editorial and newspaper article contain malicious falsehoods. It is common practice for outstanding leaders in any cause, including members of congress, to use opportunities afforded by speakers' bureaus to reach people with their views. I have never profited by such activities. Have done nothing improper in connection therewith, and your statement that 1936 addresses were on anti-chain store bill obviously incorrect, since that bill not introduced until 1938. I expect you to make correction and consider denouncing your own Republican leaders in congress for engaging in same activity."

Mother and Victim

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

This photograph of Margaret Martin (right) and her mother was taken within the last month.

Tunkhannock, Pa., Dec. 22.—(AP)—A description of the "employer" who lured Margaret Martin, 19 years old, from her home by the promise of a job put new vigor tonight into search for a trace of the killer.

State police learned through a person who overheard a pay station telephone conversation that a young man was the caller who had offered Miss Martin, a recent honor graduate from a business school, a place as a stenographer. He described the man.

That was Saturday morning in Kingston, 30 miles south of here. "I'll be right back, mother," she said as she started out to meet the man.

But she was not seen again until late yesterday when a muskrat trapper working along Keelersburg creek, found her body bundled in a burlap bag, in the icy stream about 25 miles from her home.

Luzerne county investigators obtained further description of the man who offered Miss Martin a job. They said he was overheard getting Miss Martin's name from the business college.

ASSIGN 5 JUDGES TO BREAK JAM IN DIVORCE DOCKET

5,000 Cases Pending; Bar Committee Protests.

The executive committee of the Superior court yesterday assigned five judges to hear some 1,200 motions and 5,000 divorce suits now pending. This is four more judges than have been assigned at any time during the last two years.

The unprecedented action followed protests made by a Chicago Bar association committee to Chief Justice Grover C. Niemeyer of the court. The protesting lawyers said cases have piled up to such an extent that justice is being defeated. Emergency motions, ordinarily given a hearing within twenty-four hours, were being held up for twenty-one days, the committee reported.

No Contest Heard Since June.

Not a single contested divorce case has been heard in the Superior court since last June, the report continued. Nearly 2,000 such cases are now awaiting trial.

Judge Robert C. O'Connell, the only judge assigned to divorce matters since the current term of court opened in September, has been holding hearings for nine and ten hours a day. He has even held night sessions. Since September he has granted 1,221 divorce decrees.

"It's simply a case of too much work for one man," said Attorney David H. Brill, chairman of the bar association public service committee that made the report.

There has been no jam in the Circuit court, the attorney said. This is true chiefly because only a third as many cases are filed there as in the Superior court. Only 2,300 divorces are now pending in Circuit court, and motions are up to date.

Chief Justice Niemeyer explained the policy of the Superior court in handling divorce cases.

Too Easy to Get Divorce?

"Frankly," he said, "we should like to even up matters so that the Circuit court gets just as much divorce business as the Superior court. Moreover, the Appellate court recently said [in the case of Merry Fahrney] that the Cook county courts should be cleaned up. It has been too easy here to get a divorce quickly and quietly. We're not encouraging divorce."

Attorney Brill said his committee informed the chief justice that its members believed divorce cases were as important as any other. Delays react to harm persons most dependent upon speedy court action for justice, he said.

Beginning Monday, under Judge Niemeyer's order, Judges O'Connell will hear only the motions already on file. Judge Joseph Sabath, an experienced divorce judge, will hear current motions and default divorces. Judges Oscar Nelson, Peter H. Schwaba, and Rudolph Desort also will hear default divorces. No provision yet has been made for hearing contested divorces.

BRIDE ORDERED TO LEAVE HOME, SHE SAYS IN SUIT

John J. Thomas, head of an appraisal company at 4413 Ravenswood avenue, was sued for separate maintenance in Circuit court yesterday by Mrs. Ruth Elizabeth Thomas, his bride of less than two months. Mrs. Thomas was formerly an employé of her husband's company.

They were married Oct. 29 and went to Thomas' winter home in Orlando, Fla., for a honeymoon. According to the bill, Thomas ordered his wife to leave the home on Nov. 26 and has sent her threatening telegrams.

Thomas, who is 61 years old, has stocks valued at more than $1,000,000 and an annual salary of $50,000, the bill says. An injunction is sought to restrain him from disposing of his holdings. Thomas lives at 5459 North Spaulding avenue. Mrs. Thomas, who is 37, is now under a doctor's care in the Swedish Covenant hospital.

BLACKMAIL PAID BY COSTER TO 8 TO HIDE HIS PAST

U. S. Finds Where Much of Drug Loot Went.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Eight persons who knew F. Donald Coster, president of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., in the days when he was the former convict and swindler, Philip Musica, blackmailed him for large sums of money after he became head of the drug corporation.

This was revealed late today by Acting United States Attorney Gregory F. Noonan shortly after the text of the note which Coster-Musica wrote last week just before he shot himself to death was made public. In the rambling, incoherent note Coster-Musica attempted to shift the blame from himself and other members of his family. He pictured himself as "the victim of Wall street plunder and blackmail in a struggle for honest existence."

"A substantial part of the money Coster drew, received, or obtained went to pay off these blackmailers," Noonan asserted.

Arrests Expected Soon.

Coster-Musica and three surviving brothers under indictment are alleged to have stolen sums aggregating four million dollars through a complicated structure of dummy corporations to which the main treasury of McKesson & Robbins paid fake commissions on fictitious crude drug transactions.

In this merry-go-round of Coster-Musica milking the drug company's treasury and the blackmailers extracting vast sums from him in return for their silence, Noonan said, there was evidence that the mails were used by the extortionists. Postoffice inspectors are working on this phase of the case, and arrests are expected within the next few days.

One man who knew Coster-Musica before his salad days in the drug business, Benjamin Simon, appeared before the federal grand jury this afternoon. Simon, who was arrested two days ago on a charge of conspiracy to violate the securities and exchange act, was on the McKesson & Robbins pay roll at $6,000 a year.

Reveals Simon "Talked."

Noonan declined to go further on Simon's appearance before the grand jury than to say that he had "talked." He added that Coster had financed Simon's defense on a charge of violating the Sherman anti-trust law in 1928 and 1929. Simon served three months in jail.

As for Coster-Musica's suicide note, Noonan dismissed it as a "statement, primarily of confession and avoidance." The federal prosecutor contended that it was an attempt to shield these three surviving brothers, Arthur, George, and Robert, all of whom are under indictment for conspiracy to violate the SEC regulations.

The Coster note was a curious document. It was ungrammatical, at points hysterical, and vague. It was made public by Samuel Reich, attorney for the Musica brothers.

In his suicide note, Coster-Musica named no names except those of his wife, two of his brothers, George and Robert, and his brothers-in-law, Leonard and John Jenkins. He repeated several times that all of them were the innocent victims of his attempts to keep the drug firm going.

As to the manipulations of the drug firm, he insisted that they represented pure inflation of credit, made necessary to maintain the company's credit. He declared that "there are no millions lost or hidden, much less narcotics and alcohol involved."

He insisted that his family had not profited from any thefts. "Any gift or present I have made to my wife or members of my family is not company money," he declared.

The surviving brothers, incidentally, were named in an indictment returned shortly after the note was made public. It superseded that already voted against Arthur and George, who used the aliases George Vernard and George Dietrich, and included Robert, who posed as Robert Dietrich.

Blame Put on Others.

Regarding what he insisted was not a swindle, but an attempt to keep the drug firm going, Musica, in his suicide note, declared that "bankers, lawyers, appraisers and incompetent, high salaried executives bled McKesson & Robbins white."

He said that his wife—referring to her as "my poor wife, the innocent victim of my frantic operations"—had no inkling that there was any irregularity in what she was doing.

The swindler's posthumous explanation particularly pointed to the fact that one director "was selling his common stock and that of his friends to the public with full knowledge of the situation under investigation."

New Drug Head Testifies.

Shortly before the note was made public Charles F. Michaels, former executive vice president and a former co-trustee in receivership, who was elected to the McKesson & Robbins presidency this week, testified before Assistant State's Attorney General Ambrose V. McCali. He said he had been informed last Oct. 6 that Julian Thompson, treasurer of the company, suspected something was radically wrong and that he had told Thompson to go ahead with his investigation.

Soon afterward, he said, he went home to San Francisco and there quietly sold 15,042 shares of common stock that he and his family owned. At no time, then or before the final exposé that some $18,000,000 in supposed assets were nonexistent, did he tell any one that he suspected something was wrong, Michaels testified.

Michaels' stock sale netted $119,000. He is still the largest holder of McKesson & Robbins preferred, with 34,000 shares. Michaels obtained his stock holdings in 1928 when his San Francisco drug firm was absorbed by McKesson & Robbins. He received $1,000,000 in cash and securities in the transaction.

Michaels apparently was the person to whom Coster referred in his suicide note as the director who was selling his common stock. However, it was revealed that he wrote to Coster in October telling of his plan to get rid of his common stock and that the drug magnate replied it probably was a good idea, since no dividends were in prospect in the immediate future.

Fire Attacks Bridge Tower; Water Halts Machinery

Firemen were called early today to put out a small fire in the east tower of the Randolph street bridge. Water seeping through the floor while it was being mopped caused a short circuit. Most of the damage was to insulation. The lifting machinery was put out of commission for several hours.

HUSBAND TO PUSH PROBE OF WIFE'S MYSTERY DEATH

Suspects Murder Despite Suicide Verdict.

Mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Jacqueline Kinder in her apartment at 10 West Elm street on Nov. 29 remained unsolved at an inquest held yesterday. Mrs. Kinder, who was 35 years old, was the wife of Cecil Kinder, one-time wealthy prohibition bootlegger.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide while despondent. The husband then declared, however, that he did not believe his wife killed herself and would seek a further investigation. A coroner's physician said Mrs. Kinder died of poison and acute alcoholism.

Asks Continuance of Hearing.

Before the hearing was closed George N. Kotin, attorney for Kinder, requested that the inquiry be continued in order that other evidence be produced. Deputy Coroner Edmund J. English asked him what other evidence he had.

"I believe I can prove that this woman did not commit suicide and that a note found near her body is a forgery," he asserted.

He asked that the note, written on two pages and explaining why Mrs. Kinder committed suicide, be returned to the hearing so that the jurors could examine it. He also asked that Miss Judith Delman, Mrs. Kinder's roommate, be brought back for further questioning.

Assistant State's Attorney Francis T. McCurrie, who attended the hearing for the first time, then asked Kotin if he had any evidence of murder that he be more specific about it. Kotin said he might be able to produce it later.

Suicide Theory Satisfies Police.

The jury was consulted. Members said they were able to reach a verdict on what evidence they had heard. Detective Robert McCarthy said police investigated the case thoroughly and were satisfied that the death was suicide.

Investigators asserted that they were never able to learn the identity of a wealthy suitor who had been keeping company with the woman and whom she was reported to have called on the telephone before taking the sleeping powders.

VOTERS SUPPORT CHAMBERLAIN IN TEST ELECTION

Duchess of Atholl, Foe of Premier, Loses.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 22.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's policy of appeasing dictators was upheld by a slim majority in an important test election yesterday for the Perthshire and Kinross seat in the house of commons. The "red" duchess of Atholl—vociferous critic of the prime minister—was defeated by W. McNair Snadden, who will replace her as representative of that Scottish district.

Duchess of Atholl.

Sixty-five per cent of the voters in the district, which is largely agricultural, trudged over snow covered heaths to elect Snadden, a farmer.

He had campaigned on a platform of full support for the government's foreign policy. Today's final tabulation showed he had won by 1,313 votes. The vote was 11,808 to 10,495.

Refers to Reports of Change.

After congratulating the victor, the duchess announced: "I think there will be a general election before long when I expect to stand again. Perhaps events between now and then will prove to the constituents that I was right."

This was a reference to reports that British foreign policy will be revised after Chamberlain visits Rome next month.

The famed duchess, who was tagged a "red" for supporting the Spanish loyalists, got the Liberal, Labor and communist votes. Snadden was supported by the Conservative party machine, which considers the duchess a renegade since she was elected previously as a Conservative. She had represented the district in parliament since 1923.

The duchess resigned the seat last autumn after the Conservative party chastised her for criticizing the Munich agreement which gave the Czecho-Slovakian Sudetenland to Germany.

Tells of Hitler Pledge.

LONDON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Parliament recessed today until Jan. 31 after a day of diverse discussion.

Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house that Reichsfuehrer Hitler "informed me at Berchtesgaden that he was glad to leave Memelland as it was so long as the [semi-autonomy] statute was observed by the Lithuanian government." Nazis in former German Memelland on Dec. 11 increased their control of that body from 24 to 25 of the 29 seats.

Sir Samuel Hoare, home secretary, warned that any German attempt to compel German nationals in Britain to join a British branch of the Nazi labor front would be "a punishable offense."

Warns Parliament of Air Raid Danger to England

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 22.—Echoes of the fear of air raids, which have moved Britons to secure gas masks, build bombproof shelters and even to invent gas tight baby buggies, were heard in the house of commons today. Sir John Anderson, minister for civilian defense, said that raids on Barcelona, Spain, would be "trivial compared with what might happen to Britain if she ever engaged in a major war." Sir John was answering critics who favor large communal shelters instead of smaller ones in congested areas. He prefers the latter.

GENESEO RESIDENT DIES.

Geneseo, Ill., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—William J. Reilly, 81 years old, native and life resident of this part of Illinois, died today. His widow, four sons, a daughter and a sister survive.

GERMANS HAPPY; FRANCE MUZZLES RADIO STATIONS

Nazis Scold U. S. and England.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 22.—France, Australia, Lithuania, and dismembered Czecho-Slovakia were patted on the back today by Germany. Stern warnings were issued to Great Britain and Rumania, while the United States continued to serve as the butt of Nazi ire.

With great satisfaction the German press reported that as a result of the new Franco-German friendship agreement a special government office was created in France to supervise French radio stations. Hope was expressed that the powerful Strasbourg station, which broadcasts news in the German language, will be the first to be muzzled.

"Such sources of agitation and news falsification must now be stopped," the press said.

Australia Praised.

The Australian government was lauded for canceling the broadcasting license of a "Marxist" station in Sydney. The newspapers said the measure was taken because the station "continued to appeal for the boycott of Japanese goods despite the protests of various countries."

Triumphantly, the papers announced that the Prague government plans to prohibit the importation of "all refugee newspapers as well as other anti-German agitational material."

"This measure is to prevent the poisoning of relations between Germany and Czecho-Slovakia and the slandering of the German government and its leaders," the press said.

Czecho-Slovakia, it was also disclosed, gave Jewish teachers of the German university in Prague "vacations for an indefinite period." The action was believed to have been taken at the request from Berlin.

The Nazi press has ceased to attack Lithuania. The Lithuanian foreign minister, Juozas Urbsys, is expected to visit Berlin soon to thrash out the Memel problem with the German government.

No Annexation Expected.

Well informed circles here believe Germany will not insist on the annexation of the strongly Nazified Memel territory. They suggest the Nazis will be satisfied with the granting of a status similar to that held by the free city of Danzig with Lithuania assuming the rôle of a German satellite.

Danzig was placed under the protection of the league of nations by the Versailles treaty. It is practically controled by Nazis. The city is a unit of the Polish customs administration. Memel, detached from Germany by the Versailles treaty, constitutes a unit under the sovereignty of Lithuania, but with a large measure of local autonomy.

German newspapers accused Great Britain of having converted Palestine into a "terrible hell." The United States was attacked for sending foodstuffs to loyalist Spain. Der Angriff, newspaper of Propaganda Minister Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, said: "U. S. A. feeds Spanish terror."

[On Wednesday the United States government offered 3,000,000 bushels of surplus wheat to the Red Cross for distribution among needy civilians in Spain. Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, said investigation showed far greater suffering in loyalist Spain than in insurgent territory.]

Rumania Gets a Warning.

Rumania, which holds a key position in southeastern Europe as a result of the dismemberment of Czecho-Slovakia, was warned that the Fascist Iron Guard still is active and might overthrow the Rumania régime.

The Frankfurter Zeitung, which often is used as the mouthpiece of the foreign office, said, "Through the murder of Codreanu and his co-prisoners the immediate danger coming from this quarter is out of the question. Codreanu's adherents, however, have not surrendered, and to everybody acquainted with the spirit of nationalist youth in Rumania it is apparent that the Iron Guard will continue to work with even greater fury and determination."

[Corneliu Zelea Codreanu, "Little Hitler" of the Iron Guard, and thirteen of his subleaders were slain on Nov. 30. The government said they were shot when they attempted to escape.]

ITALY DENOUNCES PACT WITH PARIS IN TUNISIA CRISIS

Treaty No Longer Is Valid, France Notified.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 22.—The French government was presented with a new headache today. Italy notified France that the 1935 Laval-Mussolini accord regulating colonial questions in Africa between the two nations is "no longer valid."

Under the agreement France conceded Italy extensive territory in Libya; yielded Italy territory in French Somaliland and ceded her 3,000 shares in the Djibouti-Addis Ababa railroad, and provided for the progressive removal of Italian citizenship and other rights in Tunisia by 1965. There are 94,189 Italians to 108,068 French living in Tunisia.

Scoff at Rome's Reason.

Rome's reason for denouncing the accord, as announced in Paris, is a technical one—that the two governments never exchange ratifications. From the French point of view this so-called pretext merely serves to mask Fascist plans for a new—and perhaps this time official — demand for a slice of the French colonial empire.

No one in Paris political circles believes that the Italians are not serious in their determination to bid by all means at their disposal for a preponderant position in the Mediterranean—a position which, the French say, can be gained only at their nation's expense.

The French already have announced they are determined not to give Italy a toe hold in any French possession.

Declares Italy Ready to Fight.

ROME, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Italy today waited for France to offer concessions after giving notice that the Fascist government considers invalid the 1935 Mussolini-Laval convention concerning Tunisia.

Virginio Gayda, the authoritative Fascist editor, warned the French that Rome would meet "with equal arguments and equal force" France's 'insidious fury" if France wanted to fight.

FRENCH PREMIER WINS CONFIDENCE VOTE IN CHAMBER

PARIS, Dec. 23.—[Friday.]—(AP)—Premier Edouard Daladier won an important political victory early today by forcing a vote of confidence from the chamber of deputies, which almost overthrew his government yesterday afternoon. The vote was 366 to 229.

The balloting was on the approval of budget expenses and receipts along with financial decrees which had raised so much protest among the opposition. Parliamentary observers said yesterday's first close vote of confidence, when only seven votes kept the government standing before the chamber, had frightened wavering right and center deputies into line.

The vote gave final approval to the ordinary budget, which is met by taxation and other revenues, of $1,735,537,440 of which $346,081,596 was for armaments. This represents an increase of almost $78,978,000 over 1938 armaments expenditures.

Yesterday was the last trip for Miss Maxine Hensley as stewardess on the Los Angeles Challenger. She is to be married to John T. Connor of Omaha, Neb. Miss Hensley's home is in Central City, Neb.

AIRCRAFT PLANT EMPLOYE GUILTY OF SPYING ON U. S.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Karl Allen Drummond, 21 years old, aircraft plant employé accused of espionage, was convicted tonight in federal court.

Judge Leon Yankwich set sentence for 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Drummond, a former inspector for the Northrop Aviation company in its factory at nearby Inglewood, was accused of stealing blue prints of a revolutionary new naval bombing plane and attempting to sell them to Japanese agents for $2,000.

His brother, Vee Dee Drummond, testified he received blue prints of the plane from the defendant, but later refused to go through with a scheme to sell them to Japan.

'DIRTY SHIRT' SPY NET ROCKS REBEL SPAIN; NAB 1,000

British Aid, Wife Seized; Army Plans Lost.

LONDON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The case of the dirty shirt has led to a Spanish insurgent spy hunt which, authoritative sources suggest, may change the course of the Spanish civil war.

Authoritative reports reaching London indicated that "approximately 1,000" arrests had been made in insurgent Spain. A British consulate employé in San Sebastian was reported to have committed suicide following his arrest on a charge of complicity in an alleged widespread network of espionage. The employé, identified as "Fermin," janitor of the consulate, jumped to his death from a window.

These developments followed the desertion of one of Gen. Francisco Franco's high officers to the government side and the finding of "incriminating matter" wrapped in a soiled shirt and stowed away in an official British mail bag.

Rebel Drive Delayed.

It was confirmed officially that an insurgent offensive, planned for three weeks ago, was postponed because the insurgent officer, reported to be a colonel of the general staf, went to Barcelona and took with him plans for a rebel campaign.

The bit of laundry with mysterious papers rolled inside was taken from a bag in the luggage of Harold Goodman, British vice consul in San Sebastian. Goodman was stopped by rebel authorities in Irun at the French border last Monday while en route to France.

The insurgent foreign ministry in Burgos said the papers were "designed to inform the enemies of nationalist [insurgent] Spain about our future military operations."

Officials in London explained that Goodman was carrying an "official bag" but not a "diplomatic bag," which would have been immune from search. An official container is not immune.

Suspect Employés of Britain.

London informants said Goodman had been absolved of any guilt in the affair, but that several employés of British consulates in addition to Fermin were "under suspicion." Several Spanish nationals are employed in the consular offices in Spain.

British in Hendaye, France, at the Spanish frontier, said John Rattenbury and his wife, both English, were among those arrested in the counter-espionage campaign. Rattenbury was a messenger for Sir Robert Hodgson, British agent accredited to the insurgent régime.

British Aid Probe.

The British conveyed their regrets to Gen. Franco in the Goodman affair. They were coöperating with insurgent authorities to determine the owner of the dirty shirt and who placed it and the "incriminating papers" in the vice consul's luggage. It was said the shirt itself might prove to be a vital clew in the biggest espionage conspiracy of the Spanish war.

British quarters in Hendaye hinted that the papers might have been planted in the mail bag by the police themselves to cover up a leakage of military information in Franco's own general staf. In Hendaye the British maintained that Goodman knew no one had touched the mail pouch from the time his British aid packed it in San Sebastian until it was seized by political police at the border. The person who packed the luggage was not identified.

Rebels Deny Revolt Reports.

BURGOS, Spain, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The insurgent government tonight categorically denied reports of counter-revolts and uprisings in insurgent Spain. Authorities said complete tranquility prevailed, despite the wide circulation of rumors that subversive activities had been uncovered.

Seek to Record N.Y. Council Sessions and Amaze Public

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Supporting a motion which called the city council meetings "the best show in town," the board of estimate today voted to make phonograph recordings of council sessions and sell them to the public. The proceeds would go to the needy. Borough President James J. Lyons of the Bronx, introducing the motion, said he foresaw an income of one or two million dollars a year.

A DOCTOR AND HIS DITTY

By CALEB

IT IS the night of December twenty-third, long, long ago. In a New York City home, the living-room fire is drawing merrily, and before it is gathered a gay group of children. The Episcopal rector's daughter has dropped in; good humor runs high; and presently enters the master of the house himself—Dr. Clement Clarke Moore, Professor of Biblical Learning in the New York General Theological Seminary of the Episcopal Church. In his hands is a manuscript, and on his lips an unwonted smile.

"My dears," nodding to the children, "here is a ditty I have written solely for your enjoyment. Would you like to hear it?" "Yes, yes!" is the chorused response. And so the Doctor, clearing his throat and glancing about him for silence, begins. "'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse."

Amid laughter and tumult from his excited audience, he finishes at last; and the rector's daughter copies the poem for herself. A year later she surreptitiously sends it to the Troy Sentinel, where it first sees print on December 23, 1823—thereby so embarrassing the dignified divine that not till twenty-one years after does he acknowledge its authorship, and include it among his published poems.

Whatever were the other poems in that volume, they have long ago passed to oblivion. But not the rollicking chronicle of jolly St. Nick and his eight flashing reindeer—which has ever since remained an heirloom of the whole human race. Famous abroad in almost every known language, it has also been issued in Braille for the blind; and a copy of the first pamphlet where it appeared, in 1848, is one of the rarest collector's items in the range of American literature.

At the ripe age of eighty-four, during the Civil War, Dr. Clement Moore passed to his reward. But the ditty he penned some hundred and sixteen years ago for a single household, has captured a whole world. And Chicago's lawyer-author, Walter W. Schmauch (from whose new book, referred to in an earlier column, this recital is drawn), further assures us that each year eager children still celebrate Christmas at the grave of a man whose Greek and Hebrew lexicon, solemn sermons, and erudite tracts are forgotten—but whose Night Before Christmas immortalizes him as posterity's benefactor.

Nazis Now Possess 3,500 First Line Ships.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 22.—Accurate estimates on Germany's air strength are difficult to obtain, but British experts now figure that the Nazis have no fewer than 3,500 first line planes—not counting reserve planes and training machines. They also believe the Germans are producing between 500 and 600 planes a month, or about 150 to 200 more than Great Britain.

Rough estimates by British military authorities are that the German expansion program provides for a first line strength of 6,000 planes by 1940. Comparatively, the British program and production capacity would provide only 4,000 planes by 1940.

Chamberlain's Words Recalled.

There was some evidence, however, that the British are understating their strength. Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's significant speech before the Foreign Press association a week ago was recalled. In that address he said that rearmament had progressed so far that Britain "was now ready to fulfill its obligations."

If the Germans possess 3,500 first line planes, their total strength normally would be something like three times that number. However, no British expert will speculate on what the total German strength might be, or how many civil planes would be used for operations in war.

British aviation experts said American military experts erred recently in estimating German first line strength at only 3,000 planes.

Sees 6,000 Planes in Two Years.

Mario Muratori, an Italian air expert, writing recently in the periodical Lala d'Italia, put the German first line air strength at 3,000 planes. He estimated that this figure would be doubled in two years' time.

He also estimated that in two years' time the British force would be around 3,000 planes, and the French force about the same. In ground organization, Muratori said the Germans had a long lead with 750 airdromes against 250 in France, and 260 in Britain.

Recent French estimates placed the number of planes at the disposal of the Rome-Berlin axis at 7,000 first line planes. The French estimated that Germany is turning out 500 first line planes a month.

ROBBER HIDES IN WOMAN'S CAR; GRABS WHEEL

Kensington police last night arrested Daniel Doodeman, 20 years old, 11025 South State street, as an alleged jack in the box thief. Police gave him the name for his suspected manner of springing out on victims.

According to police, Doodeman concealed himself in the parked automobile of Mrs. Helen Lundquist, 32, of 10851 Normal avenue, near the Roseland postoffice. Shortly after she drove away, police said, Doodeman suddenly jumped up from the rear seat and grabbed the wheel. He allegedly struck her on the head with an iron drill when she resisted.

As a result she lost control of the car and it struck another one at 110th place and State street. Mrs. Lundquist's assailant fled. A witness identified him as Doodeman and Doodeman was arrested. Mrs. Lundquist identified him. Later Miss Lillian Sweeney, a postal employé, identified Doodeman as the man who attempted to rob her in similar fashion two years ago in the Roseland area.

REPORT CHARGES PERJURY, FRAUD IN DIVORCE SUIT

Lambert Kaspers, special commissioner appointed by the Chicago Bar association, yesterday reported his finding that Mrs. Irene Leach Bitner, 31 years old, was guilty of fraud and perjury in testimony she gave Feb. 27, 1937, in getting a divorce from Rex Leach. The report was made to Judge Robert C. O'Connell.

Kaspers also stated that in his opinion Mrs. Bitner's attorneys, H. Burton Schatz and Samuel Rosenblatt, were guilty of unethical and unprofessional behavior.

Mrs. Bitner, who lives at 1427 East 63d place, has remarried. She testified at the divorce hearing that a boy, Barrett, now 5 years old, was her son and Leach's. At another hearing last November she admitted that the child was the son of her sister, Lottie Gallos of 8152 Escanaba avenue, and said Leach was the father. The sister said she was the child's mother but did not know the father's identity.

VIENNA REFUGEE BRIDE TELLS OF LOST ROMANCE

Mrs. Miriam Piekarski Blockert, 24 years old, yesterday told the story of her international romance and its sad ending. She appeared before Judge Philip J. Finnegan seeking temporary alimony from Fred B. Blockert, owner of a linen importing business in the Drake hotel.

Mrs. Blockert is the daughter of Maximilian Piekarski, a Jewish lawyer in Vienna. She left Austria at the time of the German occupation last March and went to England. Wishing to come to America she made the acquaintance of Blockert by letters through a mutual friend and he proposed to her.

Blockert went to London and they were married there last Oct. 1. Three weeks later, she said, Blockert told her he was tired of living with her. He returned to America. She followed him and filed suit for separate maintenance. Judge Finnegan continued the hearing to Dec. 29 to allow Blockert's lawyers to file an answer.

Prospective Member Draws on Country Club for $20

Franklin Nelson, cashier at the Exmoor Country club in Highland Park, was impressed last night when the well dressed stranger walked into the club and asked about membership dues. Then the stranger drew a gun and ordered, "Give me all the stuff." Nelson handed over $20 in change. The robber demanded more, but fled when he heard a car door slam outside. Nelson told police he saved several hundred dollars in bills in the club safe.

Comparative Strength of Nations.

The relative strength of the United States and other principal powers is shown in the following table:

Nation.	Naval Tonnage.	First Line Planes.	Standing Armies.
United States...	1,620,000	2,000	175,000
Great Britain...	1,904,000	3,000	217,000
Japan	1,120,000	2,800	1,250,000
Germany	465,000	*	1,000,000
Italy	670,000	3,200	300,000
France	785,000	2,200	700,000
Soviet Russia...	315,000	7,000	1,500,000

*Ranges from 4,000 to 10,000.

In total tonnage the naval rations instead of the 5-5-3 of the limitation treaties run as follows:

Great Britain, 10; United States, 8.5; Japan, 6; France, 4.1; Italy, 3.5; Germany, 2.4; Russia, 1.7.

The American army of an authorized strength of 165,000 and 13,000 officers—which is not yet recruited—stands eighteenth in size among the 60-odd nations. But it is far behind other powers when the reserve is considered. The American reserve is 200,000 National Guardsmen, 100,000 reserve officers, 168,000 R. O. T. C. enrollees, and 307,000 C. M. T. C. half trained potential reservists. The 300,000 CCC enrollees know virtually nothing of military training. The total military effectiveness of the nation should consider 134,751 officers and men in the navy and marine corps, 54,371 in the naval reserve, and 9,600 in the coast guard.

900,000 U. S. Reservists.

The potential reservists number above 900,000 men, but scarcely half of these have had enough training to classify them as reservists and but a quarter might be called trained reservists in the American sense. Yet almost none of these has had training with the most modern weapons. In fact, few regulars have had such training.

In contrast are the mighty reserves of foreign powers. Russia has from 10 to 16 million. France has 6,000,000, and Italy 6,000,000 to 7,000,000. Germany has 2 million reservists as well trained as her regulars and several millions more far ahead of anything in this country.

The general staf has plans to put 400,000 trained troops in the field on mobilization day. But it has modern weapons for but a handful of these at present. And were mobilization day to come tomorrow, industry would not be converted to the manufacture of war supplies for from eight months to a year. In that time the American army would be wiped out, according to military experts.

Fully aware of the defects of our defense, the army and navy high command is not seeking tremendous expansion of existing establishments but rather a bolstering up of weaknesses. They are working to replace old ships and old equipment and to create a completely equipped, highly trained defensive machine.

[This is the first of a series of articles on the national defense. Future articles will discuss the needs of the army, navy, and air corps, and industrial mobilization plans.]

Name Michigan WPA Chief Chicago Regional Assistant

The appointment of Louis M. Nims, Michigan WPA administrator, as a special assistant to Howard O. Hunter, midwest regional director for WPA, was announced yesterday by Hunter. Abner E. Larned, director of the Michigan state unemployment compensation commission, was named to succeed Nims in Michigan.

JAPS CONFRONT CHINA WITH FIVE NEW DEMANDS

Want Right to Trade, Develop Resources.

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Dec. 22.—Japan's basic policy in China in the future will be to adjust relations with that country for the purpose of establishing "a new order in east Asia," Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoe announced tonight. The policy includes five demands on China—demands agreed upon in a conference held last month in the presence of Emperor Hirohito, Konoe pointed out.

Premier Konoe.

He enumerated the demands as follows:

FIRST—Establishment of diplomatic relations between China and Manchukuo, Japanese sponsored state in former Chinese Manchuria.

SECOND—Conclusion of an anti-communist agreement between China and Japan.

Demands Freedom of Trade.

THIRD—Stationing of Japanese troops in China and designation of Inner Mongolia as a special anti-communist area.

FOURTH—Recognition of freedom of residence and trade for Japanese in interior China.

FIFTH—Extension to Japan of facilities for the development of China's natural resources.

The premier's statement was interpreted as a move to abolish extra-territoriality in China.

[A nation enjoying extra-territoriality in another has the right to try its own nationals there under its own laws and in its own courts.]

Chinese Gain on Two Fronts.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Chinese today reported their troops had smashed Japanese defenses before Yochow, gateway to unconquered Hunan province.

To the north in Honan province, Chinese spokesmen said their guerrilla fighters had inflicted 2,000 casualties within the past two weeks.

Foreign health officials in Shanghai announced that the number of smallpox cases here had reached epidemic proportions. Statistics of the International settlement and French concession showed that 1,013 Chinese and 85 foreigners, including three Americans, had contracted the disease.

ULSTER JAILS 34 CALLED LEADERS OF TERROR PLOT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 22.—Belfast police, forewarned of a plot by the Irish Republican army to attack prominent Ulster men and wreck Northern Ireland government property, acted swiftly today.

Squads of the Royal Ulster constabulary made simultaneous raids upon a number of houses in rebel quarters and arrested thirty-four leaders of the Irish Republican army, an outlawed organization. The police seized a quantity of seditious literature and documents dealing with activities of the Irish Republican army. Additional arrests are expected.

The ministry of home affairs of Northern Ireland said the I. R. A. planned its attacks during the Christmas and New Year periods.

New Policeman Captures Robber at Jewelry Store

Policeman Edward Kohout, who graduated from the police training school on Dec. 7, made his first arrest last night as a city policeman. He seized Howard Corrs, 24 years old, as Corrs fled from a jewelry store at 4 South State street with several rings and a wrist watch. Corrs told police he came to Chicago recently from Montague, Mich. Kohout formerly was a park policeman.

WOMAN, 80, BURNS TO DEATH; SMOKE ROUTS A SCORE

An aged woman was burned to death early today by fire which broke out in the rear of the top floor of a three story rooming house at 29 South Halsted street. She was identified as Mrs. Ellen Carey.

The fire was confined to the third floor. Smoke, however, spread through the building and drove out more than a score of roomers. Division Marshal Joseph Graham estimated the damage at $5,000.

Investigators were unable to discover the origin of the fire. Trafic in Halsted street was blocked for more than 30 minutes.

After Christmas Dinner—WHAT?

How to solve the evening meal problem after a big Christmas dinner is told today by Mary Meade, Tribune home economics editor.

In her article on page 12 she offers two menus and several other suggestions to help you prepare the evening snack on Christmas day with a minimum of time and trouble.

This interesting feature is only one of several you will find in the food pages of today's Tribune.

GOOD FELLOWS TO BE BEARERS OF GLADNESS TODAY

Army to Leave Laden with Food and Toys.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

The Christmas spirit will begin to reach hundreds of unfortunate families in Chicago today. For this morning from several bases a great army of Good Fellows will leave laden with baskets of food, toys and candy. They'll not return home until they have brought happiness to parents who little dreamed of their visit.

Mildred Douglas.

Bases for the Good Fellows will include Chicago airport, two fraternity houses on campuses at the north and south sides of Chicago, the Chicago Tunnel company warehouse, a base for the Chicago Rotary club distribution of Sunshine-Good Fellow baskets, and the Tribune Tower loading ramp.

Big Party At Airport.

The biggest party will be sponsored by Aviation Good Fellows at the airport. Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Methodist Episcopal church will be the principal speaker.

Miss Mildred Douglas, Chicagoland Music Festival champion baton twirler, will also take part in the ceremony.

The Phi Kappa Psi fraternity will deliver its Good Fellow baskets from chapter houses on the Northwestern university and University of Chicago campuses.

Party for Good Fellows.

F. W. Wasson, who is in charge of the Trafic Club of Chicago Good Fellow basket distribution, promises a roaring good time for those who will help out this morning at the Chicago Tunnel company's warehouse, 754 Jackson boulevard.

J. H. Burke, general manager of the tunnel company, will play Santa to the Good Fellows and will serve them doughnuts and coffee. John Middleton, trafic manager of the Pioneer Paper Stock company, has seen to it that there are toys for every boy and girl on the club's list.

Although the Good Fellow coupon is not reprinted today you can still get a family by calling Superior 0100 and asking for the Good Fellow department.

Plan New Air Route

Dotted line indicates present South Africa-Australia air route. Solid line shows proposed new route.

LONDON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—A southern, polar route which would cut about 10,000 miles from the air journey between South Africa and Australia is suggested in a government white paper, an official report.

To fly from Cape Town to Sydney now, one must travel the length of Africa northward to Alexandria, then follow the empire route via India and Singapore.

The government proposes to ask French permission to use little known Adelie Land, 1,400 miles from the south pole, for a stopoff on the new route. Planes from Africa would follow the southern polar circle route to Adelie Land, then swing northeast to Australia, saving about a week in flying time. The trip via India requires around 12 days.

NATION TRAVELS HOME; TRANSIT LINES JAMMED

From all parts of the country people are on their way home for Christmas. The heavy migration was reflected yesterday in Chicago, crossroads of land and air transportation of the nation.

Every railroad and bus station was crowded. So was Chicago airport. Every form of transportation reported a substantial passenger increase over last year.

Railroads estimated a gain of 5 to 10 per cent. It was said that more than 1,000 extra trains would be operated out of one station alone before the week ended.

HIGH MICHIGAN COURT REBUFFS C.I.O. AGITATOR

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—The Michigan Supreme court today ruled against Lester Washburn, C. I. O. leader, who was the moving spirit in the still reverberating Lansing "labor holiday" of June 7, 1937. He is seeking to avoid paying a fine of $250 or serving ninety days in jail for his part in the paralyzing strike.

The state court denied Washburn an arrest of judgment while he asked the United States Supreme court to review his conviction for interfering with a workman in pursuit of his duties. Unless some new legal block is established before Jan. 4 he must pay the fine and costs totaling $250 on that day or begin serving his sentence. It was indicated that Washburn might ask the United States Supreme court to review the case.

A regional director of the United Mine Workers, C. I. O. affiliate, Washburn called the labor holiday in protest to the arrest of his wife and other pickets who were active in a strike disturbance at the Capital City Wrecking company in the summer of 1937.

Strike on Construction Jobs in Illinois Capitol Spreads

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 22.—(AP)—A labor dispute which caused cessation of construction work at the state capitol spread today to the new archives building. Louis Rodier, head of the building trades council, said he had ordered laborers at the archives building to stop work. Two projects in the statehouse were stopped Tuesday due to a labor dispute over union membership of workers. Rodier said he was attempting to gain an audience with Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes with the hope of effecting a settlement.

QUARRY WORKER KILLED.

Max Bitrush, 44 years old, was crushed to death yesterday while working in a quarry in Hodgkins. He lived at 8122 West 45th street, Lyons.

BOY, 13, EARNING HOLIDAY MONEY, KILLED BY TRAIN

Walter Peterson, 13 years old, 712 North 18th avenue, Melrose Park, worked hard with other boys yesterday distributing circulars to earn money for Christmas.

At the end of the day he, his brother, Donald, 11, and Adolph and Alvin Schuman, 13 years old, twins, of 1110 Broadway, Melrose Park, started home. They took a short cut through the yards of the American Can company, near 21st avenue and St. Charles road, Maywood.

Suddenly there was a scream. Walter fell under a moving freight train in the yards. His legs and left arm were severed. He was taken to the Westlake hospital. He died there last night. The tragedy came just as the Peterson family, in which there are four other children besides Walter, was completing Christmas decorating in their home.

HUNGRY? Oysters today, Mister? Fried? Stewed? On the half shell? . . . or would you like scallops with tartar sauce and French fries? Or delicious, savory filet of sole? Or a BIG jumbo shrimp cocktail? . . . in tasty, tangy, luscious, big, gorgeous fish dinners?

WILSON'S Weekly MEMO

At Christmas, play and make good cheer,
For Christmas comes but once a year.

This Christmas why not arrange things so that you, too, may thoroughly enjoy the real pleasures that Christmas brings. Conserve your energy. Then, when the day actually arrives, you will be able to enter into the festivities with the same zest as the other members of your family. And somewhere, somehow, find a few minutes to be alone, by yourself, and think out what Christmas really means to you and your family and what it gives us all, of lasting value.

ELEANOR LEE WRIGHT
Home Economist, Wilson & Co.

TIME SAVERS

Keep a whole or half Tender Made Ham in your refrigerator during the Christmas holidays. It's ready to serve or just heat and eat for any quick meal.

For Dinner—a thick broiled center slice in 12 to 15 minutes.

For Lunches—sandwich slices, cold meat plates or frying slices.

POOR SCROOGE WAS OUT OF LUCK

After his ghostly visitor had retired, that "clutching, covetous old sinner," Scrooge, really wanted to do right by the Cratchitts, but alas! the times were agin him. True, he sent a boy down the street for the very best turkey the butcher could offer, but where was the Wilson Tender Made Ham to go with it? Almost a hundred years in the future!

• • •

Today we are not so handicapped. When we want to treat our "adopted" families, our friends, those less fortunate than we, or our own family to the very best in the way of a holiday dinner, we include along with the turkey one of those tasty, toothsome, cut-it-with-a-fork Tender Made Hams, boneless—in flavor saving tins, or bone-in, as one prefers.

• • •

Or perhaps it's a Wilson Certified Tender Extra Mild Smoked Ham to be cooked at home instead. A slice of either of these succulent, sugar-sweet hams, topped with a big piece of white Certified Turkey meat, both smothered in giblet gravy—there's a combination of flavor and texture that's fit for an epicure!

THE CHILDREN WILL ENJOY MAKING THESE

Cut 3-inch 5-pointed stars from white cardboard and gild them or paste on gold paper. Apply heat to the bottom of a birthday candle and press down firmly in the center of each star. Write the name across one side of the star. They add a festive note even to a simple family meal.

HEARTY BREAKFAST

Give them a breakfast that will "stay by" them in the long wait for the great feast ahead. Nothing fussy.

Plenty of orange juice, pecan waffles with maple syrup and patties or links of Wilson's Certified Pure Pork Sausage.

Or hot baked apples, frizzled slices of Wilson's Tender Made Ham and Scrambled Certified Eggs, Cinnamon Toast and marmalade.

BY MARY MEADE.

Most of us will declare with a sigh, upon finishing a fine Christmas dinner, that we never want to eat again. Yet, strangely enough, after four or more hours have passed, we feel the need of a "snack."

The problem of what to have for the supper that succeeds Christmas dinner often is perplexing. We hate to serve nothing but scraps from the dinner, yet we don't wish to go to the bother of preparing something entirely new. Perhaps the best solution to the problem is to look ahead to the Yuletide dinner and plan for the tagtail meal, too. It isn't much trouble to throw together a jellied fruit or vegetable salad ring and tuck it away in the refrigerator until Christmas night. Of course, this salad should be different from the one to be served at dinner. If the dinner menu is to include a jellied salad, it will be better to have ready the ingredients for a vegetable or fruit salad, or to prepare a frozen one.

If there is fruit cake on hand, and it isn't served at the big dinner, it will fit very well into the later lunch. If fruit cake is served at dinner, better send out for some ice cream in the afternoon.

Very little food is needed for this snack, and if the salad and dessert are entirely new, it's quite all right to have the rest of the food in leftover form. Cold sliced turkey, goose, chicken, ham, or beef may be arranged attractively on a platter with a garnish of parsley and radishes, for example. Have plenty of bread and butter at hand, and let each person make his own sandwiches. Mayonnaise and chili sauce might be supplied, too. Then with celery and olives, the salad and the simple dessert, there's more than enough food to satisfy even the biggest renewed appetite. Christmas candies and nuts, available in almost every home, probably will find their way to the buffet table, too.

Here are two samples of post-Christmas dinner food. The second plan includes a hot dish, and is particularly appropriate if the Christmas night lunch is served quite late.

I.
Cold Sliced Turkey, Ham, Beef, or Any Other Leftover Meat
Bread Butter Mayonnaise and Chili Sauce
Radishes, Olives, Celery
Jellied Fruit Salad Ring
Thinly Sliced Fruit Cake
Coffee
Nuts and Candies

II.
Cheese Rabbit with Broiled Bacon Strips
Mixed Green Vegetable Salad or Jellied Crisp Vegetable Salad
Holiday Cookies and Other Sweets
Coffee

Another simple solution to the problem is the cheese tray. Simply arrange several types of cheese, with cocktail crackers, pickles, olives, and celery on a tray, and provide plenty of hot coffee and maybe a salad.

TURKEYS TO COST A BIT MORE THAN AT THANKSGIVING

Best Grade 29 to 35 Cents a Pound.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Turkeys for Christmas dinners are costing consumers a few cents a pound more than at Thanksgiving. In shopping centers throughout the city and suburbs most butchers are asking from about 29 to 35 cents a pound for No. 1 turkeys. In a few shops they are as high as 39 cents a pound.

Other grades of turkeys may be bought at several cents a pound under prices asked for the best birds. Although butchers report that advance orders for turkeys have been heavy during the last few days, many housewives are turning to substitute birds or to roasts of beef and pork or leg of lamb. Geese, Long Island ducks, and chickens are all a few cents a pound less than most turkeys.

Leg of Lamb Cheaper.

Leg of lamb is 1 to 2 cents a pound less than last week in most shops, while a few butchers marked up their prices 2 cents a pound. Loin, rib, and shoulder lamb chops are off 2 to 6 cents a pound in several shops. Pork loin roasts are 1 to 2 cents lower in some places and up 2 cents a pound in others.

Pot roasts are down 4 cents a pound and rib roasts are up 2 cents a pound in many shops. Cured ham prices vary this week. Butchers that had hams on sale last week raised their prices 2 cents a pound, while many other shops cut their prices 4 cents a pound.

Christmas foods are being featured in grocery stores. There will be a long string of bargains waiting for the busy shoppers who have delayed their buying for today and tomorrow. The lower priced foods include many of the regular pantry items.

Butter is off 2 to 6 cents and eggs are down 1 to 4 cents a dozen in shopping districts generally. Sugar is 3 to 4 cents a 10 pound bag under last week's prices in most places. The lower grades of coffee have been cut 2 cents a pound in many stores.

Flour Up and Down.

Several merchants have reduced their 24½ pound sacks of flour 6 to 10 cents, while their competitors have in many cases raised their prices 2 to 8 cents. It will pay thrifty housewives to shop for flour this week-end.

Cauliflower is several cents a head cheaper and Brussels sprouts are less. Broccoli has been cut in some green grocery departments. Green onions, rutabagas, and celery are slightly cheaper in some stores. White turnips are less.

French cranberries are high this year as a result of floods in the eastern sections. Canned cranberry sauce is being used as a substitute by many, and the prices asked are considered reasonable.

Comparatively few foods have been advanced in price. Bananas are up 1 cent a pound and carrots 1 cent a bunch in several places. Small sized lemons are 1 to 4 cents a dozen higher and fresh tomatoes are 2 to 4 cents a pound more than a week ago. Most merchants raised the price of spinach.

Green Peas Are Higher.

In most of the stores that are handling green peas this week the prices have been raised. Some stores are not offering green peas because they are scarce and high.

Most live stock and wholesale meat prices are higher than last week at the stockyards, according to John Campbell, federal market reporter. The better grades of beef animals went up 50 to 75 cents a hundred pounds to a top price of $13.50. Wholesale cuts of beef from these animals sold steady to 50 cents a hundred higher.

Farmers were paid 25 to 35 cents a hundred more for hogs. Top price was $7.75 a hundred, paid yesterday. Pork cuts sold steady to 50 cents a hundred pounds higher on the wholesale market.

Fat lamb prices were about the same as last week, with a top of $9.50 a hundred. Wholesale cuts of dressed lamb went up 50 cents to $1 a hundred pounds.

There were comparatively few changes in wholesale prices of fresh vegetables during the week.

CHEF RECTOR TO TELL FAMOUS RECIPE FOR PRESSED WILD DUCK

Famous among gourmets who frequented Rector's café was the ritual observed in the preparation and serving of wild duck. On the menu were canvasbacks and redheads, which were the most popular and expensive, and cornfed mallard. The roasted fowl was borne ceremoniously to the table on a large silver platter, but only the breast was served to the guest. The remainder, including the raw liver, went through a duck press and the juice extracted was used for the sauce.

In his column in the woman's section of next Sunday's TRIBUNE George Rector tells the story of Wild Duck à la Presse in detail and reveals the secret of its preparation.

Fried hominy always accompanied Rector's wild duck. The recipe for this also will appear in the famous chef's column, along with a recipe for Cumberland sauce, recommended if you have wilk duck but don't have a duck press.

A TURKEY REHASH MINUS THE HASH: BOON TO MANKIND

If there is turkey for Christmas dinner, the whole family knows what will be on the menu next day, but it needn't know just how it will be served. There should be some surprise in the turkey's encore appearance. One unusual and very delicious way of serving any leftover fowl is to make it into a rice custard.

TURKEY CUSTARDS.
[Serves six.]

1½ cups of cooked turkey, or other fowl, cut in small pieces
1½ cups of cooked and seasoned rice
Salt and paprika
2 cups milk
4 eggs, beaten
Nutmeg

Combine fowl and rice; season to taste with salt and paprika. Add combined eggs and milk. Heat to scalding in top of double boiler. Pour into buttered custard cups. Sprinkle tops lightly with nutmeg. Set custard cups in hot water and bake in a moderate [350 degrees] oven until set. Serve hot.

960 MEN DISCOVER HOW TO PAY LESS FOR HOLIDAY WHISKEY!

Out of 1,000 Men—960 Found OLD QUAKER—Now 3 Years Old—Rich, Mild and Deliciously Smooth—Yet This Famous Whiskey Sells at a Rock-Bottom Price!

"That's wonderful whiskey!" is what Gus Maese, Philadelphia Tailor, said to Investigator Anderson, after trying 3-year Old Quaker.

"Mighty fine bouquet—sure slides down mighty easy!" is the way F. R. Marsh, Salesman, commented on Old Quaker.

"Very nice aroma; a flavor as good as the best!" exclaimed T. B. Wilson, Druggist, after sampling Old Quaker.

• Write down the names of men you give whiskey for the holidays! Add the number of bottles you buy for your own holiday hospitality! Now—knock off a dollar for each quart—and total your savings! Here's why we make such a statement:—

We went to 1,000 men, asked them to try Old Quaker—now 3 years old—and give us their opinion. We said, "Smell it! Taste it! Swallow a drink of it! Then tell us what you honestly think!"

None of those men knew the name, age or price of the whiskey he was sampling—yet 960 out of the 1,000 praised the rich flavor, the mild and mellow smoothness of Old Quaker. This confirms our belief that 3-year Old Quaker rivals many more expensive brands.

This Means Much To You

The evidence of 960 out of 1,000 men certainly warrants your making the same simple trial of Old Quaker. If you agree with their judgment about the excellence of Old Quaker, you can probably cut your bills for holiday whiskey a third—without cutting corners on quality! Act on this holiday tip today!

"This is my type of straight whiskey!" is what J. C. McWilliams, Atlantic City Accountant, said about Old Quaker.

The Inspector behind every bottle is your Assurance of Quality.

STOP SIGN CHEATS SHOW NEED FOR TRAFIC POLICING

More Than Half of Drivers Run Through Markers.

BY HAL FOUST.

Stop-sign cheating at seven dangerous street intersections was tallied yesterday by Harold Moore, engineer for the Chicago Motor club, as evidence of Chicago's need for a city-wide trafic patrol such as has been recommended to the city council for the 1939 budget. In two hours and twenty-one minutes of observations 20 dangerous violations were noted among 680 automobile drivers who approached the signs.

In sixteen minutes at Chicago avenue and Oakley boulevard an even 100 vehicles approached the stop signs facing east and west trafic. Twenty-three of these came to a stop, 5 when there was no cross trafic and 18 when north and south trafic forced them to do so.

Seventy-seven of 100 Break Law.

Seventy cars eased through the stop signs at less than eight miles an hour, a violation not tabulated as dangerous in this study. Seven cars, an average of 1 every 137 seconds, passed the signs at perilous speeds of between eight and twenty miles an hour.

The accident record at this intersection shows that these stop sign violations are hazardous. In twelve months there were 23 crashes, 19 of them caused by failure of a driver to heed the stop command.

In twenty-three minutes at 35th street and Western avenue the motor club observer counted 101 cars approaching stop signs. Six rode through at speeds between eight and twenty miles an hour and 23 passed the signs at speeds of less than eight miles an hour. There have been 26 accidents at this intersection in the last year, 12 caused by sign violations.

More Stop Sign Violations.

In seven minutes at Drexel and Hyde Park boulvards 55 cars approachd stop signs and only 8 came to a halt. Six passed between eight and twenty miles an hour and 41 slackened to less than eight miles an hour.

Other intersections where tallies were made were: Racine avenue and Washington boulevard, Kildare avenue and Washington boulevard, California avenue and Jackson boulevard, California avenue and 59th street. In addition to the 20 cars that went through stop signs at speeds of between eight and twenty miles an hour, a summary of the 680 driver performances shows 87 making a stop with no approaching cross trafic, 233 making a stop with cross trafic approaching, and 340 sliding through at less than eight miles an hour.

WALKS IN FRONT OF AUTO IN SNOW AND LOSES LIFE

Pedestrian, 65, Killed Near His Home.

Apparently blinded by the snow, Andrew Paus, 65 years old, 3201 Archer avenue, walked into the path of an automobile almost in front of his home last night, and was fatally injured. The driver, John Mazer, 30, of 4922 South Keeler avenue, took him to the People's hospital where he died of a skull fracture. Mazer was held for the inquest by Brighton Park police.

Miss Catherine Harper, 64, was fatally injured by an automobile at Washington boulevard and Aberdeen street. She lived at 233 North Ada street. The driver, Louis Stadthakis of 1519 Warren boulevard, was held by Desplaines street police for the inquest today.

Dies of Auto Injuries.

Edward Pedersen, 50, died in the County hospital of injuries suffered Dec. 11 when his automobile collided with another at Augusta boulevard and Cicero avenue. He lived at 2820 North avenue.

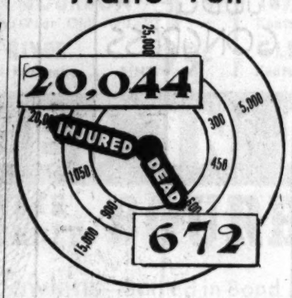
Andrew Wojcik, 54, of 3439 South Justine street, died in County hospital from injuries suffered in an automobile collision at Grand and Ashland avenues on Dec. 11. Wojcik was riding in a car driven by Andrew Toman, 3822 South Winchester avenue, which collided with a truck driven by Alfredo Greco, 415 North Paulina street. Toman was charged with reckless driving.

Killed as Truck Hits Tree.

Elmer Schultz, 23, of 3130 North Lawndale avenue, was killed when his truck crashed into a tree on highway No. 12, near Prairie du Sac, Wis., and caught fire.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 877 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 672 were killed in Chicago, where 20,044 were injured in the same period.

THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1938 Trafic Toll



More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

ONCE HOMELESS WAIF TO INHERIT GOULD MILLIONS

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Finley J. Shepard Jr., whose parentage has been a mystery since he was abandoned at the age of 4 years on the steps of St. Patrick's cathedral, will soon inherit a substantial part of the Jay Gould fortune.

At midnight on Sept. 17, 1914, a policeman walking his Fifth avenue beat found the child. Authorities were never able to identify him, and he was placed in a home. In 1915 the former Helen Gould, who had married Finley J. Shepard, adopted him and named him for her husband. Six years ago he met Ann Loraine Sheldon of Yonkers, while both were studying music in Vienna, and they were married.

Mrs. Shepard, who died yesterday in Margaretville, N. Y., inherited a sixth of the 85 million dollar fortune amassed by Jay Gould. The man who was once a homeless waif will share this with his adopted sisters, Dorothy and Helen Gould, daughters of Frank J. Gould, Mrs. Shepard's brother.

His Yule Gift: Doesn't Go to Jail Till After Christmas

As a Christmas present, Joseph Saccheri, 18 years old, 1123 Ohio street, was permitted yesterday to wait until Jan. 3 to begin serving a sentence of ten days in the Bridewell for leaving the scene of an accident in which three persons were injured. Judge Joseph A. Graber, who sentenced Saccheri in Boys' court, commented, "The Christmas season is a time for charity." Saccheri's driving privileges were suspended for one year.

UNCOVER DETAILS OF $100,000 RACE BETTING SWINDLE

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Details of a $100,000 race track swindle, in which a gang made bogus bets for the victims, were revealed today with the opening here of a sealed federal indictment charging mail fraud and conspiracy against the chief of the district attorney's detectives in Corpus Christi, Tex., and eighteen others.

Most of the frauds, according to the government, were committed in the Nueces hotel, at Corpus Christi, where Rufus Oliver was house detective. Victims included tourists from this city and several states.

Whenever a restless stranger inquired of Oliver about having some innocent sport, the latter would suggest race betting. However, when the same stranger would appear at the district attorney's office to complain of being gypped in a race track swindle, Detective Chief Oliver would say, "G'wan, get out of town, you gambler, you."

Robert Kohler, who has been convicted of swindling in New York; Jack Reynolds of Hot Springs, and sixteen others in addition to Oliver were indicted.

OPIE READ NOTES 86TH BIRTHDAY; FINDS LIFE GOOD

Opie Read, dean of Chicago's writers and a friend of Mark Twain, Eugene Field, and George Ade, settled comfortably in his rocking chair yesterday and remarked: "Life is good." Yesterday was Opie's 86th birthday.

Opie Read.

In a philosophic mood, he said: "People who wail that the world is getting worse don't know the history of the race. They talk about the shallowness and frivolity of youth, but youth is more intelligent and thoughtful than it ever was."

He now lives at 5000 Harper avenue with the family of the late Ben King, one of the star contributors' to Opie's famous publication, the Arkansas Traveler. He takes a daily walk, reads a good deal, and still enjoys a game of stud poker. Recently he completed his latest work, "The Autobiography of the Devil—Satan's Side of It" which will be published early next year.

ALD. KONKOWSKI, AID POST BONDS IN JOB SCANDAL

Ald. Frank E. Konkowski [26th] and his political aid, Stephen Idzikowski, posted bonds of $10,000 each yesterday after two indictments charging them with conspiracy to operate a confidence game were returned before Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley in Criminal court.

Ald. Konkowski.

The indictments resulted from the recent investigation of the police civil service list scandal. Four other men and a woman also were indicted on charges of operating a confidence game. The complaints against Ald. Konkowski and his aid were made by three young men who charged they paid $600 for assurances that they would get jobs on the police force. When the list was published, however, their names did not appear.

THE FIRST CITY.

We have been checking up this week on the platform for Illinois and Chicago printed at the head of this page. We have been trying to appraise such progress as has been achieved in 1938 toward the specified goals. Today we come to the third plank, "Make Chicago the First City in the World."

Earlier generations of Chicagoans would have regarded such a plank as superfluous. They knew that Chicago was destined to become the largest city in the world in point of population and wealth and they intended to make it the first city in every other worthy respect. They may have been naive in their civic patriotism; they may have underrated the difficulties and they may have allowed their enthusiasm to run hog wild, but it was impossible to behave otherwise in a community so overflowing with vital energy.

Chicago's growth was halted only momentarily by the great fire. The expansion continued at an unprecedented rate until the restrictions on immigration were imposed. Men's imagination kept pace with the physical growth of the city. We built the first skyscraper; we laid out the first comprehensive boulevard system; we were the first of the modern industrial cities to have a city plan; we achieved a great university, a great orchestra, a distinguished art museum, and a galaxy of other institutions of the sort in an incredibly short time.

This year has seen few if any achievements of that order. The population continues to grow, but enthusiasm has not kept pace with it. This is curious because today we have a more solid basis for faith in the future than earlier generations could claim. Their speculative hopes in many particulars have been realized. We live in the world's richest agricultural region and we have incomparable facilities for heavy and light manufactures. We are the hub of the world's most efficient transportation system by air, land, and water.

The spread eagle civic patriotism for which Chicagoans used to be kidded had its uses. There was no cult of the second best in those days. We were going to be tops in everything, and as long as that spirit persisted the achievements kept piling up to astonish the world.

Confidence in the future of the city formerly was founded on the excitement of living in a community which was growing so rapidly. Times have changed. The depression and the destructive political doctrines which flowed from it have discouraged constructive effort. But fundamentally the outlook is anything but discouraging. Geography has destined Chicago for leadership in industry and commerce. It remains for us to build intelligently for the future that can be ours if we take full advantage of our opportunities.

We cannot expect and we do not need to recapture the emotional enthusiasm of earlier generations, but we can achieve a determination to reach first place in all the arts of civilization, founded on an intelligent appraisal of our resources and the best means of developing them. Perhaps the improvement in local transportation which is now started will help reawaken the people of Chicago to the potential greatness of their city.

FEAR OVER ENGLAND.

Mr. Chamberlain has not as yet obtained a final vote of confidence for his policy of appeasement, although he has won on every test and his opponents cannot present alternatives which would confuse him. The person chiefly to be appeased, Mr. Hitler, does not give Mr. Chamberlain much assistance, exhibiting too much truculence for a good neighbor. The success of the Chamberlain peace would be proved not so much by what immediately followed Munich but by the future conduct of the Nazis. Thus far Mr. Chamberlain has not lost. This is not a red Christmas in England. His immediate purpose, however humiliating his opponents may think his methods were, has been attained.

His greatest political strength must be contained in the feeling of the English people that, however little they liked the submission of the British government to the ultimatum of the dictator, they will not spend the holidays in fox holes and that they are not drawing their Christmas breath through the semi-strangulation of gas masks.

No doubt there was a great deal of advantage taken politically of the preparations England made in late September for the German air raids which were hourly expected. Few governments have had so tremendous a power exercised in their favor at a critical moment as was presented in support of Mr. Chamberlain when he traveled forth and back in his negotiations with Hitler. The English now imagine that their September experiences were equaled only once before in the history of the island and that the previous experience had nothing of the terrifying vividness of their own.

Only when England awaited the coming of the armada and the Spanish inquisition do Englishmen believe that the national apprehension could have been anywhere near as oppressive as it was during the days and nights less than three months ago when the people were being fitted with gas masks in village churches and schools, when trenches and bomb proofs were being dug throughout the country, when people working in the fields and walking in the streets or gathering in the markets involuntarily kept looking into the sky, and when at night they sat about their harths listening for any sound which might indicate that there were motors overhead.

For countryside and city this was a strange terror overshadowing all familiar objects and permeating the accustomed routine of the day. The people did not cry out to influence Chamberlain. They did not ask that he submit. But they were in dread as naturally they would be. The remembrance of that and the sense of security now in the holidays must be the greatest guaranty Chamberlain's government can have. Hitler's bluff might have been called. So also might Chamberlain's.

SOAKING, BUT NOT THE RICH.

John L. Lewis, as dictator of the miners' union, has just ordered that a special assessment be levied on the membership of that union during the month of January. The assessment in the amount of a dollar per member is in addition to other special assessments and the regular dues. The only exceptions are those who get less than five days' work during the month.

The money is to be used to replenish the treasury of the C. I. O., which has run dry, despite the fact that more than 2 million dollars of the mine workers' money has already been poured into it. That 2 million was in addition to the half million of the union money which was used in the campaign to reëlect Mr. Roosevelt.

One labor union has in the past made contributions to another labor union and no outsider had any basis for criticism. But there is definite public interest in a union's operations when it is conducted as a racket. That is what the U. M. W. A. is under Lewis.

Having decided that it was desirable to levy an assessment upon the members of his union, Mr. Lewis did not call a convention to sanction the levy as he would be required to do in some unions. Nor does he submit the matter to a referendum of the membership as is a more general requirement. Mr. Lewis employs the check-off in his union. No one has a chance to say no or pay late. Dues are stopped at the source, as they say in England.

What this means is that Mr. Lewis, having decided to pour another half million into his C. I. O. venture, simply tells the coal companies to abstract that amount from the pay envelopes of the miners next month. The only protest that can be made against this practice is at the national convention, and Mr. Lewis' conduct of these conventions has been notorious. Intrenched through the control of the treasury and the taxing machinery, all of the officers are his yes-men and he is able to populate a convention with men ready to do his strong arm work. In an article in Fortune several years ago the conduct of a Lewis convention was described as follows: "Two rebels named McCarthy and Manley got into a Scranton convention in 1923. Lewis introduced them as 'industrial buzzards.' 'I want to warn you against these carrion birds.' The convention seethed while the chair marked oratorical time. 'I now ask,' he wound up in a thunderous calm, 'that you remove your carcasses without the door.' McCarthy and Manley were given the bum's rush to the courthouse yard and there beaten up."

The checkoff as it is applied by Lewis is anti-social. It makes a labor union head a dictator, able to employ funds for any purpose which suits his fancy. An amendment to the corrupt practices act is needed which will make it impossible for any labor union to subsidize any political party to the extent that Lewis did with miners' union funds in 1936. But something more is needed. The checkoff system should be declared to be illegal, and such other legislation should be enacted as is necessary to establish and preserve democratic control in labor organizations.

PAX PAN-AMERICANO.

Few illusions will find any substance at a Pan-American conference, and if few are entertained all is well. The twenty-one republics in their convention find their chief bond in the fact that they are in one hemisphere. That is a slender bond strained by varieties of ambitions and jealousies. As republics, many of them need charitable construction of the word, and as democracies, their people may be said to dwell mostly in hope.

The United States concedes both the republic and the democracy. Dictatorships are ignored, and the pretense is that all the hemisphere rests securely upon the foundation of constitutions derived from the work of the American founders. Within obvious limitations the assemblage of nations does, indeed, fairly well. Difficulties have not increased with years. As the world goes, they are successful in keeping the peace. In recent years this is no small achievement. The United States painstakingly tries to divest itself of the appearance of an imperialistic power. It has succeeded at some sacrifice of the rights of its own citizens.

Expropriated property is part of the price paid. South America has a problem of what Europe calls minorities and America calls immigrants. It is the policy of the Americas to keep to the status of immigrants the peoples who have sought a new country of their own free will, leaving the other one behind them.

The particular concern of the whole hemisphere is that none of the nations should make an agreement with a European power which would graft a foreign alliance on this side of the world. This, although improbable, is not impossible. It is within the sovereign right of any one of the countries to do so, and an advantageous alliance might be eagerly sought in Europe. The show of family interest, as at Lima, may reduce the probability of such an event.

COMBINATION BREAKFAST.

"What do you want?" demanded Mr. Newlywed. "Breakfast or work?"

"Both," replied the tramp.

Mr. Newlywed produced a large pile of his wife's home made bread. "Eat that!" he exclaimed, "and you'll have both."—Stray Stories.

LETTER TO THE FAMILY.

Two days more, and then—"Silent Night," the Star, the Tree, and the great communion of kindliness. But there is no need for us to enlarge upon this theme, for the column's poets are saying it beautifully and amusingly; on Sunday, by special arrangement, they will have all of the space. In the meantime the Linemaster's mail bag is overflowing with Christmas cards from his contributors, for which he wishes to say a few words of appreciation.

For originality, we will match our collection of cards, not yet complete, against any other man's in town. We view these messages with parental pride, and boast that we are rearing an exceptionally bright family. For example, here is Marjorie F. W., who takes a plain white card, pastes a silver star in one corner, and then neatly letters in red ink:

Christmas comes but once a year—
Once is quite a-plenty.
I'd be nuts did it appear
Fifteen times or twenty,
Thinking up that many ways
To wish you Merry Christmas Days!

Incunabulus, humorist in archaic printing, also makes his own card. He uses a clipping of one of his contributions, with proper Line o' Type and TRIBUNE captions. Folded inside is a page from a book printed in 1802, illustrating his technique in the use of the long "s." Beverley Githens, Clara Edmunds-Hemingway, Elsie Melchert Fowler, and many others send rimes of their own.

We have known Old Scrooges who sneered at Christmas cards as synthetic expressions of sentiment bought at random. This collection would convert them.

Was His Middle Name Angel?

A Christmas girl named Carol testifies that she once knew a Christmas boy named Herald, but he couldn't sing.

SPELL OF THE SHINING TREE.

The Christmas tree sheds lovely, fairy light,
Making the room all golden, jewel bright!
I sit alone, worshiping, very still,
And shut my eyes to drink it in until
I feel it, like a fountain, covering me
With sparkles, falling softly, silently.

All about is fresh, clean scent of pine,
And shadows, wavering with the candle shine.
There is no sound, yet echoing thru the air
Is music, high and clear, and holy fair!
I do not move, lest I should break the spell,
And lose the message that the angels tell!

If I could keep this magic in my heart,
Or even just one shining, lovely part!
Oh, through the din of careless, hurried way,
And the confusion of my busy day,
God, let me feel the peace of this small tree,
The benediction that it breathes to me.

Dickens in a Drug Store.

Here is a glimpse of Augustus N. Dickens, brother of Charles Dickens and former Chicagoan, as recorded in the unpublished memoirs of a clerk in a drug store which he frequented in 1862:

"Mr. Dickens was a pleasant man, quite companionable, but had no superior mental training or endowments. While he had a store of pleasing anecdotes to relate, none of them that I ever heard indelicate, yet at times his gayety seemed forced."

The drug store was H. H. Mottram's, at Randolph and Halsted streets, a rendezvous for men of English birth. [Dr. Barclay Wilkinson contributes this notation from his father's papers.]

"December's Perfect Weather."

December isn't a month of weather—it's a month of spirit. It isn't found in the bare trees and sear bushes—it's found in the eyes of children and the faces of the older children, their parents. Little children's eyes shine with such eager anticipation as only the undisappointed can know. Big children's faces soften with the fineness of a world that recognizes brotherliness as a virtue, that encourages childish fun and gayety. Sunny skies or gray are just a background for the gayety, the love, the kindliness that shines from every sparkling face you pass. The only part of December weather that is important is the night sky, scintillating with a myriad stars that put our earthly decorations to shame—and the one star, brighter, more beautiful than the rest, that is the heart of Christmas. If there is snow there is an added lift, but even the dreariest day cannot damp that December ardor that is the Christmas spirit.

FOREVER IN THE HEART.

Christmas is a cumulative joy;
It is not fashioned of one day alone.
It is the Star, the Song, the tree, the toy
Of every early Christmas we have known;
It is the reverence deepening through the years
For Child and manger; it is loves that strengthen
By the harth; it is the thankful tears
For peace and handclasps as life's shadows lengthen.
O, Christmas never is one time apart;
It is all Christmases within the heart.

A Shrine for Humorists.

The original letter and envelope which carried the original valve handle wheeze [12-7-'38] have been on exhibition for years, framed under glass, in a summer resort operated by Allen Chesbro at South Haven, Mich. [David R. Henderson, informant.]

MESSAGE IN TWEED.

A sang o' hope that stirs the hearts
O' men the auld earth o'er;
A licht that breaks on troubled lands
An' shines frae shore tae shore.

A word divine, a treasured truth—
No gold cud ever buy it;
A plain, straight path beneath oor feet;
Mon, wad we only try it!

M'Tavish.

The philosophers who are always croaking about "the lost frontier" ought to take a look at the hardy salesmen who are camping out these nights on vacant lots to guard their stock of Christmas trees. The old spirit survives in spite of the dismal forebodings of the sociologists.

SMOKING AND THE HEART.

SMOKING is a habit and physicians from the time of Sir Walter Raleigh have thundered periodically against its supposedly pernicious effects. Every now and then some scientist would brave popular opinion and rail against the weed with sufficient data to convince his hearers that its use is anything but healthful. But we have condoned its presence because of pleasurable and sedative attributes.

In a recent report H. L. Segal of the University of Rochester calls attention to the fact that perhaps—with certain persons—excessive fatigue may be laid on the doorstep of nicotine. Two of his patients had complained of an unwonted sense of exhaustion which had persisted for several years and one of the sufferers noted that his pulse increased markedly whenever he smoked a cigaret. Withdrawal was followed by improvement in both instances as well as by a gain in weight.

This author also raises the question, "What products of tobacco smoke are harmful?" He lists the ordinary constituents such as pyridine, ammonia, carbon monoxide, and nicotine. It is acknowledged that both ammonia and pyridine will irritate mucous membranes. Thus the morning cough so common to addicts is explained as well as the occasional raw feeling in the throat and on the tongue.

We know also that carbon monoxide and nicotine may be taken into the circulation and we must look to these compounds especially for any decline in general health. A cigar will yield from six to eight times as much carbon monoxide as a pipe or a cigaret. Fortunately, very little of this gas is absorbed in the mouth and if inhalation is not practiced this substance may be ruled out of consideration. The small percentage in a cigaret would need to be inhaled for hours on end to bring about much damage. Nicotine remains, therefore, as the main poison, as it may force the pulse rate up, raise the blood pressure, and lower the temperature of the skin.

Segal investigated several well known holders each provided with a filter, and records were made of the performance of the heart before and after using. Regular cigarets smoked with or without filters showed practically identical jumps in the rate of the cardiac organ. While the device will catch a portion of the nicotine—perhaps more than fifty per cent — nevertheless enough gets through to bring about the reaction upon the heart.

Comparison was then made with tobacco from which it was alleged the nicotine had been removed largely. There was but little contrast between the two types. The pulse rose 23 beats per minute with ordinary brands and 16 beats in those supposedly deprived of the toxic element.

But there is a wide variation between inhaling and merely puffing. Mouth smokers can absorb only from the mucous membrane of the oral cavity while inhalers subject the extensive surfaces of the air sacs of the lungs to the irritant. With an approximate climb of 20 beats per minute in the latter there was but 4 in the puffers.

We may conclude then that there is only one factor in tobacco that needs to be considered—namely, nicotine, and there is a difference of more than 50 per cent in the absorption of this poison between puffing and inhaling. Cigar and pipe smokers rarely follow the latter custom. It should be pointed out that in all experiments, individuals over 50 years of age responded to a lesser degree than did those in the twenties and thirties. The reason apparently is that the arteries are less elastic in the oldsters, hence they may react sluggishly.

There must be far more strain upon the circulation from incessant smoking as contrasted with intermittent or occasional indulgence. To oblige the pump to work more rapidly than it should is unhygienic. The answer seems to be that the quantity employed is probably the controling feature. A reasonable ration may be allowed, particularly if no undue signs of irritability ensue. Although the susceptibility is not always the same in all persons, we cannot close our eyes to the influence upon the blood vessels and the heart muscle. Take plenty of time to burn your Christmas cigars.

EXCELLENT.

Mrs. J. writes: My husband has been taking treatment for syphilis for three years. My blood tests are negative. What chance have I of bearing a healthy baby?

REPLY.

Excellent. Your husband is to be congratulated for remaining under treatment for so long, as he is now unable to convey the infection.

MAY NEED VITAMIN B.

Mrs. V. writes: My 17 year old son has no appetite—no matter how appealing the meals. Do you think he needs vitamin preparations?

REPLY.

Possibly vitamin B. This usually increases appetite and enables one to gain weight.

USUALLY.

Mrs. J. writes: Is a 7 months' baby kept in an incubator for two months?

REPLY.

Usually for approximately a two month's period. The feeding problem is of the greatest importance and demands superior nursing skill.

WADSWORTH FOR LEADER.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—The selection of minority leader of the national house of representatives is of outstanding importance to the country as a whole as well as of vital concern to the Republican party. It is so important that no reason other than experience, capacity, judgment, and courage of the man selected should be considered. James W. Wadsworth of New York, with a splendid record of membership in both the United States senate and house of representatives, stands out as a commanding figure for the position. The Republican representation in the next congress is large enough to make it a responsible factor in the shaping of legislation and the position of minority leader demands the best that can be offered.

Today Mr. Wadsworth is one of the ablest and most distinguished figures in public life, the highest type of citizenship. His record indicates firm belief that the checks and balances of our constitution and our system of private enterprise is the foundation of our American democracy, and his selection at this time will serve notice to a confused electorate that sound politics and sound economics will rule in Washington. His name means constructive leadership.

ITALY'S REPLY TO FRANCE.

Oak Park, Ill., Dec. 20.—Answering the letter, "Warning to Il Duce," recently in your column, I would like to ask the writer:

Was not Napoleon, with his Frenchmen, defeated?

In 1870 were not the French soldiers defeated by the Germans?

In 1914 did not France beg Italy to remain neutral to prevent the downfall of Paris?

Were not the Italians the first to turn the tide of the war when they defeated and disbanded the Austro-Hungarian army in 1918?

Did "the finest soldiers in the world," as he refers to the Frenchmen, ever occupy a square foot of German soil at any time during the world war, or does he consider Le Marne German territory?

Did France's soldiers win the world war or maybe the allies including the Italian soldiers and the United States army? Regarding his warning to "Il Duce and his minions" history will determine the future.

So as he would say, "Viva l'Italia" and, if he allows me, "Hurrah for the United States."

HARRY LENTINI,

SMOKE, DUST, FUMES.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—Why is it that complaints to the city smoke and health departments have no effect? Residents of North Mayfair have called frequently about the asphalt plant located in the 5000 block on Elston avenue. We are told when we call that the matter will be investigated and that's as far as it goes.

The smoke, dust and fumes continue to pour from their chimneys, enveloping the surrounding residential area in a sickening, noxious cloud. No letup all day.

Something wrong somewhere. Why?

TAXES AND TAX SHARKS.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—As to delinquent taxes on real estate why not be fair? Why penalties in such times? Why not collect the money in long time annual instalments without penalties—in both general taxes and special assessments? A law for such can be passed at Springfield. Or is it wished to treat the balance of those who still hold on to their real estate as the receivers and the Skarda law treated those already frozen out by friendly judges allowing lawyers outrageous fees, and thus wiping out the equities of both owners and bondholders? Perhaps some people prefer to have the tax sharks in business again.

ELI WILSON.

LOCAL RELIEF FOR CHICAGOANS.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—As to your editorial, "More Light on Relief," why don't you look facts in the face? We are responsible for distressed Chicago citizens. We are not responsible for citizens of Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Alabama, Louisiana, and all points of the compass. If Chicago employers had hired only Chicagoans and federal funds were used to employ only citizens of the community to which they were allotted there would be no 66,000 certified for whom there are no funds or jobs.

Let those 66,000 raise the hell they should and they will get somewhere.

C. L. HYNES.

THIS COMPLICATES MATTERS.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—I would go G. Gass, who suggests telephone slug slot machines, one better. Why not have slot machines into which you insert your nickel, obtaining therefore a slug. Then insert the slug into another slot machine, obtaining therefore the telephone slug. The purpose of the first slug would be, of course, to eliminate the chances of any one putting phoney nickels into the telephone slug slot machines. G. H. C.

REAL ESTATE SALE.

Calumet City, Ill., Dec. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Eleven years ago we bought real estate in Indiana and signed mortgage notes. We sold this property and remained on the notes. The man who bought defaulted and [1] action was taken on us seven years ago for deficiency judgment. We were in Illinois at the time and the case was closed and the property sold. The judgment was on the property.

2. As long as the property has been sold and we move back to Indiana, can they open up this judgment again?

3. Would the Indiana courts have notified us if there was a personal judgment against us when the case was closed?

4. How many years does it take for notes securing a mortgage to be outlawed in Indiana?

5. Do you think it is now safe to own real estate again in Indiana?

6. Can the concern who holds the notes enter a credit on back of notes and thus renew the notes without our knowledge?

C. E.

1. If you were not present in the jurisdiction in which the proceedings were brought then, in general, a deficiency decree could not be brought against you. You do not make clear where the proceedings were brought. We would assume that the proceedings would be brought where the land is, and if you were in Illinois then presumably there is no deficiency decree against you. You might verify this by having the records examined.

2. Depends on the amount realized at the foreclosure sale and on other facts that are not before us.

3. No, but that court would have no jurisdiction in absence of service of summons on you, as previously stated.

4. The Indiana limitation period on a note is ten years.

5. We would advise you first to have an attorney examine the record of the court proceedings.

6. No.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SHARE IN ESTATE.

Chicago, Dec. 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father and mother are dead; mother passed away eight years ago leaving a home. There are nine children, each being mentioned in the will to receive an equal share. One of my brothers is named [1] administrator.

The home is rented and in eight years we have never received any statement as to what became of money collected for rent.

2. How often is he supposed to send out a statement to the heirs?

3. If the greater number of children want what money there is on hand divided will he have to do same? Also, if we wish property to be repaired and put up for sale must he do same?

4. If he has loaned money out on interest will we have to wait until all notes are due before he can collect?

A. J. H.

1. The administration should be closed shortly after the expiration of the year allowed for filing claims. The administrator as such does not necessarily have anything to do with the real estate.

2. If your brother is in charge of the real estate it is by virtue of an express or implied agreement and his obligation to account depends on the agreement.

3. Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree, any one of them is entitled to force a division or a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the proceeds of sale.

4. The propriety of his making such loans would depend on the agreement under which he is acting.

F. O. J.

It is understood from the facts stated that the inquirer was over 21 years of age at the time his father was naturalized. If that is the case, he did not become a citizen through such naturalization.

OFFICE WIFE GETS 14 TO 15 YRS. FOR KILLING LAWYER

Court Denies a Motion for New Trial.

St. Joseph, Mich., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—The calm demeanor which Mrs. Fern Patricia Dull displayed during the nine days she was on trial for murder did not desert her tonight as she sat alone in her jail cell and meditated upon the prison term she must serve. She was sentenced this morning to from fourteen to fifteen years.

She expressed bitterness against those who testified against her, but she seemed to view with a philosophic quietude the fate that overtook her for shooting to death William Holbrook, a lawyer, with whom she had spent eight years as "wife" and secretary.

Recommends Maximum Term.

"I sentence you," Judge Mark D. Taylor formally told her, "to the Detroit house of correction for a maximum term of fifteen years and a minimum term of fourteen years. I recommend the full maximum term."

Fifteen years is the longest sentence possible under Michigan law for manslaughter, of which Mrs. Dull was convicted by a jury last night.

Her attorneys, the bearded H. T. Dewhirst of the House of David and George B. Gould of Kalamazoo, immediately began discussing the possibilities of an appeal to the state Supreme court.

Mother Grief-Stricken.

Back in her cell after being sentenced, Mrs. Dull had numerous visitors during the day. Among them were her aged mother, Mrs. May Baker, of Kimmel, Ind., whose sobs contrasted markedly with Mrs. Dull's "poker face" when the verdict was read, and her son, Lester, 17 years old, and daughter, Gloria, 16.

Mrs. Dull said she felt sorry for her family but she wasted no pity on herself. She was more interested in castigating prosecution witnesses who, she said, "told lies upon which she was crucified."

"I told nothing but the truth on the witness stand," she declared. "After hearing them testify to absolute lies, I wonder who committed the greater crime."

The attorney was slain on Oct. 17.

OBITUARIES

Charles R. Adams.

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Charles Remington Adams, 56 years old, business manager of the Syracuse Herald since May, 1926, died suddenly this afternoon. Mr. Adams formerly was chairman of the Republican central committee of the state of Minnesota. He was associated with the Minneapolis Journal from 1908 to 1918, first as managing editor and later as assistant to the publisher. For two years prior to coming to Syracuse he was vice president of the Duluth [Minn.] News-Tribune.

James H. Hatch.

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—James H. Hatch, 69 years old, former president of the Upholsterers International union, [A. F. of L.], died last night. Mr. Hatch was elected international president of the union in 1907 and was reëlected continuously until 1921, when he announced his intention to retire. In 1931, however, he again was elected and served until 1937, when he finally retired. Born in Montreal, he came to this country as a youth and was for a time a resident of Denver and Chicago.

Hiram B. Rairden.

Funeral services for Hiram B. Rairden, an official of the Consumers company, will be held at 1:30 p. m. today in the Masonic temple, 912 North LaSalle street. Mr. Rairden died Wednesday in Woodlawn hospital after a short illness. He was 83 years old. He was born in Maine and came to Chicago during the civil war. He was a 32d degree Mason and a member of the Consistory, the Shrine, and the Knights Templar. Mr. Rairden lived in the Wedgewood hotel, 6410 Woodlawn avenue.

Edward Foote.

Funeral services for Policeman Edward Foote, who died in St. Anne's hospital Wednesday after a heart attack, will be held at 9 a. m., Monday in St. Pascal's Catholic church, Melvina avenue and Irving Park road. He was 51 years old and lived at 5850 Grace street. He had been a policeman for twenty years, the last fifteen years of which he had been attached to the Austin station. His widow, Nellie, and two children survive.

Mrs. Anna Larson.

Mrs. Anna Larson, 63 years old, Los Angeles, Cal., died of a heart attack yesterday while walking in front of the Pearson hotel, 190 East Pearson street. She and her daughter, Mrs. Peggy Stark, also of Los Angeles, were spending the holiday season with her son, Ralph Larson, executive vice president of the Upper Avenue National bank, 919 North Michigan avenue.

Edward Cross Goodman.

Edward Cross Goodman, 74 years old, retired western manager of the Audit company of New York, died yesterday in the Evanston hospital. He lived at 2323 Pioneer road, Evanston. Two sons, Edwin M., Evanston building commissioner, and Arthur, and a daughter, Elsie, survive.

George B. Lynes.

Montclair, N. J., Dec. 22.—[Special—George Briggs Lynes, former editor of the Encyclopedia Britannica, died today. Mr. Lynes became a member of the editorial staf of the Encyclopedia in 1898 and served until 1906, when he retired.

WOMAN REPAYS EMPLOYER $2,500; WINS PROBATION

Mrs. Angela Olsen, 32 years old, who on Nov. 28 pleaded guilty to embezzling $2,500 from her employer, partly to get funds for a divorce, was placed on probation for one year yesterday by Chief Justice Michael J. McKinlay in the Criminal court.

Officials of the drug company from whom Mrs. Olsen took the money while she was employed as a bookkeeper, said she had made full restitution. And Walter Milloy, who lives in the same building as Mrs. Olsen at 2737 North Spaulding avenue, told the court they planned to be married soon.

ARCTIC SETTLERS FACE PERPLEXING SANTA PROBLEM

BARROW, Alaska, Dec. 22.—(AP)—This farthest north settlement on the North American continent today made ready for its annual Christmas festival, but there was one problem perplexing the few white settlers.

That was whether the Christmas packages they received by boat last summer were for this Christmas or last Christmas. Packages can't get through at this time of year unless somebody charters a plane to fly here from Fairbanks. First class Christmas mail arrived a week ago last Friday, and no more is expected.

Arrow locates arctic settlement.

This year's Christmas will be a three-day event. Gifts will be presented at a school program Saturday. A church program will be held Sunday, and a feast at which Muktuk—seal meat—will be the piece de resistance, will be held at the church Monday. Most usual native gifts consist of sinew, boot soles, parka covers and spears. Occasionally, too, natives transfer their reindeer from one to another.

FORMER MAYOR PAYS UP $72,794 RELIEF SHORTAGE

A certified check for $72,794 was turned over to Attorney General John E Cassidy by a former Republican mayor yesterday in compliance with a mandate of the Illinois Appellate court handed down Oct. 28. The money represents the amount left from a relief fund for Mississippi river flood victims collected in 1927. The former mayor faced contempt proceedings if he did not turn over the money by Dec. 27.

The check was tendered in the chambers of Judge William V. Brothers. Cassidy said the money will be given immediately to the American Red Cross, as ordered by the Appellate court. In 1934 $31,131 of the relief fund was turned over to the Red Cross on Judge Brothers' order.

Later, the attorney general reopened the case, charging that a total of $139,772 had been raised for the flood sufferers and that only $35,847 was ever given to them. Judge Brothers ruled that the former mayor need not pay the $72,794 which the attorney general said was still due. This ruling was reversed.

MERRY FAHRNEY LOSES IN ESTATE DIVISION DISPUTE

Probate Judge John F. O'Connell yesterday overruled the objections of Merry Fahrney Berlingieri Cassini to the accounting of the estate of her father, the late Emery Homer Fahrney. Merry had protested the allowance of a $100,000 widow's award to her mother, now the wife of Theodore Hardeen, and the payment of $89,500 in attorneys' and administrator's fees.

Fahrney, the son of Dr. Peter Fahrney, patent medicine manufacturer, died in 1935, leaving an estate of $2,097,832. The money was left in trust with half the income going to the widow and the remainder to two daughters, Merry and Myrtle. The widow renounced the will for her dower right of one-third of the estate.

Merry won a divorce early this year from her third husband, Baron Arturo Berlingieri, and married her fourth, Oleg Cassini. The Illinois Appellate court, however, set aside her divorce from the baron and she is now appealing the case to the state Supreme court.

LAUDS EFFICIENT OPERATION BY SANITARY BOARD

The sanitary district board was praised yesterday by Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary of the civic federation and bureau of public efficiency, for operating in a sound and businesslike manner.

His praise was given at the public hearing on the district's tentative 1939 corporate [operating] budget calling for the expenditure of $6,522,821. This is an increase of $719,215 over last year because of added legal and power costs.

Sutherland criticized the figure set up for legal fees—$327,000—and recommended that a study be made to reduce it.

One Pattern---Two Dresses

FROCK IN JUNIOR SIZES.

Here is a simple pattern which fashions two entirely different dresses, each styled for a different mood. The frock at the left is tailored with a casual air. At its neckline is a detachable lingerie collar in the shirt-waist tradition. Buttons are used down the front of the bodice. The sleeves are squared and puffed, and the bodice derives soft fullness from both shoulder seams and waistline. The skirt is flared in the dirndl manner, and there may be any type of belt around the waist, but the style afforded by pattern No. 2151 is particularly in keeping with the spirit of the frock.

The other version of the pattern creates a dress with a V neckline and surplice effect in the bodice. It has a pocket at the left which is stitched to match the finish on neckline and sleeves. The fulness of bodice and skirt are derived from the shirred waistline. The shirring is easy to do. Thread the bobbin of the machine with elastic thread and sew as usual.

These two dresses allow you all kinds of whimsies as to colors and fabrics. Silks and soft woolens both make up well.

Style No. 2138 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19 years. Size 15 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material, with ¼ yard of 39 inch contrasting for the collar, and ¼ yard of 39 inch material for the girdle.

Style No. 2151, providing a belt, hat, and bag, is available in one size only.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Clark Gable, Accountant.

A Chicago girl recently became engaged to a young accountant named Clark Gable. The company he is with is dissolving after the first of the year and so far he has been turned down twice by other firms because of his name. Their argument was that to add a Clark Gable to a staf on which there are a lot of girls would interfere with office routine.

Unromantic Approach.

Department of Red Faces.

A graduate student entered the University of Chicago book store and asked for a book on economics. The saleswoman told him they would have to send to London for it.

"Now if I send for it, will you be sure to take it?" she asked.

The young man said he would.

"It's a very expensive book, and we wouldn't like to order it unless you are quite sure you will have the money to pay for it," she persisted.

The young man felt sure he would be able to manage it and so assured her.

"Your name, please?" asked the clerk.

"David Rockefeller," was the answer.

The Butcher's Boy.

The exasperated remarks of a mother to her son as she walked down the aisle at Moonlight Sonata at the World Playhouse were plainly audible to other movie patrons.

"All right, we'll go home," she muttered. "You'll be just like your father! A cleaver in your hand instead of piano keys! A butcher you'll grow up!"

Urban Album.

Sonja Henie, wearing a silver fox, parkalike head covering tied under her chin with black ribbons; bright-eyed, with a kind of sulky provocativeness, at the Lake Shore drive. . . . Jimmy Savage, after lunching with beautiful Madeleine Carroll of the movies, saying he knows what he's going to do for his girl friends for Christmas . . . throw rocks at 'em! . . . The apple-adorned Christmas tree at Swedish house. . . . And the one in the London Guaranty building with a music box in the base that plays carols. . . . The lady Santa Claus at Washington and State, wearing skirts. . . . Bob Feller, pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, dashing into the Congress. . . . Suburban ladies buying suet holders to put on garden trees for the birds' Christmas.

Tone Signal Boiled Eggs.

A bridegroom demanded, at his first connubial breakfast, that his eggs be boiled exactly three and a half minutes, Charles C. Meloy reports. The love nest had no clock, but the bride was a smart girl. She called CAThedral 8000 and had her husband hold the line for the required period while the eggs boiled.

John Elting to Wed Mrs. Sally W. Richardson

BY JUDITH CASS.

CUPID apparently is as busy during the holiday season as Santa Claus, for there is much news of a romantic nature these days. This morning announcement is being made of the engagement of Mrs. Sally Waters Richardson, daughter of Mrs. Bertram Gordon Waters and the late Mr. Waters of Boston, to John Elting, son of Victor Elting and the late Mrs. Elting of Chicago.

John Elting and his father are both residing in New York temporarily, so none of the Chicago relatives has met the future Mrs. John Elting yet.

They are to have that pleasure, however, this week-end, for tonight Mrs. Richardson and her fiancé are arriving by plane from the east to spend Christmas with his brother, Winston Elting, and his wife, the former Marjorie Horton, in Lake Forest. Tomorrow afternoon Victor Elting Jr. and his wife, formerly Miss Helen Stanley, will give a cocktail party at their Lake Forest home so that John's friends can meet his bride-to-be. The rest of the holiday week-end will be spent quietly with the Elting family. The senior Mr. Elting did not come west with his son.

No definite plans are made for the wedding but it is probable that it will be a spring event. Mrs. Richardson was graduated from the Winsor school in Boston and made her debut there in 1932, where she was a member of the Junior league and the Vincent club. John Elting was graduated from the Hotchkiss school and from Princeton university with the class of 1934.

Nora Gladwin Engaged to Murry Fairbank.

Another interesting announcement is that of the engagement of Miss Nora McCurdy Gladwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold S. Gladwin of Santa Barbara, to Murry Fairbank, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Fairbank of Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y.

Miss Gladwin is a niece of Miss Gwethalyn Jones and Owen Barton Jones of Lake Forest and often has visited here. Mr. Fairbank is not so well known here, for his visits to his uncle, Kellogg Fairbank, have been infrequent.

The Gladwins are spending the holidays with the Owen Joneses, but Mr. Fairbank is with his family in the east. No date for the wedding is set. Miss Gladwin prepared for college at the Bishop school in La Jolla and was graduated from Bryn Mawr in 1935. Her fiancé attended Milton academy and then Harvard, where he finished in 1928.

Mary-Stewart Creed to Wed Morris Mather Jr.

Still another announcement of interest was made yesterday afternoon by Bennett C. Creed at a tea in his home in Hinsdale. He announced the engagement of his daughter, Mary-Stewart, to Morris Mather Jr., son of Morris Mather of the Drake Towers.

Miss Creed attended the Ogontz school in Philadelphia and Northwestern university. Mr. Mather attended Princeton university. The wedding probably will take place next summer.

Fortune-Hubbart Nuptials Jan. 11.

Invitations are out to the wedding of Miss Charlotte Houston Hubbart and Peter Fortune on Jan. 11 at 4:30 o'clock at the home of Miss Hubbart's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph DeGolyer Hubbart, in Evanston. After March 15 Mr. Fortune and his bride will be at home at 20 East Chestnut street.

The Philip F. W. Pecks are not planning a special party to celebrate their twenty-first wedding anniversary today. They will have a family party at home in Lake Forest tomorrow evening, and on Christmas the family will gather again at the home of Mrs. Peck's sister, Mrs. Woolsey M. Pollock, and Mr. Pollock.

Philip Peck Jr., who is touring with the Yale Dramatic association, is not arriving until tomorrow, but his younger brother, Stewart, has returned for the holidays.

Following the Chicago Symphony Orchestra concert this afternoon those who have not a bit of last minute Christmas shopping to do will go as usual to the Cordon or the Cliff Dwellers for tea.

Mrs. Elmer A. Forsberg is to be the hostess at the Cliff Dwellers, assisted by Mrs. August Bontoux, Mrs. Norman S. Parker, Mrs. Rudolph F. Ingerle, Mrs. Edison L. Wheeler, Mrs. Norman Rice, and Mrs. Alexander H. Bacci.

Christmas carols with words by Mrs. Walter Dill Scott and music by Bethuel Gross, and selections from "The Messiah" are on the program at the Cordon, from 4 to 5:30 o'clock. The artist is to be B. Fred Wise, tenor.

Great Lakes Carolers Sing This Evening.

The near north side will ring with Christmas carols tonight, sung by the Great Lakes Dredge and Philharmonic Friends of Music, who will start their tour at 5 o'clock at the Robert Pyzels', 70 Scott street. The carolers will do their main singing in the little park at Astor and Goethe streets.

From the park the carolers will go north on Astor to North avenue, west to State street, and south on State to the Pyzels' again. A candle in the window will be the sign that the men's chorus is invited to sing outside. The candle will not be interpreted as an invitation to come in for refreshments, however, for the carolers already have accepted all the invitations they can.

They will warm themselves internally and externally at the Clay Judsons' in Astor street and at Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne's in State street. Eusebio Concialdi trains the chorus.

Christmas Parties for Young People.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald McGibeny are giving a dinner-dance tonight at

Cathedral Shelter Will Serve Dinner to 1,300

Canon David E. Gibson, pastor of the famed Cathedral shelter at Washington and Peoria streets, will be Santa Claus to 1,300 homeless men at Christmas dinner Sunday. In addition the shelter will outfit 100 children with winter clothes.

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

Crisis in the Mezzanine.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 22.—You wonder how many very personal dramas are worked out in the mezzanine section of the Westwood Village theater on those nights when a major studio is staging the preview of a picture.

Ann Sothern takes a chance.

I thought of it a few nights back when Walter Wanger previewed "Trade Winds," because sitting two rows in front of us was Ann Sothern, and the picture meant a great deal to her. . . . If you ever have put all your chips on the line and gambled them, then you'll understand how Ann felt as the picture started.

A year ago the Sothern miss found herself athwart the horns of a dilemma. . . . She was rapidly getting nowhere in particular in the industry and her R.-K.-O. contract tied her up to a series of inanities that meant a definite weekly wage but promised little to her advancement as a performer.

It was not a new problem she was facing: Other performers come face to face with similar problems every day in every week of every year at every studio. . . . Most of them choose the easier way out, the assured weekly salary, rather than fight against a slow death in pictures. . . . Ann Sothern was tempted to take the easier way out, but she decided against it. . . . She asked R.-K.-O. for a release from her contract.

"I had some money saved up," she said, "and I figured that by moving to a cheaper place in Hollywood and trimming expenses here and there the money in the bank would last long enough for me to get the type of rôle I wanted. The first couple of weeks were fun—the excitement of moving from Beverly to Hollywood, decorating an apartment, you know what I mean. Tomorrow the phone would ring and I'd get the part I wanted.

"About the third week, when nothing had happened, I started to fret a little. When two months had passed I started paying some attention to the bank book. It seemed amazing how rapidly the money was going out. Then I started wondering if I had been too brash, too confident in throwing away a weekly check, and a few weeks later I started feeling a bit desperate.

"Maybe this was the end of everything for me. Maybe this was the way performers had told me they felt when they had come to the end of the trail, without realizing that it WAS the end of the Hollywood trail. The money seemed to be flying out of the bank book—it was like water leaking through a sieve. I started to lose my self-confidence."

"You've got to keep in action, stay before the public, in this business, and I hadn't made a picture in six months. People at parties started to upset me; it seemed that everybody was working but me. Every night or or so, it seemed, another picture was being previewed, but I wasn't in them. That is the funniest feeling in all the world, Ed.

"It seems that you are being driven further and further away from the things you want to do, and nobody seems to know or to care. All the time the bank book keeps reminding you, if you need any reminder, that the jig is pretty nearly up. You feel that every person in the bank is watching you when you walk in to make another withdrawal—that the teller is almost sneering at you—that everybody knows that you've reached the limit. It's silly, of course."

With the year almost gone, Ann Sothern got this rôle in "Trade Winds." She picked it herself after studying perhaps twelve scripts that had been submitted to her. Sitting in the mezzanine at the Westwood theater a few nights back, she kept her fingers crossed as the picture unfolded. Sitting with her was her husband, Roger Pryor, back for the holidays, and their adopted son. They all kept their fingers crossed, but it was a needless precaution.

From her first appearance on the screen it was evident that Ann Sothern was staging her finest performance. She was punching home the lines that Dorothy Parker had written and winning big laughs, and the Sothern miss never let up or became careless. She kept trying all the way, and when she came to the drunk scene with Joan Bennett she stopped the show cold.

It happens every night in the week out here, this drama of the mezzanine section.

Well, it couldn't have happened to a nicer girl. We met the first time when she came to Broadway from Minneapolis to appear in "Smiles." Actually she was born in North Dakota, in a whistle-stop named Valley City, but she was educated in Minneapolis at Central High school.

"I've never had a Christmas like this one," she tells you, showing the rave notices in Variety and Hollywood Reporter. Looking at her, you see a composite of all the youngsters of Hollywood, and you wish that all of them could have a holiday half so merry and a new year half so full of promise.

Molly Hill Is Presented at Supper-Dance

The young people at Miss Molly Hill's debut dance last night at the Casino regretted that Miss Catherine Johnson, whose debut it was to have been, too, was not present. Miss Johnson did not feel she could come to the party even though her grandfather, Charles H. ReQua, requested that she do so just before he died on Wednesday. Miss Hill and her parents, the Cyrus G. Hills, received alone.

The debutante looked especially pretty in a pale blue taffeta frock with a bouffant skirt and silver embroidery trimming. She carried red roses. Her mother, who carried white orchids, was charming in a dress of dark blue woven with silver. In addition to the orchestra, there were strolling musicians to entertain between dances and during supper.

Evening dances for debutantes often are called supper-dances rather than balls, but the dance that Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hutchins are giving tonight at the Blackstone hotel to introduce their younger daughter, Margaret, is to be a ball in every sense of the word.

The party will start at 11 o'clock. Family friends of all ages have been invited. Supper will be served continuously in the Art hall, on the floor above the ballroom. There will be continuous dancing, too, for the hosts are providing two orchestras.

A number of dinner parties will precede the ball. Miss Hutchins is to be a guest at a dinner Miss Eleanor McClurg is giving at her mother's, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley's, for two other buds, Miss Nancy Orr and Miss Mary Hale. Miss Mary Gardner, a cousin of Miss Hutchins, and Miss Betty Armour are giving a dinner for some of the post-deb set.

Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer III. are entertaining some of the young married couples who are going on to the ball, and Mrs. George R. Nichols is giving a dinner for some of Mr. and Mrs. Hutchins' friends.

Miss Hutchins is a graduate of St. Timothy's, and spent last winter traveling in Europe with Miss Stout's school. She and her parents will go to Boca Raton, Fla., in March.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mitchell are giving a dinner-dance tonight at the Casino for debutantes Gene Manning and Jane Zimmerman.

Miss Julia Follansbee and Miss Jane Harper are entertaining at a dinner and theater party before the ball. Miss Follansbee is giving the dinner at her home and Miss Harper is giving the theater party.

Dancing is on the program again this afternoon for the buds and their beaux. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Rockwood of Winnetka are giving a tea-dance from 4 until 7 o'clock at the Indian Hill club to introduce their daughter, Ruth, who is a student at Pine Manor Junior college. Assisting Miss Rockwood will be twenty young women, mostly debutantes of the season.

Urge Patriotism at Party of Italo-American Union

Patriotism as well as Yuletide cheer was emphasized yesterday at a party given in the Hotel Sherman for 500 children of Italian extraction. The party was given by the Italo-American National union. Philip d'Andrea, president, urged the youngsters to become good American citizens. Gifts were distributed.

Waukegan Newspaper Boys Collect Food for Needy

Two hundred and fifty Waukegan newspaper boys have collected 32,500 pounds of canned goods and other food supplies from their customers for distribution to needy families in Waukegan and North Chicago for Christmas. The food will be delivered in fifty pound lots tomorrow to 650 families.

First Exhibition Reveals Artist of Great Skill

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

One of the most stimulating and exciting exhibits in town this holiday season is that of water colors and drawings by Margaret Fisher at the Quest gallery, 810 North Michigan avenue. Miss. Fisher, we learned, trained for a time as an architect and this, we guess, is the reason for her amazingly fine drawing.

With her ability as a draftsman goes an excellent sense of composition and a sensitive flair for color. She seems also to have a quick and vigorous imagination and to be able to create uncommon things out of a common beginning.

The Illinois landscape is not the most picturesque in the world. And yet Illinois fields, farms, and pastures are the theme in several of these water colors and the results are marvelously exciting. Miss Fisher has drawn beauty from the commonplace through her inner vision. She has tied realism to poetry, seasoned with ability, and given us a product any of our water color painters would be proud to own.

There are two gorgeous still life arrangements. One is of figs with a slightly French atmosphere, an impressionistic use of mixed color to set off their purple simplicity; the other is of lemons on a dish. There is a touch of brown in this that strikes exactly the right note. The lemons are beautifully right. The effect of the little picture is that here perfection has been achieved. You rather thrill that the first exhibition by a Chicago artist could offer such a masterly piece of painting.

The South Side Art association has a midwinter exhibit of paintings by members in the poorly lit lounge of the Auditorium hotel. One wonders why the association continues to use this space. The individual lights over the various pictures do a bit of good but by no means flatter the paintings.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Last year, after looking over the field, we decided that one of the outstanding compacts of the whole crop, judging by price, practicality, and good design, was a slim round one for loose powder. In burnished gold tones, it was flat, thin, and jewel-like with a small enamel inlay for color accent in the center of the top.

The powder well was lined with a neutral substance so that the powder it was to contain could retain its own scent, with no danger of taint from direct contact with the metal. Each vanity came equipped with two puffs—another sensible innovation. It was sturdy; catches were secure and hinges were small but strong. The price was phenomenally low.

This year this same vanity is available, in both the old and a new version. By popular request the same design has been used for a double compact. With no noticeable increase in width or weight a rouge compartment has been added, inserted in the lid and separated from the powder well by a metal mirror. Again the price is surprisingly low and if you're in the market for a double vanity we couldn't give you a better tip than a hint to look at this one.

The same house has other vanities, dressier and somewhat more costly, but just as well executed and as good value for the money. These, in two or three different shapes and sizes, are to be found with the one described above in almost all the shops.

Incidentally, we might tell all you people shopping for vanities that looks aren't everything. Workmanship is even more important. What price a fine case, all bejeweled and fancy, if it falls apart after a couple of weeks? ELEANOR NANGLE.

[For information about these vanities telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0100.]

SYNOPSIS.

Nora Stacy receives a letter from India from her fiancé, irresponsible Jim Murdock, breaking their engagement. Heartbroken Nora writes Jim she'll marry the next man who asks her. Jim's family live next door to the modest English cottage where Nora lives with her aunt, Mrs. Dorothy Callender. When Bob Matherson of Fairways, rich young bachelor and recent neighbor, proposes to Nora she accepts. Three days before the wedding Jim returns and demands that Nora run away with him. Nora feels morally pledged to Bob. Jim gives Nora her love letters to him—except the one in which she vowed to marry the next man who asked her. Mrs. Pearl Almy, a former attachment of Bob's, who rents a cottage on his estate, gets the letter and sends it to Bob, hoping he'll call off the wedding, but Bob goes through with it. Their wedding night Bob tells Nora he married her for convenience, too. They agree their marriage will be in name only. Bob and his sister's husband, David Longton, are in the aircraft armament business for the government. Cissy Longton tells Nora that Mrs. Almy, who used to work in their office, is suspected of giving away the firm's secrets to a rival. Nora dismisses the housekeeper when she finds her conspiring with Mrs. Almy. Bob is in danger of being arrested for double-crossing his country. A government man, Capt. Grew, arrives at Fairways and Bob invites him to stay for an informal party. He tells Bob he is investigating Mrs. Almy, Bob's suspected mistress. Nora hears him. Mrs. Almy is plotting with Jim to steal plans that night from the Fairways Tower room safe. Nora dances with Jim and relives the illusion of her old love.

INSTALMENT XXIII.

A PASSION FOR REVENGE.

Capt. Grew was watching Mrs. Almy, his interest growing by leaps and bounds. Pearl was speaking to Bob Matherson.

"You stand for a lot more than I would have thought," she told him.

She was laughing, looking up at Bob, and from a little distance her eyes were exactly like bits of the emerald jewelry she was wearing.

Bob answered her with no apparent constraint; he even regarded her with seeming affection.

"You'd be surprised what I can stand for," he said. "One of these days you'll find out."

Something seemed to bite into her and chill her blood. She knew that lazily indifferent manner of his, it could cover a lot.

Did he mean her or Nora? Or did he mean Jim Murdock?

It had seemed to Pearl Almy almost nothing when Tankerton's agent had asked her out to lunch and said, hearing she had left Matherson and Longton's, they were wondering if she would consider accepting a post from them.

One thing had led to another. First she had sold them a few roughly remembered ideas, but of course it was a set of the specifications they wanted. There were, as Pearl knew, only two complete sets in existence. One was in the hands of the government to whom the plans for David Longton's new model bomber had been sold, the other was possessed by Matherson and Longton.

In the end Tankerton's agent had offered Pearl Almy ten thousand pounds if she could get that set of blue prints for them. It was supposed that she was Bob's mistress but possessing a well defined grievance, and she did nothing to put that idea right.

Pearl drew a deep sigh that was like a shudder. Then she looked at her wristwatch. It was almost time for that coup Jim Murdock and she had planned.

Everybody was herding into the dining room now. She wished she could get the vision of Nora and Jim out of her mind.

Jim had sworn to her that he was no longer in love with Nora, but tonight she had seen plainly enough with her own eyes that he had lied.

If he wasn't careful, she told herself, she'd turn on him, show him up and make Bob believe that he had engineered this scheme entirely by himself. She had everything on him. It was he who had been doing the go-between work with Tankerton's. She had simply steered the job from behind the lines. She could say that she had let him have plenty of rope to hang himself with and that all the time she had been standing by to see just how far he meant to go.

But between jealousy and her passion for revenge, the ginger kitten was in danger of losing her head.

It might not be so easy to prove that Jim Murdock had obtained possession of the duplicate key to the Tower room, the key that had been entrusted to the housekeeper for purposes of having the room kept in order, laying the fire, etc. And only a professional safecracker could manage to open that secret safe without the combination.

Pearl had got hold of that when the safe was first installed and when she had had practically the run of Fairways. Bob had been a little careless at that time about his private papers, and also he had trusted her.

But Pearl's head was full now of what she could do to Jim Murdock if he tried to play her false in the matter of Nora, and she forgot her own part in the scheme.

They had made their plans for a quick getaway after the blue prints had been secured and delivered to Tankerton's agent. Pearl even had the tickets which were to take them first to Boulogne, where they would not need passports for a week-end trip, and where they would be met by the continental agent who would provide them with false passports and the sum of money in English banknotes which had been promised as their reward.

From Boulogne they were to proceed to a Dutch port and take passage on a cargo boat bound for the Argentine. It was a hope, a good chance, even, that they might reach their destination before Bob Matherson discovered he had been robbed.

For naturally Mrs. Almy did not intend her sudden departure from Green Mallows to come in the nature of a surprise. It had already been advertised that she was leaving shortly for the south of France, the English climate at this time of year being what it generally is.

These thoughts were chasing through her mind in a chaotic fashion, while she was still standing beside Bob Matherson.

"Aren't you going to have any supper, Pearl?" he asked.

"I was waiting for you to invite me," she said.

Capt. Grew was standing by the door wearing the slightly diffident air of a guest who doesn't feel altogether at home.

"Keeping an eye on me and Pearl," thought Bob with a grim chuckle.

Really, it was funny—the home office sending one of its gifted young men to spy on him in his own house, and being so very sporting about it. Did Capt. Grew think they were up to some sleight of hand under his very nose?

But if Bob could only have known it, the young man from the home office was keeping his eye on two other people, too, and he didn't expect any sleight of hand at all. He was merely trying to establish their secret relations with each other.

Bob clapped him on the back.

"I'm sure you must be hungry."

"Thanks, I am rather."

"Well, come along with us, I've got a bit of an appetite, myself."

Bob settled Pearl and Capt. Grew at one of the little tables, but before sitting down himself he took a brief look around. He had been a bachelor host for so long that it had become a habit with him to assume full responsibility for the success of his entertainments.

But of course Nora should be doing her share too, and he didn't see her. Quickly he looked around the room again. Yes, Jim Murdock was there, perched on a stool at the buffet with a Miss Finch on one side of him and her young brother on the other.

"Excuse me a moment," Bob said. So he didn't sit down after all.

Pearl threw another glance at her wrist watch.

"Where are you going?" she asked, plaintively.

She looked a little sick, and her face was as pale as death.

"I'll be back in a moment," he said, hardly glancing at her.

Capt. Grew bent towards her attentively.

"Aren't you feeling well?" he inquired.

"Not very. It's hot in here, isn't it?"

"What can I get you? Do you want anything to eat?"

"A glass of champagne, I think."

She looked over her shoulder to see if Bob was coming back, and then she, too, noticed that Nora wasn't in the room but that Jim Murdock was.

Jim turned and saw her sitting there by herself. He gave a half nod and she nodded back.

It was the moment they had arranged and if Bob did not return soon it might not work.

Tyrone Power and Annabella Take Same Plane for California

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Tyrone Power and Annabella, both of the films, left for California late today on a plane from Newark airport amid a flurry of inquiries about whether they were to be married.

Power returned from South America today. He was cornered in his stateroom aboard the liner Southern Prince and was asked whether he was going to marry Annabella, with whom he was mobbed by fans in South America.

"No," said Power. Then, of course, he added: "We are merely good friends."

The Christmas dance of the Fortnightlies series for young people will be held tonight at the Fortnightly club.

The college age young people who are sons and daughters of members of the University Colony club will attend a tea-dance at the Windermere East hotel this afternoon. The club is entertaining at a supper-dance for its high school age young people tonight at the Del Prado hotel. The dance will be preceded by "dessert parties" at several homes.

The older girls of the Faulkner school will have their Christmas dance tonight in the school gymnasium. Mrs. Howard Hayes is chairman of the mothers' committee for the dance.

Miss Elizabeth Faulkner and the officers of the alumnae association will be hostesses at the annual holiday tea at Miss Faulkner's home, 4726 Dorchester avenue, next Tuesday.

Take New Daughter Home for Christmas.

A wonderful Christmas present that will be brought to the Glencoe home of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Von Gehr on Christmas eve is their infant daughter, born on Dec. 13 at the Evanston hospital. She is returning home with her mother tomorrow. The baby has been named Lois Elizabeth.

The Howard V. O'Briens and their younger son, Donel O'Brien, are leaving today for Omaha to spend Christmas with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick P. Hamilton Jr., and tiny Joan O'Brien Hamilton. The Hamiltons have just moved into a new home.

Dr. and Mrs. Wallace D. Mackenzie are leaving today to spend Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James P. Gillies, in Rye, N. Y. The Mackenzies are taking their year old daughter, Madeleine, with them, and will leave her in Rye until they have moved into their new Hubbard Woods house, which is just being completed. Mrs. Gillies will bring the baby back early next year.

Prof. and Mrs. John Cosgrave of Princeton university have arrived to spend Christmas and the holidays with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Shields III., in Glencoe.

Miss Dorothy Counselman has returned from Bryn Mawr college to spend the holidays with her mother, Mrs. Hopewell L. Rogers, and Mr. Rogers. Miss Counselman's name had been included on this year's debutante list, but she decided to forego being a debutante this year or next, for that matter. She is a sophomore at college.

Bedspread Done in Crochet Has Hexagonal Design

Special Skin Care Needed in Adolescence

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"If there's anything more pitiful than a teen-age youngster with biotchy, pimply skin, we have yet to see it! All the first party dresses, the first tuxedos, are useless in bolstering up the self-confidence of a boy or girl who knows his or her swin 'looks awful.'"

So speaks a well known cosmetician who has devoted years and energy to this problem of youth, and who believes rightly that later beauty must begin with care of the youngsters' faces during adolescent years.

"Until a short time ago," this authority continues, "even modern and devoted parents looked upon 'adolescent skin' as an inevitable misfortune of youth."

Our authority's approach to the problem is logical and intelligent. She says: "For the first few years of a child's life a mother devotes endless time and energy to bathing, oiling and powdering the child's skin. Then, when the child is 6 or 7, he or she is presented with a cake of soap and a wash cloth and told he is old enough to bathe himself. That bathing usually is a slipshod process, unless the mother rules with an iron hand. But, even at best, it does nothing to prepare a skin for the difficult physiological changes when the child becomes 11 or 12. This is a time of glandular readjustment. The pores of the skin are seldom geared to take the oil that the glands produce. Grown-up preparations are worse than useless, since they are designed to fill the needs of a skin decreasing in oil activity, instead of one that is oversupplied with oil."

The keynote is cleanliness. A healthy child's skin depends on clean, active pores, free from clogging dust and grime, energetic, able to expel oil secretions. Cleansing, not with creams, but with a liquid facial soap and complexion brush is recommended. A protective lotion especially planned for the young skin is recommended as a powder base or substitute for powder in acute acne.

Plan Program, Simple or Full, for Christmas

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Just a quiet, happy Christmas day of being together, the enjoyment of receiving and giving gifts, a holiday air about the house, and a delicious dinner may be your idea of a perfect day.

But you may like your Christmas day [or perhaps the eve] embellished a little with gayety, or a more social air, or a fixed event. If you do, and object to the rather "flat" feeling that settles down upon some households after the earlier excitement followed by a hearty dinner, do a little planning ahead. Even with a large family gathering this may be necessary.

Whether you have dinner at 1 or 5 or 7 o'clock, here are some suggestions for a decorative or ceremonial touch to Christmas day:

Play games. Line up ahead of time a few parlor games and get together whatever paraphernalia you need.

Let the children give a little play, or a little entertainment of singing carols and reciting.

Give a Christmas pageant, or dramatize a Christmas carol.

Have a candlelight procession with singing.

Give a little party, or invite a few in for simple refreshments.

Arrange tableaux of either a religious or jolly, secular nature—such as Christmases of long ago.

Togs for Child Have Swing of Adult Models

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Only two days of shopping gayety remain, but those two days always are filled with excitement. If you have a very young lady on your list why not consider such important items as the first party dress accessories? Some of the most irresistible frocks imaginable are ready for a Christmas box; crisp taffetas in vivid colors and pastels, snow white airy nets, and fetching models in gay Christmas red. These dresses are made to please the little girls as well as a critical audience . . . most of the necklines are demurely high, the sleeves extremely short and puffed.

Narrow velvet ribbon or wide swanky ribbon sashes provide extra color and snap. The long skirts are as full as anything to be found in the grown up models. Tiny little bows and fancy combs and dainty wreaths of silk flowers are worn in the hair. Slippers come in silver or gold or silk and even small kidskin gloves are available.

Tiny little angora boleros or a red riding hood cape of black velvet lined with scarlet are ideal party wraps also ready for the mob of doting parents in search of something special.

Skating outfits scaled down for small streamlines are other finds that will be successful gifts. Short circular cut skirts, tiny padded jackets, cute little bonnets, pointed caps, ear muffs, mittens, shoes, suspenders made like Tyrolean peasant affairs, and even the long fitted windproof underwear are unpacked now in lavish assortments for small girls and their midwinter vacation needs.

Tiny matched sweaters and swing skirts of brilliant plaid wool make other ideal gifts. Or flared skirts of velveteen teamed with the sweater duets will cause no small amount of excitement in the heart of any small schoolgirl. Bags, small gloves [daytime and dress parade], scarfs, snappy little hats and caps, tiny satin slips and satin pajamas, belts, costume jewelry and charm clips matched to bracelets, are slick stocking gifts that always register.

Christmas Flower Shows at Parks Open Tomorrow

More than 2,200 poinsettias will be on display in the Christmas flower shows at the Garfield and Lincoln park conservatories. The exhibits will open tomorrow and will continue through Jan. 8. Special exhibits of scarlet, white, pink, salmon, and flesh-colored poinsettias have been arranged. There will also be sub-tropical shrubs in full bloom, native Mexican plants and several varieties of narcissus in the display.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

Question 17 of the recent examination was a big disappointment to me, or, rather, the answers were. I had fondly imagined that Mr. and Mrs. Bridge Player were a great deal braver than they used to be. Apparently I was wrong. This question was:

Both sides vulnerable, the bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Double	1 spade	Pass
3 no trump	Double	?

You are South and hold:

♠ A Q 9 8 4 ♥ J 3 ♦ J 7 4 ♣ J 6 2

What call do you make now?

The official answer was that South should redouble and, frankly speaking, I felt that the question and answer were somewhat too easy for such an examination. To my amazement, only about 15 per cent of the readers who mailed in their answers had the courage to redouble—not that it should take much courage! The proposition is clear cut. North, vulnerable, opens the bidding with one heart, and after East shows enough strength for a take-out double and South makes the presumably weak bid of one spade, North is strong enough to jump to three no trump. This is a terrific bid on North's part and, since South has about four times as much as he might have had for the spade bid he made directly over a take-out double, any action but a redouble is beyond the pale. You cannot trust every one at a bridge table, but for better or worse are temporarily wedded to your partner. If you cannot trust an impressive bid such as North's three no trump [under the circumstances noted], then you cannot trust any bid. South's three jacks become potential stoppers and, perhaps, tricks, and his spade suit is much better than North can expect.

One does not get opportunities like this every day of the week. If a partner of mine, under the given circumstances, failed to redouble with South's hand, I would make a point of presenting him with a large fluffy powder puff!

TODAY'S HAND.

West, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 heart	Pass	1 spade
Pass	2 spades	Pass	2 no trump
Pass	3 clubs	Pass	3 no trump
Pass	Pass	Pass

I present this hand and bidding rather doubtfully, because the only moral I will be able to draw is that crime does pay. South's outrageous optimism in persisting to three no trump [when his partner's bidding had specifically warned him about diamonds] would, 99 times in 100, meet fitting punishment. This time, however, the very audacity of it "fixed" the opponents completely. West placed considerable diamond strength on his right, hence refused to open the suit. Looking for a "neutral" opening, West led a low heart. Declarer's jack won and a heart was immediately returned. West won with the ace and, still feeling that a diamond lead would give declarer at least one diamond trick that he might not be able to make for himself, exited with a heart. [West was afraid that a club shift might find East with J x x x and declarer with the A 10.] Now declarer was home. He ran off the heart and club suits and cashed the spade ace for the ninth trick.

When it came to light that the defenders could have run five diamond tricks, West's remarks were more forceful than printable.

Snow White and her friends, the Seven Dwarfs, are coming back to Chicago for the holidays. You can see them this week at the Apollo theater.

St. Vincent's Cares for 800 Orphans During Closing Year

More than 800 babies and children were cared for during the year at St. Vincent's orphanage, 721 North La Salle street, Sister Agatha, mother superior, reported yesterday. Adoptions dropped from 180 in 1937 to 130 this year. The institution was founded in 1881.

The largest number of the orphanage's charges are abandoned babies. Patient investigation by Miss Bernadine Healy, social worker, results in locating the parents in many cases. In others the parents have a change of heart and claim their children.

Hear Schelling, a Triple Threat in Concert Hall

BY EDWARD BARRY.

An Orchestra hall audience heard such unaccustomed things as "Dixie" and "Swanee River" last night. And its collective imagination was hurried from Spain to Persia, from Persia to a world war air fight.

All of these strange things happened because the vigorous, eccentric muse of Ernest Schelling dominates this week's Thursday-Friday concerts of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. The tall, mustached American is functioning as composer, pianist, and conductor.

Conducting his own Suite Varié, Mr. Schelling emphasized again the patness and cleverness of this spectacularly disjointed work. Some of the descriptive bits—notably the Garengo fountains and the airplane duel—came off well enough. And the "Berceuse for a Sick Child" boasted genuinely musical qualities of a lyric order.

Mr. Schelling's brilliant, percussive piano playing gave the fourth movement of his Fantastic Suite a healthy snap and vigor. This is the division in which the American tunes appear. Frederick Stock conducted this work, as well as the three non-Schelling items which preceded it.

Schumann's Second Symphony, played well at all times and magnificently during the delivery of the slow movement's principal theme, stood early on the program in company with two salutes to the Christmas season. The first of these was the Pastorale from Bach's Christmas Oratorio, the second the ethereal little "Dance of the Angels" from Wolf-Ferrari's "The New Life."

NEW 'COPPELIA' LEAD

BY CECIL SMITH.

Mia Slavenska, the Ballet Russe's new Jugo-Slav ballerina of lovely face and comely figure, danced the leading rôle of Swanilda in last night's repetition of "Coppélia." The very allure of her presence and her undeniable competence won a warm response from an Auditorium theater audience of undeservedly small proportions.

Miss Slavenska's portrayal of the girl who changes places with a doll lacks the aristocracy of Alexandra Danilova's version, as well as some of the classical precision. A warm-blooded, headstrong quality runs through everything Miss Slavenska does. This is appealing in its own right, but not always especially appropriate to the character at hand. Last night her pantomime—of which there had to be a great deal—seemed a little too broad and slapstick to stay within the frame of such a period piece as "Coppélia."

Michael Panaieff once again danced with superlative grace and good humor the virtuoso rôle of Coppélia's lover. Lubov Rostova, Marina Franca and Marc Platoff contributed moments of special delight.

"The Seventh Symphony" completed the program. Anatol Fistoulari, the excellent associate conductor, directed both ballets.

Frederick Fairbanks Weds Mrs. Dorothy McElveen

Las Vegas, Nev., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Frederick C. Fairbanks, 57, wealthy son of the vice president of the United States during the Theodore Roosevelt administration and Mrs. Dorothy McElveen, 32, were married here today. Harry M. McElveen, stationery salesman, filed a $200,000 alienation of affections suit in Los Angeles in 1933 against Fairbanks, but later had the suit dismissed.

WEDDING

The wedding of Miss Marion Mansfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Mansfield of Evanston, to George A. Hollenbeck, son of Dr. and Mrs. Dorr F. Hollenbeck of Rochester, Minn., took place on Dec. 16. The ceremony was performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart K. Fox in Wilmette. After a honeymoon in Bermuda and Nassau, Mr. Hollenbeck and his bride will be at home in Evanston.

Yale Alumni Hold Father and Son Luncheon Today

The Yale University Alumni association will hold its annual fathers' and sons' luncheon this noon at the Palmer house. Gilbert Scribner, president of the club, and some alumni are planning a dinner for New Year's night for the Yale basketball team, which will play the University of Chicago on Jan. 2. Following the dinner the group will attend the hocky game. Douglas McKeller, of the Yale team, will stay with the Scribners. The other players will stay at the Windermere hotel.

OPEN ENTRIES FOR 22D SILVER SKATES DERBIES

GARFIELD PARK SITE OF RACES JAN. 14 AND 15

Eight Events Listed for Boys, Girls.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The twenty-second Silver Skates Derbies annually sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., will be held in Garfield park on Jan. 14 and 15. The entry lists now are open.

'Way back on Jan. 28, 1917, the first Silver Skates race was held. Since then, this oldest sports promotion in the nation has been held every year except 1932 when, because of a mild winter and consequent lack of ice on the park lagoons, the meet was canceled.

In twenty-two years it has grown from one event for boys that attracted only a few more than three hundred entries to a series of eight Derbies. Many of the Silver Skates champions have continued on to win national and international honors.

4,500 Registered Last Winter.

Each year from four to five thousand boys and girls, novices and experienced skaters, compete for the prizes which are unequalled in the sport of speed skating. Last year nearly 4,500 registered for the Silver Skates races. Two hundred and sixty-five races were held on the two days of the meet. Despite the long list of qualifying trials, particularly in the lower age classifications, no contestants skated more than twice in one day.

The only requirement for competition in the Derbies is that boys and girls who are 16 years of age and older must register with the Illinois Skating association, which sanctions the meet. This association, under the presidency of Earl W. Solem, has done much to increase interest in speed skating. And the registration fee, which may be paid to the association on the day of the Silver Skates races, permits competition in all of the meets which begin Monday with the C. Y. O. Derbies and continue each week for the next two months.

Five Derbies for Boys.

Five of the eight Silver Skates Derbies are for boys. Girls compete in the other three. Sterling silver skates are the awards for the senior men and senior women. Plated silver skates are the prizes for the other six champions. Those finishing second in the eight championships receive chromium plated skates. Each third place winner receives a pair of bronze skates.

Fourth and fifth place finishers in each Derby are given silver and bronze medals. This completes the list of twenty-four championship awards. However, there are gold medals for the skaters who lead for the greatest number of laps in the longest Derbies, the Walter Eckersall memorial trophy goes to the team which scores the most points in all races, and the team that has the largest number of contestants in all the races receives a silver trophy.

Boosts Speed Skating.

The purpose of the races, stated in 1917 when the late Walter Eckersall and his associates held the first Derby, and adhered to since, has been to encourage competition in speed skating. The list of prizes for the champions and the other fine skaters never has been matched. Annual distribution of these awards provides incentive for the more proficient, especially when no champion is permitted to compete a second year in the same age division.

But more important for the host of boys and girls who probably can not expect to win Silver Skates because of their inexperience, is the gold medal award to each skater who wins a preliminary race. More than 200 of these gold medals are distributed annually. Last year 265 were presented to youngsters, most of whom never had won a skating prize before.

Then, as usual, each skater who reports for his preliminary race in Gar-

CHICAGO BOYS PACE IRISH FIVE; MICHIGAN WINS

U.S.C. Deals 1st Loss to Boilermakers.

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Paced by Eddie Riska, sophomore forward, and Paul Ducharme, senior guard, both from Chicago, Notre Dame beat Northwestern in basketball tonight, 48 to 30, before 4,000 spectators.

Riska scored fifteen points and Ducharme, making his first start at guard, made twelve before they gave way to reserves late in the game. The Irish stepped off to a 7 to 0 lead in the first five minutes, largely on superior speed and passing. The Wildcats never threatened as Notre Dame rolled up a 27 to 13 lead at the half. Northwestern showed greater speed and aggressiveness in the second period and for a time it checked the Irish drive.

Some Rapid Scoring.

But in the middle of the half Riska, Ducharme, Eddie Sadowski, Earl Brown, and Rex Ellis went on a scoring spree that sent Notre Dame into a 41 to 21 lead with seven minutes left.

Ducharme scored first, making two free throws. Then Riska and Sadowski sank field goals and Sadowski added a free throw to make it 7 to 0. Koble, Northwestern's high scorer with seven points, connected for his first field goal. Harman's free throw was the only point Northwestern could make while Riska sank two free throws and Ertel and Brown baskets to make it 13 to 3.

More Points for Irish.

Northwestern held the pace up to 16 to 6, but Ducharme and Sadowski scored a basket each to make it 20 to 6 for Notre Dame.

Northwestern matched Notre Dame's seven points before the first period ended at 27 to 13.

The Wildcats opened the second half with an improved attack, but Notre Dame, again shooting accurately, ran the score to 35 to 19. The Irish, eager to clinch victory, quickly boosted their advantage to 43 to 22. After this, substitutes did most of the scoring.

FIRST PURDUE DEFEAT

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Purdue suffered its first home defeat in nearly two years tonight when Southern California outsped the Boilermakers, 35 to 30. It was the fifth straight victory for the Trojans and the first defeat in five starts for the Boilermakers. The last time Purdue was defeated at home was by Illinois in February, 1937, by one point.

The Boilermakers, playing without Capt. Gene Anderson, who was held on the bench because of an injured leg, were beaten by speed, their own game.

Led by Sears and Goodrich, the Trojans jumped into a 13 to 3 lead and never were headed. Southern California led at the half, 22 to 13. Lineup:

MICHIGAN WINS, 42-27

White Plains, N. Y., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Overcoming Cornell's early lead, the University of Michigan's basketball team swamped the Big Red, 42 to 27, tonight for its fifth consecutive victory. Michigan made use of an intricate passing attack to sweep through Cornell's zone defense and ran up a 27 to 13 lead at half time, then coasted through the second half. Jim Rae, with 19 points, and Ed Thomas, with 12, led the Wolverines in scoring.

Mize, Medwick Give Cardinals Slugging Title

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The St. Louis Cardinals, otherwise the Gas House gang, didn't win a pennant in the 1938 National league race, but nevertheless they had plenty of fun and at the same time caused their more successful competitors to wax envious.

The Cardinals were in sixth place when the race reached its conclusion, but the official slugging averages, announced yesterday, indicated they could have breezed to the championship if they had possessed an ordinary amount of pitching.

Holiday Treat: Sonja Henie and Beautiful Music

Sonja Henie, comely star of Olympic skating meets and motion picture productions, who will appear with her 1939 edition of the Hollywood Ice Revue in the Stadium for seven nights beginning Sunday, will include in her numerous presentations music ranging from swingtime's "Stompin' at the Savoy" to Johann Strauss' "Blue Danube Waltz," the Fire Music from Richard Wagner's "The Valkyrie" and Camille Saint-Saëns' "The Swan."

A great part of the music is taken from Sonja's pictures, "One in a Million," "Thin Ice," "Happy Landing," and "Lucky Star," the latter showing currently.

Sonja will be introduced in a medley of tunes from her motion pictures. She will make five personal appearances in all, including an intricate tango with Stewart Reburn, Canadian figure skating champion. She will appear as Alice in the fantasy, "Alice in Wonderland," and "Through the Looking Glass" to music from "Lucky Star."

U. S. C. Squad Earns a Day Off; Gets It

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Switching the Rose Bowl training program into neutral gear, to the astonishment of every one except himself and the Southern California football team, Coach Howard Jones called off practice today.

Jones looked over the results of yesterday's long workout and decided the squad was coming along nicely for the Jan. 2 battle with Duke, despite the fact that bad weather had hampered the drills for days and little or no rough work had been ordered prior to that.

The few who have been permitted into the secret practice sessions shook their heads when today's holiday was announced, but no one accused Jones of not knowing his business. He has led three Trojan teams into the big post season game at Pasadena.

DUKE WORKS OUT.

Lubbock, Tex., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Coach Wallace Wade's Rose Bowl bound Duke Blue Devils featured passing and tackling in a two-hour workout at Texas Tech field today.

In charge of one set of backs was Ace Parker, the all-America half back at Duke in 1936. He took an active part in the workout, and came away with a bruised cheek.

The Blue Devils are scheduled to work out at Grand Canyon Friday and reach Pasadena early Saturday morning.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Earl Seibert, Blackhawks' burly defense man, made two goals in the first period of last night's hocky match in the Stadium between the Hawks and the Detroit Red Wings, and Bob Gracie made it 3 to 0 for Chicago with a goal in 22 seconds of the second period.

In the seventh minute of the second period, however, the Hawks suddenly remembered the Wings are their jinx team and the Wings recalled the Hawks are notoriously their cousins. The Red Wings made three goals in that second period to tie the score at 3 to 3, and that's the way the contest ended after a futile third period and the ten minute overtime span. Seven thousand attended.

By folding up in the second period the Hawks blew a chance to pass the New York Americans for undisputed possession of third place, but by hanging on for a 3 to 3 deadlock managed to go into a third place tie.

Red Wings Get Going.

All the Hawk goals were made when there were fewer than the full quota of twelve atheletes on the ice. Seibert's first goal, an unassisted accomplishment, was made while the Chicagoans were a man short. The Hawks' second counter was made by Seibert, assisted by Johnny Gottselig and Gracie, while the Wings were shy a man. Gracie's goal was made while the Hawks had a gent in the penalty coop.

All the Wings' scores were made in a space of 8 minutes 47 seconds in that disillusioning second period. Marty Barry, Dave Trottier, and Carl Liscombe were the perpetrators. Though the Hawks should have won, they improved their season's relations with the tie. Previously the Detroiters, who have won only four games all season, had whipped the Hawks, 4 to 2 and 4 to 1.

Seibert's First Goal.

Seibert's first happy lapse of memory anent his being a defense man came in the fifth minute of the first period when he had reasons for being very defense-conscious. Paul Thompson had been tossed behind the red door for tripping and the Wings put on five forwards for power maneuvers. In the midst of defensive chores, Seibert got the puck back of the pressing Detroiters and skated down rink to get on top of Tiny Thompson before he cut loose with his No. 1 scoring effort. The time of the solo marker was 4:11.

The Wings were a man short when Seibert functioned for his second goal of the first period. After Bowman had been locked up for checking Thoms into the boards, Seibert took Bon Voyage, Monsieur.

To the poor sufferer who signed his name Wallace Finke to the following questions in the Wake, Dec. 19, I suggest the following answers:

1. Q.—Should I spend the winter in Florida or California? A.—California, the earthquakes may get you.

2. Q.—How should I travel, by rail or by air? A.—By air. The chances of a fatal accident are better.

3. Q.—Should I take one or two trunks with wardrobe? A.—Just hang your shroud over your arm like a raincoat. It doesn't rain in California, you know [Likel].

4. Q.—Will it be best to ship my car there or leave it here? A.—Leave it here. Your estate will be probated in Illinois.

5. Q.—How can I get money for transportation, hotel bills, food, clothes, and auto? A.—Your insurance should suffice. —Phil Osi Fer.

Entries Open for 22d Silver Skates Derbies

field park will receive a souvenir bronze button. More than 55,000 of these buttons have been distributed since 1917.

The list of age classes for the twenty-second Silver Skates Derbies follows:

Men's senior—18 years of age and over.
Boys' intermediate—16 and 17 years of age.
Boys' junior—14 and 15 years of age.
Boys' juvenile—12 and 13 years of age.
Boys' midget—Under 12 years of age.
Girls senior—18 years of age and over.
Girls' intermediate—16 and 17 years of age.
Girls' junior—Under 16 years of age.

Now that the skating season is opened contestants should know the distances at which the various races will be skated. The list follows:

Event—	Prelim.	Ch'ship.
Men's senior	1 mile	2 miles
Boys' intermediate	½ mile	1 mile
Boys' junior	400 yards	½ mile
Boys' juvenile	220 yards	440 yards
Boys' midget	110 yards	220 yards
Girls' senior	½ mile	1 mile
Girls' intermediate	440 yards	½ mile
Girls' junior	220 yards	440 yards

These distances have proved to be best adapted to the age divisions. All except the men's senior Derby have been added since 1917. In 1937 the last addition to the list was made when the girls' intermediate classification was created for those contestants 16 and 17 years of age and the girls' junior Derby was restricted to girls under 16 years of age. The fifth age classification for boys, the boys' midget division, was held in 1931 for the first time.

Four Trials Jan. 14.

Trials in the first three of the boys' age groups and the girls' junior class will be held on Jan. 14. All other preliminaries and the championships in all eight Derbies are scheduled for Jan. 15.

The Silver Skates rule which prohibits a champion from racing in the same age class again had been approved by the Illinois Skating association. Skaters registered with the association, who have won Tribune skates, may advance to the next class without losing their permanent classification in the association for other competition.

Entries for the twenty-second Derbies will close at midnight Jan. 7. Individual entries may be made on the blank which will be printed daily in THE TRIBUNE. Team entries may be made by the coach, manager, or captain, and these may be submitted in a group provided that ages of all contestants are given.

FENGER ELEVEN TO LEAVE TODAY FOR WACO GAME

Fenger High school's football team, city champion, will leave this morning for Waco, Tex., to play Waco High school Monday afternoon. Coach Charles Palmer has named twenty-five players to make the trip.

The team will leave at 9:30 on a Santa Fe streamliner and will arrive in Waco at 11:30 Saturday morning. Following their arrival they will practice, then rest on Christmas day.

Following the game Coaches Palmer and Frank Knight will accompany Dick Dudzik, Donald Griffin, and James Westwater to California. The players will join an all-star Chicago team which is to play a picked eleven from the coast in Los Angeles on Dec. 30.

The players making the trip follow:

HINKLE, HUTSON SHOW LEAGUE HOW TO SCORE

Full Back Leads with 58 Point Total.

Two Green Bay Packers, Clarke Hinkle, full back, and Don Hutson, end, led the National Football league in scoring for the 1938 season. Hinkle scored seven touchdowns, seven extra points, and three field goals for 58 points. Hutson made nine touchdowns and three extra points for 57 points. In catching nine touchdown passes Hutson tied his own 1936 National league record.

Joe Carter, Philadelphia end, and Ward Cuff, New York back, were third and fourth with 48 and 45 points, respectively. Carter's eight touchdowns made him runnerup to Hutson in that department. Jack Manders of the Chicago Bears, who led the scorers in 1937, finished in a tie for fifth place this season with Rookie Andy Farkas of the Washington Redskins. Both scored 37 points. Cuff kicked the most extra points—18. He was tied with Ralph Kercheval, Brooklyn, for most field goals —5. Leading scorers:

town yesterday to do their Christmas shopping.

In Fort Worth Coach Dutch Meyer gave his Texas Christian punters and passers a long wet weather drill today. He was especially pleased with the work of Davey O'Brien who whipped the ball around with all his old skill.

IT'S DAMP IN TEXAS.

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Murky weather dampened everything in Dallas today but the workout of Texas Tech, which meets the St. Mary's Gaels in the Cotton Bowl clash Jan. 2. Coach Pete Cawthon stressed signal drills and leg conditioning and reported his team in good physical condition with "not a head cold in the bunch." No injuries were reported.

TENNESSEE IS FAVORITE.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Maj. Bob Neyland's Tennessee eleven was rated a 6 to 5 favorite to beat Oklahoma Jan. 2 in the Orange bowl game. Word from Tennessee that a dozen players were suffering from colds and that the team was low in endurance when training was resumed after two weeks of rest, failed to reduce the odds.

"This thing can become serious if the boys don't throw off those colds," Coach Bob Neyland said gloomily at Knoxville. "Our timing is poor and we're not able to get together as a team."

BRADLEY FIVE IS DEFEATED, 48-36, BY CALIFORNIA

Berkeley, Cal., Dec. 22.—(AP)—The University of California basketball team dealt Bradley Tech of Peoria, Ill., the first defeat of its barnstorming tour, 48 to 36, before 4,000 here tonight.

The Bears played only hard enough to win, coasting the first thirty minues. With the score 30 to 24 in favor of California and 10 minutes to go, Hutchins, Bradley center, sank three pivot shots to tie the count. California then speeded up and took a lead Bradley was unable to overcome.

Fields Wins, 16-4; Capture Table Tennis League Title

The Marshall Fields defeated the Charles Albers team, 16 to 4, in the deciding game in the Chicago Metropolitan Industrial Table Tennis league race in the Stay and Play courts at 168 West Monroe street last night. The victory left the Fields undefeated in seven matches. For the Albers the defeat was the first in seven games. In a second game the Homer Landau Printing team defeated the Sears-Roebucks, 16 to 4.

MIZE, MEDWICK GIVE CARDINALS SLUGGING TITLE

Cubs are trying to lure away from the Cards, was the league's No. 1 slugger with a .614 percentage resulting from a total of 326 bases in 531 times at bat. Joe Medwick, for the third year in a row, led in runs driven in, his figure being 122. And as a team the Cards were pacemakers both on a slugging percentage basis and in runs slapped across the counter.

Hartnett Leads Cubs.

Although pennant winners, the Cubs were not among the slugging élite either as a unit or individually. As a team they were thirty points behind the boisterous Cardinals. The top individual was Gabby Hartnett, the catcher-manager, who drove in fifty-nine runs and finished eleventh in percentage. Augie Galan topped the Cubs with sixty-nine runs accounted for, but was thirtieth on percentage. Carl Reynolds was right on Galan's heels with sixty-seven runs to his credit.

Stanley Hack, who had the best batting average [.320] among the Cubs, drove in sixty-seven runs and landed in the twenty-first percentage notch. Rip Collins was somewhere below Hack with sixty-one runs batted home, Joe Marty still lower with thirty-five and Frank Demaree, now a Giant, in forty-sixth place with sixty-two in 129 games. Hank Leiber, who came to the Cubs in the recent swap that turned Demaree into a Giant, drove home sixty-five runs in ninety-eight games.

Herman Collapses as Hitter.

Billy Herman, the Cubs' second sucker, collapsed as a hitter but the flop was less acute in the department of runs accounted for. Herman hit .335 in 1937 and dropped to .277 last season. But his imposing average of 1937 sent home only sixty-five runs whereas his 1938 mark was fifty-six. This decline was negligible in comparison to Demaree, whose sixty-two runs was far short of the 115 he banged across the plate for the Cubs in 1937.

Bill Jurges, who also has been switched from a Cub into a Giant since the season closed, batted home forty-seven runs, although his hitting average was only .245. Dick Bartell, who will do the shortstopping for the Cubs next season, accounted for forty-nine Giant runs. Gus Mancuso, also in the same deal, batted home only fifteen runs in fifty-two games. Ken O'Dea, who will take Mancuso's place with the Giants, knocked in thirty-three runs in eighty-six games. Many of his appearances at the plate were as a pinch hitter.

Cubs Short on Speed.

During the season the Cubs had a weakness for getting themselves involved in double plays, indicating that the team was more than slightly shy on speed. They hit into 157 twin killings, a total that eclipsed the former league record of 146 made by the Boston Bees in 1936.

Rangers Hand Canadiens 4th Defeat, 5 to 2

MONTREAL, Dec. 22.—(AP)—With five of the game's seven goals coming in a final period, the New York Rangers trounced Montreal's hapless Canadiens, 5 to 2, tonight to strengthen their hold on second place in the National Hocky league. It was the fourth consecutive loss for the Canadiens.

The first period was a cautious and scoreless start, but the Rangers began riding hard in the second and tallied twice within a minute and four seconds. Their attack eventually reached a pace where they scored their last two goals within 16 seconds of each other.

Alex Shibicky caused most of the damage with three of the New York goals in an exhibition that has come to be known as the "hat trick." Mac Colville opened the scoring and Clint Smith scored the other point.

Connie Mack Is 76 Years Young; Celebrates Today

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Cornelius McGillicuddy, as much a part of baseball as peanuts and soda pop, marked his seventy-sixth birthday today with a youngster's outlook on the future.

Connie Mack, as he has been known to the nation for years and years, intends to win another pennant with his Philadelphia Athletics before he retires.

The actual celebration of Connie's birthday will not be held until tomorrow. Mack always thought his birthday was Dec. 23, but old records at East Brookfield, Mass., revealed he was born on Dec. 22. He continued to observe his birthday a day late, however, and tomorrow will receive the best wishes of thousands of friends he has made during more than a half century in baseball.

Connie has been manager of the Athletics since 1901 and has piloted more teams into world championships than any other man in the game. Mack's last pennant winning team was in 1931.

Yankees Lift Ban on Radio Broadcasts

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Col. Jake Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, has been converted to the rôle of a confirmed shut-in radio listener. Eight months of listening to baseball from a sickbed have convinced the colonel, once a stanch foe of baseball broadcasting, that the folks who are confined do derive a definite good from the airing of games.

After years of refusing to admit a microphone to the world champions' stadium, Col. Ruppert today admitted that he has changed his mind. He still is of the opinion that broadcasting will not aid attendance, but is now sold on the idea that it is good for invalid fans.

All Three Clubs in Line.

With the Yankees getting aboard the radio bandwagon, the games of all three greater New York teams will go on the air next year. For years there was a three way pact among the Yankees, Giants, and Dodgers not to broadcast games, but this was abrogated last summer when Larry MacPhail, executive vice president of the Brooklyn club, obtained permission from the Yankees and Giants to dicker for broadcasting.

President Horace Stoneham of the Giants announced on Dec. 16 that the Giants' games would be broadcast, and it then became apparent that it would be only a matter of days until the Yankees fell in line.

May Impose Restrictions.

In handling broadcasts at the Yankee stadium it is likely that the Yankees will impose a few restrictions on the broadcasters. One is almost certain to be a ban on spontaneous and impromptu talks with the players in the dugout. Manager Joe McCarthy is bitterly opposed to this type of pre-game broadcasting, which for some years has been a feature of the broadcasting in midwest ball parks.

Shamrocks and Florals Upset in Mid-City Games

Leaders in the Mid-City Basketball league were beaten last night when the Golden Clothes five upset the Bennett Shamrocks, 45 to 40, and the Bill Rands defeated the Duffy Florals, 45 to 39. The defeat was the Shamrocks' first in five games. The Florals previously had been beaten only by the Shamrocks. The games were played in the St. Rita gymnasium.

the puck from Gracie and carried into the Wing defense zone, then passed to Gottselig. Johnny passed back to Earl and Seibert scored from close in. The time of this second Seibert production was 10:42. Gottselig and Gracie drew assists.

When the second period opened Desilets was serving a penalty assessed in the closing seconds of the first period. Because they were a man short they had the privilege of golfing the puck. As the disc was batted out of the Hawk defense zone Gracie pursued it, picked it up in the middle of the rink and raced to within six feet of Goalie Thompson's boot tips, where he cut loose for the goal that made the score 3 to 0 in favor of the Hawks. The time of this solo was 22 seconds of the second period.

The Hawks' fat lead began to melt in 6:45 of the second period. Trottier and Lewis zig-zagged the puck down left ice a dozen feet from the boards until Trottier whanged one which was too rapid for Karakas. Lewis got an assist point.

In 12:39 things got serious. Levinsky was penalized for checking into the boards. Bruneteau and Conacher took the puck out of the faceoff subsequent to Levinsky's infraction and passed to Barry, who nudged the puck past Karakas. This made the score, Hawks, 3; Wings, 2. In 15:32 the Wings tied the score. Motter dashed along the right boards until he had crossed the blue line. Then he passed laterally to Liscombe just inside the middle of the line. Liscombe whipped a hard long one which evaded Karakas' left boot.

BONUSES GIVEN TO WORKERS BY MANY CONCERNS

Chicago Companies Join in Christmas Gifts.

Numerous companies yesterday announced that they were making Christmas gifts to employés, mostly in the form of bonuses.

The Metropolitan Trust company, Chicago, will pay 25 per cent of a month's pay to all employés and officers. The A. L. Hansen Manufacturing company, Chicago, is paying an extra week's salary to its employés.

Richman Brothers company, clothing manufacturers, is distributing $75,000 in Christmas bonuses to its 2,600 employés. It is also granting 12 day vacations.

Give Insurance as Bonus.

The Federal Life Insurance company announced that its Christmas gift to its 200 salaried employés in the home office, Chicago, will take the form of life, accident, and sickness insurance.

The Scott Paper company, Chester, Pa., announced it will pay its 1,200 employés service awards. Those with them before Jan. 1, 1938, will receive $25 plus $1 for each year of service. Those with the company less than a year will receive lesser amounts.

In New York about 200 brokerage firms distributed bonuses which averaged about a week's pay. In Paterson, N. J., the Wright Aeronautical corporation distributed $85,000 among the 4,200 employés.

Other Bonuses Granted.

Banco di Napoli will pay a bonus of one month's salary to its thirty-five employés. Bunte Brothers, candy manufacturers, will distribute a Christmas bonus of about $35,000. Each employé with a year or more of service will get one week's pay.

Loew's, Inc., paid about $300,000 to 12,000 employés. Bonus ranged up to $50.

The General Commercial Acceptance corporation distributed a bonus of five weeks' salary to all employés with it a year or more.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Many Birds Banded.

Dec. 22, 1938.

NOW that the farm ponds are covered with a thick coating of ice, and practically all of the wild ducks are far south of Chicagoland, duck trapping and banding activities on the Tribune Du Page county farm have been discontinued until spring.

Open water is necessary to operate a waterfowl trap, for the birds must swim into the enclosure, which is baited with corn. The trap which has been used on the farm is now frozen in, so any ducks which do drop down on the farm ponds this late in the season can't get into the big wooden and wire enclosure. The swans on the pond are keeping open a small hole in the ice, but their pool is so small that there isn't much room for visiting waterfowl.

The waterfowl trap, now surrounded by ice, will be taken from the pond next week and stored until spring, when the annual migration will bring mallards, teal, and other species of waterfowl northward again.

55 Birds Caught in Trap.

Although necessarily operated on a part time basis, the water and land traps which were in use on the farm this summer and fall caught fifty-five birds, all of which were banded. All of the banded birds were released with the exception of a few ducks which, by federal permission, were kept on the farm for breeding and domestication experiments. The farm received federal banding permit number 5684 from the United States bureau of biological survey. A supplementary permit [number 4003] later was issued so that the farm could keep certain species of waterfowl for breeding experiments.

All bird trapping and banding in the United States, is controled by the biological survey, which issues the trapping permits, supplies the small aluminum bands which are stamped with numbers and placed on the birds' legs, and also keeps the records of birds banded. Information supplied to the government by amateur ornithologists and banders throughout the country is valuable in determining migration routes and other data.

First Capture on Sept. 16.

The first duck trapped and banded on the farm was taken on Sept. 16. It was a mallard hen and band number 526901 was placed on its leg. During the remaining days of September nine more ducks were trapped and banded, all of which were mallards and bluewinged teal. On Oct. 4 a shoveller duck was trapped, the first and only bird of that species that went into the trap during the autumn migration. On Oct. 14 black ducks began to appear on the pond, and several of these were trapped.

The land traps recorded seven different species, as compared with four different kinds of wild ducks which were banded. All of the following species are represented in the list of land birds which were trapped and banded: cowbird [5], catbird [4], field sparrow [1], cardinal [2], towhee [8], brown thrasher [1], and junco [9]. With thirty land birds and twenty-five ducks banded, the farm bird banding stations, operating only part time during the autumn, have a record of fifty-five birds of eleven different species.

ROOSEVELT AIDS SEEK TO EXACT LIMIT IN TAXES

Rising Deficit, Debt Increase Woes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—The Roosevelt burocrats these days are digging out and chasing through the public wringer every possible means of revenue.

A constant drop in revenues this year and a growing deficit and public debt are at last making the administration conscious of its financial menace.

It is certain that the treasury will recommend retention of present sources of revenue, as well as a supplement of new taxes. Government departments now are compelling maximum revenues under existing regulations.

Copyright Fee Increased.

One of the most novel means of boosting revenues under an existing statute was the recent change in copyright procedure to require a $2 fee on each instalment of serial stories rather than on the whole series as one.

The copyright office of the library of congress declares that this order, which went into effect Nov. 9, was designed purely to protect the authors without any thought on increased revenues. But it is evident that the order will boost income on copyrights by thousands of dollars a year.

In the fiscal year ended June 30, 1937, the copyright office reported gross revenues of $295,300 and for the 1938 fiscal year the total is estimated at well over $300,000. This is a favorable source of revenue and is receiving the utmost attention.

New Stamps Yield Profit.

But one of the profitable enterprises of which the administration is proudest is the grinding out of new stamp series. Since James A. Farley took over the generalship of the postoffice department, a profit of something like $2,000,000 a year has been realized on sales of new stamps to collectors.

It is almost mandatory that the collectors buy in order to protect their interests. Hence, the market is assured. Before Farley took over, the department was showing a profit of only about $3,000 a year on philatelic sales. An entire new series brought out this year is expected to encourage the government more than ever to build its stamp business.

The treasury is especially revenue-minded now as the budget for next year is in the process of formation and the day when a reckoning must be made with the new congress is rapidly drawing near. The administration's fiscal policies were vetoed by the public in the last election and the next congress, primed with new blood, may ask some embarassing questions of treasury officials when they go to Capitol hill.

Income Falls, but More Is Spent.

The report for the fiscal year to date is distinctly unflattering. The treasury statement for December 20, issued today, showed revenues for the year to date of 2 billion, 834 million dollars, against 3 billion, 69 million in the corresponding period of last year.

At the same time, expenditures have risen to 2 billion, 468 million from 2 billion, 113 million in the corresponding period of 1937. The public debt has reached the towering height of 39 billion, 406 million dollars.

The record directly mirrors the effect of administration policies. The Roosevelt depression cut revenues and the preëlection spending spree sharply increased expenditures.

The biggest threat to the treasury now is the possibility that income on social security taxes, a mainstay of the treasury in meeting current needs, will be cut.

Fears Loss of Security Tax.

Secretary Morganthau made no attempt to hide today his grave concern over a recommendation of the advisory council on social security that the so-called reserve fund for old age pensions be reduced to 4 billion dollars from the ultimate 47 billion which it would reach under the present setup.

The taxes on pay rolls, intended to build a reserve for pension purposes, have been spent by the treasury as fast as received. In place of good hard cash the treasury left its I. O. U's.

For the fiscal year to date the treasury has received more than 278 million dollars in social security taxes and another 53 million in railroad retirement taxes.

The advisory council's recommendation included a provision that such taxes be placed in a trust fund and administered by trustees, rather than be spent as received on anything besides social security.

Morgenthau said the treasury is not yet in a position to take a stand and that President Roosevelt has been so advised.

Nuisance Taxes Remain.

Asked whether the treasury would recommend extension of the so-called "nuisance" taxes, most of which expire next June 30, he said he did not believe anything could be said until next March. These taxes, which yield about 450 million dollars annually on luxury items, gasoline, stock transfers, etc., are expected to be extended.

A new tax expected to be approved at the next session will cover incomes of government employés and government securities hitherto exempt. A fight is also expected on the modified undistributed profits tax which extends only to cover incomes up to Dec. 31, 1939. The treasury wants it retained.

SEC Permits Utility Holding Company Deal

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—The Securities and Exchange commission today approved an application of Consumers Power company, to acquire the property of the Citizens Light and Power company from Cities Service Power and Light company. It was its first ruling on the acquisition of assets of one holding company from another. Citizens Light operates in southeastern Michigan.

The commission also approved a declaration by Consumers Power to issue 43,636 shares of no par value common stock at an aggregate stated value of $1,200,000 to be sold to its parent, Commonwealth and Southern, for that price, and $10,168,000 of 3¼ per cent first mortgage bonds, due 1966. These will be offered publicly tomorrow by Morgan Stanley & Co. and Bonbright & Co. at 104½.

$3,200,000 for Property.

The property of Citizens Light will be acquired for $3,200,000, representing the $1,200,000 to be obtained by Consumers from Commonwealth and Southern, and the proceeds from the sale of $2,000,000 of the bonds. Proceeds from the sale of the remainder of the bonds are to be applied to the refunding of $8,168,000 of first mortgage 4 per cent bonds due 1944.

The deal is believed to fit in with plans for integration provided by the public utility holding company act.

The commission said the record indicated no interlocking relations between Cities Service and Commonwealth and Southern, or between Citizens and Consumers through common directors, officers, or stock ownership.

View of Commission.

The commission said it seemed the acquisition would not be detrimental to the carrying out of the provisions of the holding company act and that Consumers would offer Citizens' customers the "advantages of substantially reduced rates and the opportunity for greater utilization of service."

The territory served by Citizens Light and Power company includes fifteen townships in Lenawee and Monroe counties, Michigan. The largest, Adrian, has a population of 15,000.

STANDARD OIL ADOPTS NEW PENSION PLAN

A new pension plan for employés of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana was approved yesterday by the stockholders at a special meeting at Whiting, Ind. About 97 per cent of 9,272,038 shares represented voted for the plan.

The program will become effective on Jan. 1, but employés will have a month to decide whether they wish to take part in it. For those who join, monthly retirement benefits, including the federal old age pension, will amount to approximately 2 per cent of their monthly earnings multiplied by years of service.

Normal retirement ages are 65 for men and 60 for women. The company undertakes to pay pensions for past services.

With respect to future services the plan provides for equal contributions by the company and the employés to purchase life annuities from an insurance company.

The stockholders also authorized the payment of $2,000,000 into a trust fund which is to be built up to make payments on account of past service secure against future contingencies.

FALL PIG CROP RISES; NOW NEAR NORMAL NUMBER

The fall pig crop in the United States this year shows an increase of 18 per cent over the fall crop of 1937, the department of agriculture estimated yesterday. This is one of the largest increases for one year on record and puts production closer to a normal basis than at any time since 1933, it was disclosed.

Farmers saved 27,651,000 pigs during the period from June 1 to Dec. 1, the report showed. This was 4,220,000 more than were saved during the same period last year and the largest fall crop since 1933, the department said. It was only 3 per cent under the average fall crop for the five years 1929-33, when production of swine was at a fairly high level.

It was estimated at the Chicago stock yards yesterday that the increase represents a potential gain of almost one billion pounds of pork.

BUILDING AWARDS NEARLY DOUBLE TOTAL YEAR AGO

New York, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Engineering construction awards last week were neary double the total in the corresponding period last year, Engineering News-Record reported today.

The total was $86,597,000 against $44,785,000 in the 1937 week and $60,208,000 in the preceding week this year. The total for the year to date rose to $2,732,421,000, a gain of 14.2 per cent.

Partly accountable for the week's gain was a $11,432,000 contract for a section of New York City's Delaware aqueduct tunnels. By groups, the awards compared as follows:

	Latest wk.	1937 wk.
Private	$14,358,000	$15,493,000
State, municipal	61,625,000	20,180,000
Federal	10,614,000	9,112,000

Commercial Investment Buys Universal Interest

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Henry Ittleson, president of the Commercial Investment Trust corporation, today announced consummation of the negotiations to purchase all minority stock of Universal Credit corporation on the terms announced early this month. Universal will confine its operations exclusively to financing of Ford dealers, Ittleson said.

SAMUEL INSULL JR. RESIGNS AS ASSISTANT TO EDISON CHAIRMAN

Samuel Insull Jr. announced last night that he had resigned as assistant to the chairman of the Commonwealth Edison company.

Samuel Insull Jr.

"I have made arrangements to accept early in January what I consider a very good business opportunity," Insull said. "My new connection will be announced in the near future. The companies with which I have been associated I am leaving with regret, as my association has been most pleasant."

Insull refuses to reveal further details of his plans.

James Simpson, chairman of the company, said that he regretted Insull's decision to leave the company. It will be the first time since the elder Samuel Insull took over the management of the company in 1892 that a member of the family has not been with the company.

Insull Jr. has held his present job since the retirement of his father as chairman in 1932. Prior to that time he was vice chairman of the company and its affiliated concerns. He is 38 years old.

PERKINS' REPORT SHOWS NEW GAIN IN EMPLOYMENT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Secretary Perkins reported today a continued rise of employment in November, contrary to the usual seasonal trend. She estimated reëmployment for the month at 30,000 workers, or an aggregate of 1,000,000 since June.

"Factory employment and pay rolls continued to rise," the labor secretary's monthly report said. "The gain of 1.2 per cent in employment indicates reëmployment of approximately 90,000 factory workers between mid-October and mid-November.

"The November gain of two-tenths per cent in factory pay rolls represents an increase of $350,000 in weekly pay checks of factory wage earners."

Packer Shows Business Gain, Profit in Year

John Morrell & Co., packer, yesterday reported that operations in the year ended Oct. 29 yielded a profit of $1,016,227, equal to $2.64 a share. The company had a loss of $670,543 in the preceding fiscal year.

T. Henry Foster, president, said that the company handled more live stock in 1938 and sold more specialty products than in the preceding year. Total sales, he said, increased 1½ per cent to $90,987,224.

Morrell's principal plant is in Ottumwa, Ia. In addition to meat packing the company handles a variety of processed food products. Most of the larger packing companies, which reported results earlier, showed losses for the 1938 fiscal year.

Stockyards Company Has Profit.

United Stockyards company reported a decline in profits for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31. Net income was $382,104, compared with $439,190 in the preceding fiscal year.

C. F. Topping, president, told stockholders that more head of live stock were handled last year in the stockyards operated by subsidiary companies. The total was 14,606,551, against 14,584,934 in the preceding year.

Earnings decreased because the number of cattle [the best revenue producer] declined from the preceding year, he said. Other classes of animals increased in volume. Topping said that the withholding of live stock from market may result in a further decline in receipts of cattle.

Expects Gain in 1939.

"However, this restocking is considered a healthful condition for the industry and the future operation of the corporation," Topping said. "The favorable corn and hog price ratio should result in an increase in hog receipts. Sheep receipts should compare favorably with last year. Collectively the prospects are for an increased volume in the company's business in 1939."

R. F. Ahrens.

American Steel and Wire company announced that Harry M. Francis has been appointed assistant vice president in charge of sales. The company is a subsidiary of United States Steel corporation. Francis has been associated with the wire company for twenty-three years.

H. C. Chace, superintendent of telegraph for the Santa Fe system, will retire Jan. 1. He served the railroad and the Western Union Telegraph company for more than fifty-three years. T. P. Brewster, assistant superintendent, will succeed Chace.

Alan E. Ashcraft, vice president of Fairbanks Morse & Co., has been appointed vice president in charge of all the company's operations in seven plants. His office will be in Chicago.

John E. O'Connor, superintendent of the Chicago, West Pullman and Southern railroad, will retire Jan. 1 after more than fifty years of railroad service. Charles L. West, agent of the road, will succeed him.

J. E. O'Connor.

The Western Union Telegraph company announced election of two new vice presidents. They are Joseph L. Egan, in charge of public relations and contracts, and Chester McKay, controller.

J. P. Spang Jr., vice president of Swift & Co., has been elected president of the Gillette Safety Razor company to succeed S. C. Stampleman, who resigned to become chairman of the board.

Charles E. Brinley of Philadelphia has been elected president of the Baldwin Locomotive works, succeeding George H. Houston, who resigned in August. Brinley had been acting president for the last four months. William H. Harman has been elected vice president in charge of sales in the place of Robert S. Binkerd, who resigned.

BANK CLEARINGS LARGE; EXCEED 7 BILLION MARK

New York, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Bank clearing in twenty-two leading cities passed the $7,000,000,000 mark for the first time in nearly two years, in the week ended Dec. 21. Dun & Bradstreet reported today that the volume of $7,252,827,000 was 9.1 per cent above $6,645,524,000 a year ago and was $1,566,118,000 above the preceding week.

Banking sources attributed the increase to a continuation of the fall upturns in industrial and retail buying and the usual seasonal demands on the nation's banking facilities.

New York clearings of $4,782,303,000 were 11.6 per cent higher. At the other cities turnover of $2,470,524,000 was 4.6 per cent higher. Volume at Chicago, $391,000,000, was 20.4 per cent higher than $324,800,000 a year ago.

1,000 GMC, DODGE TRUCKS WILL BE SHIPPED TO CHINA

New York, Dec. 22.—[Special.]—The General Motors and Chrysler corporations today closed contracts with the Universal Trading corporation for delivery of 500 G. M. C. and 500 Dodge trucks for shipment to China. Universal Trading corporation is a new company, formed under New York state laws, by American and Chinese citizens.

The truck transaction, involving about $1,000,000, was financed through credits obtained from the Export-Import bank.

TREASURY ASKS STABILIZATION FUND EXTENSION

Regarded Valuable in Money Control.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Congress will be asked to renew the authority of the United States treasury to operate the two billion dollar currency stabilization fund, Secretary Morgenthau said today. The treasury's authority to use the fund to stabilize the international exchange value of the dollar expires next June 30 under the present law.

Morgenthau said he would make no recommendation to congress on the length of the period of renewal. He said that the fund has become an "important adjunct of the treasury." He indicated that it is regarded an essential arm of the treasury in its monetary management operations, but would not say that the treasury would ask to make the fund permanent.

Operations Kept Secret.

Operations of the stabilization fund have been kept secret. The only report on the fund has been confidential to congress.

Morgenthau refused to discuss detailed operations of the fund, but said that operations have resulted in a profit. He did not disclose the amount of the profit, but replied in the negative when asked if the profit was less than $6,000,000.

Only 200 millions of the 2 billion dollars earmarked for stabilization operations has been put in use. The fund was created out of the "profit" accruing to the treasury from devaluation of the dollar.

Gives Treasury Broad Power.

Under present legislation the secretary of the treasury is given virtually unlimited authority to deal in gold and foreign exchange for dollar stabilization. Under this authority it is possible to influence the value of foreign currencies as well as the dollar.

Congressional critics of the administration have attacked the secret nature of the stabilization fund's operation and demanded some public accounting be made. Senator Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] has been the leading critic.

TELLS HOW MYERS AIDED NEBRASKA POWER PROJECT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—(AP)—The federal power commission heard Guy C. Myers, New York financier, described today as the man who cleared the way for purchase of private utilities by Nebraska public power districts after all other attempts at contact had failed.

R. A. Canaday, general counsel for the Central Nebraska public power and irrigation district, told of Myers' services. He testified at the commission's hearing on the Iowa-Nebraska Light and Power company's application for permission to sell its Nebraska electrical properties for $20,195,991 to the Central Nebraska district and the Loup river public power districts.

Myers' connection with the statewide public power proposal was attacked recently by Senator Bridges [R., N. H.], who said the financier would make $2,225,000 commission if the program were consummated. Canaday declared the districts expected to operate the purchased utilities more efficiently than the present owners.

MEXICO PLANS TO TAKE OVER SUGAR PLANTS

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The prospect of further expropriation of private industries became evident here today.

The newspaper Excelsior reported that the federal chamber of deputies passed a new sugar tax—its fourth on industry in three days—which President Cardenas said would be used "to construct and to acquire" sugar mills that the government "shall consider necessary to expropriate or that in some other manner shall be acquired from their owners."

The tax is 1 cent per kilogram and is expected to yield more than 3,000,000 pesos [nominally around $600,000] annually. The other taxes were on electric utilites, banks, and air lines. They were considered of special significance, Excelsior said, because the legislature for the first time refused to permit publication of 1939 budget estimates submitted by the president yesterday.

3 CLOSED BANKS REPAY $84,826 TO 9,800 DEPOSITORS

Repayment of $84,826 to about 9,800 depositors of three closed state banks in Chicago and Cook county was authorized yesterday by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett. The banks are the Bryn Mawr State bank, Devon Trust and Savings bank, and the Commercial Bank of Chicago Heights.

A 5 per cent repayment totaling $36,291 is being distributed to 4,300 depositors of the Devon Trust and Savings bank. This is the first payment since the bank closed. The Bryn Mawr bank is making a 5 per cent distribution of $25,575 to 3,600 depositors. This payment boosts the total disbursed to 32 per cent.

The Commercial Bank of Chicago Heights is paying 5 per cent, or $22,960, to 1,900 depositors. Total repayments of this bank, including yesterday's distribution, amount to 80 per cent.

Steel, Motor Firms Restore Salary Cuts

Paul G. Hoffman, president of Studebaker.

The Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, largest subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, and the Studebaker corporation, automobile manufacturer, yesterday moved to restore pay of salaried employés that had been reduced when the 1938 recession became severe.

Carnegie-Illinois action takes the form of restoring the work week to five and a half days. The present work week is five days. The change is effective Jan. 1.

Those whose work requires the full five and a half days will be paid on such base salary rate. Those whose work does not require the full five and one-half days will be paid on the part-time basis.

Some to Get Full Pay.

The return of the five and one-half day base week for salaried employés and the payment of the applicable base salary will result in the restoration of the full time pay for those employés who work five and a half days a week. Full time pay will not be restored for the higher paid executives.

It is expected that the other manufacturing and mining company subsidiaries of the United States Steel corporation will follow the action of Carnegie-Illinois. Mill laborers and others paid on an hourly basis were not affected by either the adoption of the five day week or the restoration of the five and one-half day week.

Studebaker Cancels Reductions.

Paul G. Hoffman, president of Studebaker, announced that as a result of the substantial improvement in sales since the introduction of the 1939 models and the prospects for continued good business, the directors voted to cancel as of Jan. 1 salary reductions which became effective April 1, 1938.

Cancellation of the salary reductions applies to all except the chairman of the board and the president. The reductions put into effect in April were on a sliding scale, ranging from 10 per cent on the first $1,800 of annual salary up to 25 per cent on the highest brackets.

REPUBLIC STEEL OFFICIALS WIN STOCK LOSS CASE

Cleveland, O., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Republic Steel corporation officials today won against a stockholder suit which contended their 1930 merger operations cost the company $2,500,000.

Six stockholders contended purchase of Inland Steel company and Youngstown Sheet and Tube company stock in 1930 was "in bad faith." Judge Frank J. Lausche ruled no evidence was presented to support this contention.

Investors' Guide

Railroad Securities Company.

Investors' Guide: What is the Railroad Securities company? I understand that its 4s of 1952 are secured by some Illinois Central stock. Please explain the company's securities to me.—F. T. M.

Answer: The only asset of the Railroad Securities company is a block of 80,000 common shares of the Illinois Central railroad. The company has outstanding $8,000,000 of 4 per cent stock trust certificates. Ten shares of Illinois Central stock are pledged for each $1,000 certificate.

Ownership of Railroad Securities is in the hands of the Union Pacific railroad.

Interest on the trust certificates is paid only if earned. It can be earned only by receipt of dividends on the Illinois Central common. No dividends have been paid on the Illinois Central stock since 1931, and the last interest payment on the certificates was in 1932. Interest is cumulative only up to 4 per cent.

The certificates are speculative. Because the coupon rate of return is limited to 4 per cent a year, however, the certificates have less speculative attraction than the Illinois Central stock.

Philadelphia Lawyer.

Investors' Guide: My investments are enough to puzzle a "Philadelphia lawyer," so I won't ask you about them. I wonder, though, if you could tell me how the expression, "Philadelphia lawyer," originated. Is there some historical yarn behind it?—C. V. M.

Answer: "The New England folks have a saying that three Philadelphia lawyers are a match for the devil himself and that they are able to unravel any knotty point ever so hard," the Nantucket Inquirer observed in 1824.

In 1837 The Portlander [Maine] asked: "Will the editor of the [Philadelphia] Ledger inform us from whence came the phrase often used over a knotty subject: 'It would puzzle a Philadelphia lawyer.'"

The Ledger's published reply was: "This phrase originated in the superior sagacity of our lawyers and they still preserve the quality."

Wall Street.

Investors' Guide: Can you tell me how the famed Wall Street got its name?—R. P. T.

Answer: Wall street is so called because of a palisade built on the site in 1652 under orders of Peter Stuyvesant, governor of the Dutch colony of New Amsterdam. He feared an invasion by the British.

INVESTING FIRM SIGNS CONSENT TO SEC DEMAND

Alleged Fraudulent Acts Enjoined.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—Entry of an injunction prohibiting practices which the Securities and Exchange commission charged were fraudulent was agreed to in federal court today by attorneys for the Fidelity Investment association.

Attorney Chester P. O'Hara, representing the association, said he consented to the order without a court fight because the association wishes to come under SEC regulation. O'Hara said the company did not admit that the practices complained of by the commission were fraudulent.

The agreement was announced at a hearing on an order for the association to show cause why it should not be restrained from using the mails and from interstate commerce. United States District Judge Edward J. Moinet signed the injunction decree.

Restrains "Misrepresentations."

Chester T. Lane, general counsel for the SEC, said the injunction permanently restrains the Fidelity association from making "misrepresentations." He said that the SEC would not press its petition for an order enjoining the company from using the mails or engaging in interstate commerce.

Fidelity Investment association operates under a West Virginia charter and has home offices at Wheeling, W. Va. It has branches in 57 cities, including Chicago.

Judge Moinet signed the injunction decree after questioning O'Hara about a receivership action filed in West Virginia against the association. O'Hara told the court that action was filed "by New York and Philadelphia lawyers," apparently as an outgrowth of the proceedings here. O'Hara said the association will fight the action.

Sale of Contracts Involved.

The government's specific charge was misrepresentation in connection with the sale of more than $276,000,000 of investment contracts to 60,000 investors.

Among the practices from which the association is restrained by today's order are the following:

"Obtaining money or property by means of untrue statements of material facts or omission of facts.

"Misleading investors as to the truth of financial or other statements, extent or availability of reserves, cost of portfolio reserves, the rating, nature, and liquidity of contract funds, the yield and financial condition of the various contract funds, means used to meet contract maturities, amounts payable or withdrawable, costs incident to the contracts, or the yield to contract holders.

"Creating or maintaining subsidiaries to conceal the nature or amount of indebtedness or investments, or employing any other device to defraud.

Agreement on Dividends.

"Paying dividends except from earned surplus.

"Purchasing securities to the personal benefit of any one connected with the association.

"Purchasing or depositing with West Virginia or any other state insufficient securities to meet deposit requirements.

"Failing to maintain at all times sufficient statutory deposits against appropriate liabilities."

Lane told Judge Moinet the association has violated a West Virginia law requiring "companies such as the Fidelity to keep on deposit sufficient cash and securities to protect contract holders or the maturity of their annuities." He further said that laws of other states in which the company operates had also been violated.

"In addition," Lane said, "the company has violated sections of the Securities and Exchange act dealing with fraud and misrepresentation."

Press Receiver Plea.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Dec. 22.—[Special.]—A group of eastern investors plans to press a petition for appointment of a receiver for Fidelity Investment association, Attorney O. L. McDonald said today.

A few days after the SEC filed its application for an injunction against the association, nine residents of Philadelphia petitioned the federal court of the Northern West Virginia district to appoint a receiver for the firm. They charged the association "recklessly, carelessly, and wrongfully" handled the company's finances.

No date has been set for a hearing on the petition.

Wisconsin to Investigate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Dec. 22.—The Wisconsin banking commission today announced that a hearing will be held here Dec. 30 to determine whether the Fidelity Investment association's license to do business in this state shall be suspended. It took this action despite a federal injunction restraining the association from practices assailed by the Securities and Exchange commission.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 22.—The stock market this afternoon broke away from a narrow lower course to close irregularly higher. Early fractional dips in the leaders were wiped out and replaced by fair sized gains. The late active buying, centering in the rails but spreading throughout the list, followed dribbling selling for tax purposes.

Volume was 1,042,920 shares. Of 88 issues traded, 345 advanced, 305 declined and 203 closed unchanged.

The outbreak of offerings in the aviation section yesterday was resumed at the outset today and was blamed for causing the early recession. The group rallied later to close irregular.

Rail shares as a group gave the best performance of the day. They were active and strong early in the day, dipped, then turned strong again. Illinois Central common and preferred profited from good buying after publication of the road's account for last month. Moving in the best volume of the day, the common shares spurted 1⅞ points, while the preferred jumped 3 points. Both closed at new 1938 highs.

Pivotal industrial stocks, including United States Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Chrysler, and General Motors steered a narrow course but pointed higher at the close.

Rubbers had a good day. United States Rubber gained 1 point, Goodyear, Goodrich, and General Tire and Rubber worked higher.

Mixed and narrow changes predominated in the utility shares.

Mail order issues closed mixed. Oils firmed, with Texas Corporation and Standard Oil of New Jersey gaining fractions.

A jump of 2⅝ points in Loew's common featured the amusement group. Others ruled steady.

New York Bonds.

New York, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Buying of bonds was stimulated today by a renewed rally in rail loans. This brought gains of fractions to around 2 points in many trading leaders.

The forward movement in carrier bonds was accompanied by a moderate upturn in rail shares. This tended to strengthen hopes of financial circles for early legislative action to "rehabilitate" the rail industry.

United States government loans for the most part held moderately above the previous finals, though dealings were slow. In the foreign division German government obligations yielded some ground along with Poland 8s and Japan 6½s.

Chicago Stocks.

Chicago stocks declined slightly again yesterday. THE TRIBUNE average of 20 stocks finished at 10.74, off 0.7 from the preceding close. Sales totaled 42,000 shares.

Volume leaders were irregular. Middle West, Wisconsin Bank Shares, and Raytheon Manufacturing common closed ⅛ lower. Commonwealth Edison gained ¼, Walgreen gained ⅝, and Illinois Central railroad ½. The railroad set a 1938 peak of 19⅜.

Chicago corporation, Northwest Bancorporation and Utilities and Industries preferred closed unchanged.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks moved irregularly yesterday in slow trading, dealers reported. Advances of $1 and $2 were made by American National bank, Chicago Title and Trust company and City National bank. Shares of the First National bank lost $1 and stock of the Northern Trust company, $5.

NAT. DISTILLERS, PHILIP MORRIS VOTE DIVIDENDS

Two Insurance Concerns Will Pay Extras.

The National Distillers Products corporation, makers of spirits and fruit juices, and Philip Morris & Co., cigaret manufacturers, were among the corporations which yesterday voted dividend payments. Two insurance companies announced year-end extra disbursements in addition to regular dividends.

Seton Porter.

National Distillers declared a regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents on the common stock, payable Feb. 1 to stockholders of record Jan. 16. Seton Porter, president, announced that the company will acquire early in 1939 the properties of Shewan-Jones, Inc., Lodi, Cal., wine and brandy makers.

Philip Morris Dividend.

Philip Morris & Co. authorized a dividend of 75 cents on the common stock, payable Jan. 16 to stockholders of record Jan. 3. On Nov. 15 the company paid a dividend of one-half share of common for each share held, and on Oct. 15 it paid 75 cents.

The Continental Insurance company and the Fidelity Phenix Fire Insurance company announced regular semi-annual dividends of 80 cents. In addition, the companies voted year-end special disbursements of 20 cents each, payable Jan. 10 to stock of record Dec. 31. Both firms paid year-end extras of 20 cents on Jan. 10, this year.

T. G. Monta[illegible], president of the Borden comp[illegible]m was mailing the final divide[illegible] of 40 cents for this year. The [illegible]pany, he said, is now following the policy of paying interim instead of quarterly dividends.

The letter "q" represents regular quarterly payments; the letter "s," semi-annual dividends.

WHEAT HIGHER ON PROSPECT OF SMALLER CROP

The unfavorable outlook for the American winter wheat crop dominated the action of the futures market yesterday. Commission houses and speculators bought on an official estimate issued late Wednesday, that next year's harvest would be about 485,000,000 bushels, the smallest since 1935. Closing trades on futures were at gains of ½ to ¾ cent a bushel.

The average condition of winter wheat on Dec. 1st in Kansas, Texas, and Oklahoma as given by the department of agriculture was 61 per cent of normal or nearly 15 per cent under the 1926-35 average. The three states seeded 22,380,000 acres, or approximately 50 per cent of the total for all states.

A weak undertone in the cash corn market, the basis declining ¼ to ½ cent a bushel as compared with the May delivery, caused selling of futures, which closed ⅛ to ½ cent a bushel lower with the December contract leading. Trading in December deliveries of all grains came to a halt at the close yesterday.

Fiduciary Income Tax Forms Now Available

Forms for the filing of fiduciary-income tax returns are now available at the federal courthouse, Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, said yesterday. Individual, corporation and partnership forms will be available on Jan. 5. All income tax returns on income derived in 1938 must be filed by March 15, 1938.
